$3.1 Million Petroleum Pipeline Proposed for Springs

DENVER (AP) — The newly incorporated Columbine Pipeline Company, which wants to construct a petroleum pipeline from the Denver area through Colorado Springs to Pueblo, advised Colorado's Public Utilities Commission it is prepared to spend $626,000 for terminals in the Pikes Peak and Pueblo areas.

The item was part of a $3.1 million estimated cost for the pipeline. The company said actual construction of the line will amount to $688,512. It plans an 8-inch line from Denver to Colorado Springs and a 6-inch line on south to Pueblo.

Jerry Mahoney, secretary of the utilities commission, set a public heading for Jan. 20 on the company's application. It will take place at the commission's hearing room in the State Services Building.

Commission spokesmen said trucking firms are expected to protest the plan, since most of the motor fuel products now are being trucked into the area.

The application and an accompanying copy of articles of incorporation shows the company was created Dec. 23. None of the five directors listed is from Colorado. They are Lee S. Osborne, who is company president; Don B. Pinnell, E. R. Miller, Edward C. Renwick and Stanley J. Harshman. Harshman's address is given as the Beacon Building, Tulsa, Okla., while the addresses of all the others are listed as 422 W. 6th St., Los Angeles.

The company's registered agent is listed as Clayton D. Knowles, Denver attorney. He also was listed as one of the three incorporators. The others were Edward G. Knowles and James F. Culber. All three gave their address as 560 Denver

By JOHN M.. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a dramatic move to open a new era of friendly relations with the Soviet Union. President Johnson has issued an informal invitation to the new Soviet leaders to visit the United States.

He is prepared to consider favorably an invitation to make a trip to the Soviet Union.

"I am sure the American people would welcome a chance to listen to the Soviet leaders on our television," Johnson declared in his State of the Union message Monday night, "as I would like the Soviet people to hear our leaders.

"I hope the new Soviet leaders can visit America so they can learn about this country at first hand."

The Soviet Embassy was informed of Johnson's statement to the Congress and by radio and television to the country a few hours in advance of its delivery.

This diplomatic nicety reinforced the seriousness of the President's interest in opening negotiations with the Russians about a visit here or an exchange of visits. Depending on their reaction the trips could be

Indonesian Attack Against Malaysia 'Bound to Fail'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any massive "confrontation" by Indonesia against the Malaysian federation probably would fail badly, experts here believe.

This, tye say, is because the Indonesians — although they have large forces — lack the resources and know-how to support such a major attack.

This they say, is because the present guerrilla-type infiltration by Indonesians will continue, with perhaps an increase in the tempo and number of harassing penetrations.

Malaysia has scant military strength herself, but her shield is Britain, aided by Australia and New Zealand.

The British, alarmed by the menacing actions and attitudes of Indonesian President Sukarno, have moved to strengthen their land, sea and possibly air forces in the Malaysian area.

The 16-month-old Malaysian federation — which Sukarno has promised to crush — has about 18,000-20,000 men in its regular forces.

For the most part, these Malaysian troops are infantry. They are rated well trained in jungle warfare.

Bolstering the regulars are about twice as many men in the paramilitary forces. These chiefly are police whose mission is preserving internal security.

The Malaysian navy is a collection of patrol craft, motor gunboats, minesweepers and other small vessels. The federation has virtually no combat air force.

The British and other Commonwealth forces available for Malaysia's defense number about 40,000 men. With reinforcements coming from Britain, the total is rising.

A British carrier is in the area and another is reported due to join the British Far East fleet.

Malaysia Builds Up Forces

SINGAPORE (AP) — Fifty more paratroopers arrived from England today as part of a British buildup to help Malaysia meet Indonesia's threat to smash the federation.

Britain has flown in 100 paratroopers and the remaining 400 men from the crack 2nd Parachute Battalion are due by Thursday. Another 500 men of a Gurkha battalion are coming by ship from Hong Kong, raising the total of British and other Commonwealth troops in Malaysia to more than 7,000.

Reports said Malaysia also has asked for more helicopters from Britain to speed the movement of troops in jungle warfare against Indonesian guerrillas. The request is expected to be discussed when Britain's new chief of the general staff, Gen. Sir James Cassels, arrives Jan. 14 to survey the situation.

The Malaysian government announced Monday it would retaliate "under the rule of hot pursuit" should Indonesia attack in force. Indonesia's announcement that it was withdrawing from the United Nations came after intelligence reports that Indonesia is massing forces at bases surrounding Malaysia.

Soviets Plan to Provide Cyprus With Naval Force

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — Greek Cypriot officers and seamen are being flown to Alexandria, principal Egyptian naval base, for training to man an estimated twelve Soviet Komar-class PT boats — similar to the more than several score Castro-ruled Cuba now has.

This sinister development is confronting President Johnson with a fateful decision of far-reaching consequences throughout the tensely explosive Middle East and strife torn Congo.

The training of the Greek Cypriot crews is due to be completed by the end of this month. They will then take the powerful Komars, with a speed of around 40 knots and equipped with both torpedoes and missiles, across the Mediterranean to provide Archbishop Makarios with a considerable readymade naval force.

This will put squarely up to President Johnson the momentous decision of which to do about it —

Or permit strategic Cyprus to become another Soviet-controlled insular military bastion similar to Communist - dominated Cuba.

There is no indication what the President may do — if anything!

So far he and his inner council of foreign affairs advisers have watched without reacting to Russia's steady build-up of Makarios' armed forces — now numbering more than 20,000. Since October, when the first Soviet weapons arrived, the

Preston Declared Innocent of Murder Charge

Glen "Hook" Preston was found innocent of first degree murder when a District Court jury Monday brought in a directed verdict of acquittal.

Preston, 54, Rt. 4, a merchant policeman was accused of the pistol slaying of Harris Junior Orin, 44, 608 Bonfoy Ave., Dec. 24. According to a sheriff's report Orin attacked Preston while the officer was checking him out.

Preston took the stand and told the jury he had been a night watchman for the past 18 years and that at 11 p.m. Dec. 23 saw a man acting suspiciously around a group of cars. Preston turned his spotlight on him and the man disappeared.

He showed up again, the witness continued, about 11 minutes before 3 a.m. Dec. 24 in the vicinity of the Gulf Filling Station at Prairie Road and Platte Avenue. Preston called the sheriff's office for assistance and went back to the scene.

The man had disappeared and Preston walked towards the building to see if he had entered it and at this point, he said, Orin jumped him, hit him on the head with a pair of pliers and he fell to the ground bleeding from a wound in the temple.

"I fired my gun at his feet," Preston told the court, "and he hit me again. I started to get up and he hit me again." The witness said Orin kept coming at him and then grabbed him and beat him across the back with the pliers. "I had the gun lying flat against my chest and

Knowles, when asked if a definite location had been established for the erection of the local terminal, said that no

Legislators See Little Chance to Avoid New Tax

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Colorado legislative leaders began arriving in Denver today for the 1965 session of the General Assembly, pessimistic over the chances of avoiding new taxes.

There was no general agreement on what form tax increases will take but the leaders indicated there is no way to increase state aid to schools and colleges and provide money for construction of new buildings without obtaining more revenue. This means new — or added— taxes.

The legislature convenes at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Nobody wanted to be quoted on taxes at the moment.

Both sides are looking to Gov. John A. Love's message Friday to indicate what the Republican administration wants in the way of increased educational expenditures and tax changes.

The governor has said nothing of his plans, but reporters learned a month ago he had discussed the possibility of an increase in the state sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent— a total of $30 million a year. Part of the money would be earmarked for replacement of property taxes under the plan. Republicans also have talked of increasing the state's 3 cent a package tax on cigarettes and even have discussed a boost in the state property tax as a means of financing the construction program. The property tax, now 1.3 mills, will expire automatically at the end of the year unless reenacted.

Democrats declined to come up with specific proposals pending a chance to talk the problem over in caucus.

The House majority leader, Rep. Forrest Burns, D-Lamar, told a reporter, however, that if taxes must be raised he thinks the fairest approach would be to increase the income tax rates. Burns emphasized he was expressing only his personal preference.

Senate Majority Leader Paul Wenke, R-Fort Collins, announced that retiring Sen. Vernon A. Cheever, R-Colorado Springs, is slated to serve as sergeant at arms of the new Senate. Cheever, a quarter-century veteran of the legislature, was defeated for re-election last Nov. 3.

LBJ Calls for Excise Tax Cut; Medicare; Education Program; 'Attack on Poverty'

By STERLING F. GREEN

Shortly before a cheering joint session received Johnson's State of the Union message — delivered in person Monday night and carried by radio and television networks — Congress broke down some of its own historic legislative barriers that might have blocked the way.

So the President who won in November an unprecedented 43-million vote popular total faced old House and Senate colleagues with brighter - than - ever prospects that they will enact the great bulk of his program.

The legislators burst into applause 57 times before, during and after Johnson's 47-minute address. Democrats called it "inspiring" and "attainable." The outnumbered Republicans were stingy with applause; some of them called his proposals costly and Utopian.

Rich in prose but barren of details, the presidential message presented a series of preambles, not detailed programs.

His specific new proposals for a nation that is "free, restless, growing and full of hope," John-

Lottery Urged To Replace Property Tax

DENVER (UPI) — A statewide lottery to replace Colorado's property tax was proposed Monday by State Sen. Sam T. Taylor, D-Walsenburg.

Taylor, Colorado's State Senate minority leader, said he believed a sweepstakes would raise $10 million a year — more than two times the present state property tax.

"I think the legislature should consider it very carefully this session," Taylor said. "We've got to get a broader tax base. It seems to me we've got to start reaching out in areas where taxes aren't quite so painful."

The Democrat said he thought the Republican majority in the Senate would offer a two-part tax package—an increase in the state sales tax and a 3-mill property tax. The present state mill property tax is 1.3 mills.

El Paso County Sends Freshmen To Legislature

The county this year has five members in the House of Representatives and three in the Senate. Of those eight members, only one member was reelected, one was not up for election last November, and the others are all first termers.

Thus out of the eight, two have had legislative experience, while one of the freshmen had administrative experience in the state government.

Freshmen or not, all of them know the biggest problem facing the state assembly this year —education, from kindergarten through the 12th grade and on up through the state's colleges and universities.

They all agree that meeting the growth of the student population in the state and financing the enlarged operations give the state a tough financial nut to crack. None of them have any

Sporadic Sniper Fire Reported In Viet Nam War

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The South Vietnamese soldiers around Binh Gia to government deployed more soldiers around Binh Gia today, and a counter-offensive against the Viet Cong appeared to be under way.

Sporadic sniper fire was reported during the night and a road convoy was hit with small arms fire, but casualties were light. The area 40 miles east of Saigon was quiet today.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, was expected to direct the U.S. side of the developing effort to counter the Viet Cong offensive at Binh Gia.

Viet Cong units made new attacks Sunday night and Monday shattering a three-day lull in fighting around Binh Gia.

Red Supply Lines in Viet Nam Are Photographed

ABOARD USS RANGER (AP) — A startled woman caught in a backyard bath looked up as the sleek Navy jet swept low over the Laotian countryside, photographing Communist installations along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The photograph and tens of thousands of others taken by Navy reconnaissance jets in Laos and Communist-controlled portions of South Viet Nam are part of a massive intelligence program that could be a prelude to expanding the Vietnamese war.

If such expansion comes, Communist supply bases and key routes in Laos are likely to be the first targets for aerial bombardment.

A major source of information in the joint Navy-Air Force program is the Navy's RASC heavy reconnaissance jet. A detachment of the Sanford, Fla. based squadron operates an intensive flying schedule from the attack carrier Ranger in the South China Sea off South Viet Nam.

Soviets Plan to Provide Cyprus With Naval Force

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — Greek Cypriot officers and seamen are being flown to Alexandria, principal Egyptian naval base, for training to man an estimated twelve Soviet Komar-class PT boats — similar to the more than several score Castro-ruled Cuba now has.

This sinister development is confronting President Johnson with a fateful decision of far-reaching consequences throughout the tensely explosive Middle East and strife torn Congo.

The training of the Greek Cypriot crews is due to be completed by the end of this month. They will then take the powerful Komars, with a speed of around 40 knots and equipped with both torpedoes and missiles, across the Mediterranean to provide Archbishop Makarios with a considerable ready-made naval force.

This will put squarely up to President Johnson the momentous decision of which to do about it —

Or permit strategic Cyprus to become another Soviet-controlled insular military bastion similar to Communist-dominated Cuba.

There is no indication what the President may do — if anything!

So far he and his inner council of foreign affairs advisers have watched without reacting to Russia's steady build-up of Makarios' armed forces — now numbering more than 20,000. Since October, when the first Soviet weapons arrived, the

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a dramatic move to open a new era of friendly relations with the Soviet Union, President Johnson has issued an informal invitation to the new Soviet leaders to visit the United States.

He is prepared to consider favorably an invitation to make a trip to the Soviet Union.

"I am sure the American people would welcome a chance to listen to the Soviet leaders on our television," Johnson declared in his State of the Union message Monday night, "as I would like the Soviet people to hear our leaders.

"I hope the new Soviet leaders can visit America so they can learn about this country at first hand."

The Soviet Embassy was informed of Johnson's statement to the Congress and by radio and television to the country a few hours in advance of its delivery.

This diplomatic nicety reinforced the seriousness of the President's interest in opening negotiations with the Russians about a visit here or an exchange of visits. Depending on their reaction the trips could be

Pipeline Would Benefit Region, Officials Say

"The proposed Columbine Pipeline Co. pipeline and terminal in Colorado Springs would definitely reduce the cost of gas and fuel oil in the area and would also facilitate such supplies to the Peterson Field area," William Carraway, Chamber of Commerce industrial manager, said today.

"The Peterson Field operation has been handicapped for some time due to the fact adequate fuel facilities were not available in our area," he added.

Clayton D. Knowles, Denver attorney for the pipeline company, echoed Carraway's statements.

Knowles, when asked if a definite location had been established for the erection of the local terminal, said that no

LBJ Calls for Excise Tax Cut; Medicare; Education Program; 'Attack on Poverty'

By STERLING F. GREEN

Shortly before a cheering joint session received Johnson's State of the Union message — delivered in person Monday night and carried by radio and television networks — Congress broke down some of its own historic legislative barriers that might have blocked the way.

So the President who won in November an unprecedented 43-million vote popular total faced old House and Senate colleagues with brighter-than-ever prospects that they will enact the great bulk of his program.

The legislators burst into applause 57 times before, during and after Johnson's 47-minute address. Democrats called it "inspiring" and "attainable." The outnumbered Republicans were stingy with applause; some of them called his proposals costly and Utopian.

Rich in prose but barren of details, the presidential message presented a series of preambles, not detailed programs.

His specific new proposals for a nation that is "free, restless, growing and full of hope," John-

Aluminum Corp. Files Petition For Bankruptcy

Glenn D. Thomas, 311 Pilot Knob Av., company president, said in the petition that the company's assets were $27,934 and debts $179,686.

Preston Declared Innocent of Murder Charge

Glen "Hook" Preston was found innocent of first degree murder when a District Court jury Monday brought in a directed verdict of acquittal.

Preston, 54, Rt. 4, a merchant policeman was accused of the pistol slaying of Harris Junior Orin, 44, 608 Bonfoy Ave., Dec. 24. According to a sheriff's report Orin attacked Preston while the officer was checking him out.

Preston took the stand and told the jury he had been a night watchman for the past 18 years and that at 11 p.m. Dec. 23 saw a man acting suspiciously around a group of cars. Preston turned his spotlight on him and the man disappeared.

He showed up again, the witness continued, about 11 minutes before 3 a.m. Dec. 24 in the vicinity of the Gulf Filling Station at Prairie Road and Platte Avenue. Preston called the sheriff's office for assistance and went back to the scene.

The man had disappeared and Preston walked towards the building to see if he had entered it and at this point, he said, Orin jumped him, hit him on the head with a pair of pliers and he fell to the ground bleeding from a wound in the temple.

"I fired my gun at his feet," Preston told the court, "and he hit me again. I started to get up and he hit me again." The witness said Orin kept coming at him and then grabbed him and beat him across the back with the pliers. "I had the gun lying flat against my chest and

Fair Employment Ordinance Ruled Unconstitutional

OMAHA, Neb. — A Fair Employment Ordinance adopted by Omaha in February 1962 was declared unconstitutional late last year by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

The high court ruled that the city could not adopt such an ordinance because it had no authority in that field.

The city's act had been challenged in the courts by the Midwest Employers Council, Inc., which was joined by the U.S. Check Book Co.

The ordinance had been urged upon the city by:

Lottery Urged To Replace Property Tax

DENVER (UPI) — A statewide lottery to replace Colorado's property tax was proposed Monday by State Sen. Sam T. Taylor, D-Walsenburg.

Taylor, Colorado's State Senate minority leader, said he believed a sweepstakes would raise $10 million a year — more than two times the present state property tax.

"I think the legislature should consider it very carefully this session," Taylor said. "We've got to get a broader tax base. It seems to me we've got to start reaching out in areas where taxes aren't quite so painful."

The Democrat said he thought the Republican majority in the Senate would offer a two-part tax package—an increase in the state sales tax and a 3-mill property tax. The present state mill property tax is 1.3 mills.

Legislators See Little Chance to Avoid New Tax

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Colorado legislative leaders began arriving in Denver today for the 1965 session of the General Assembly, pessimistic over the chances of avoiding new taxes.

There was no general agreement on what form tax increases will take but the leaders indicated there is no way to increase state aid to schools and colleges and provide money for construction of new buildings without obtaining more revenue. This means new — or added — taxes.

The legislature convenes at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Nobody wanted to be quoted on taxes at the moment.

Both sides are looking to Gov. John A. Love's message Friday to indicate what the Republican administration wants in the way of increased educational expenditures and tax changes.

The governor has said nothing of his plans, but reporters learned a month ago he had discussed the possibility of an increase in the state sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent—a total of $30 million a year. Part of the money would be earmarked for replacement of property taxes under the plan. Republicans also have talked of increasing the state's 3 cent a package tax on cigarettes and even have discussed a boost in the state property tax as a means of financing the construction program. The property tax, now 1.3 mills, will expire automatically at the end of the year unless reenacted.

Democrats declined to come up with specific proposals pending a chance to talk the problem over in caucus.

The House majority leader, Rep. Forrest Burns, D-Lamar, told a reporter, however, that if taxes must be raised he thinks the fairest approach would be to increase the income tax rates. Burns emphasized he was expressing only his personal preference.

Senate Majority Leader Paul Wenke, R-Fort Collins, announced that retiring Sen. Vernon A. Cheever, R-Colorado Springs, is slated to serve as sergeant at arms of the new Senate. Cheever, a quarter-century veteran of the legislature, was defeated for re-election last Nov. 3.

El Paso County Sends Freshmen To Legislature

The county this year has five members in the House of Representatives and three in the Senate. Of those eight members, only one member was reelected, one was not up for election last November, and the others are all first termers.

Thus out of the eight, two have had legislative experience, while one of the freshmen had administrative experience in the state government.

Freshmen or not, all of them know the biggest problem facing the state assembly this year—education, from kindergarten through the 12th grade and on up through the state's colleges and universities.

They all agree that meeting the growth of the student population in the state and financing the enlarged operations give the state a tough financial nut to crack. None of them have any

Sporadic Sniper Fire Reported In Viet Nam War

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The South Vietnamese soldiers around Binh Gia to government deployed more soldiers around Binh Gia today, and a counter-offensive against the Viet Cong appeared to be under way.

Sporadic sniper fire was reported during the night and a road convoy was hit with small arms fire, but casualties were light. The area 40 miles east of Saigon was quiet today.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, was expected to direct the U.S. side of the developing effort to counter the Viet Cong offensive at Binh Gia.

Viet Cong units made new attacks Sunday night and Monday shattering a three-day lull in fighting around Binh Gia.

By JOHN T. WHEELER

ABOARD USS RANGER (AP) — A startled woman caught in a backyard bath looked up as the sleek Navy jet swept low over the Laotian countryside, photographing Communist installations along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The photograph and tens of thousands of others taken by Navy reconnaissance jets in Laos and Communist-controlled portions of South Viet Nam are part of a massive intelligence program that could be a prelude to expanding the Vietnamese war.

If such expansion comes, Communist supply bases and key routes in Laos are likely to be the first targets for aerial bombardment.

A major source of information in the joint Navy-Air Force program is the Navy's RASC heavy reconnaissance jet. A detachment of the Sanford, Fla. based squadron operates an intensive flying schedule from the attack carrier Ranger in the South China Sea off South Viet Nam.

The Vigilantes' photo gear is capable of detailed snooping from just above the tree tops to above 40,000 feet.

How to Cut Your Own Income Tax

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Here's a term you will hear more and more during this year's income tax filing time:

NEW MINIMUM STANDARD DEDUCTION.

If your total income for the year is less than $10,000 and you do not ordinarily itemize your deductions, this can be the first of your many tax-saving opportunities on your 1964 tax return.

By now nearly everyone is familiar with the old OPTIONAL STANDARD DEDUCTION. This was the device used by those who don't have high interest payments on a home mortgage or loans, real estate taxes, heavy medical expenses or sizable contributions. Instead of listing all his deductions the taxpayer could take 10 per cent of his total income and consider that to be his deductions total. This meant that a $7,500 family received $750 allowances, a $10,000 family, $1,000 and a $15,000 income also $1,000. Regardless of income the highest total that could be used on the standard deduction was $1,000.

The new MINIMUM STANDARD DEDUCTION is still restricted to a maximum of $1,000 but in certain incomes up to $10,000 it can be a real money saver. Here's how it works:

All taxpayers (other than married persons filing separate returns) can claim $200 plus an additional $100 for each exemption. This, of course, is in addition to the regular $600 credit for each exemption.

This means that a husband and wife with five dependent children could take $900 for their minimum standard deduction—$200 plus $100 for each of the seven exemptions. If their yearly income was $7,000 they could claim only $700 under the optional standard deduction method in effect in former years. This little device will save that $7,000 family a minimum of $32 on their tax return.

Not only big families but students with after-school and summer jobs and young people just starting a first job will use this new method to great advantage. Under last year's law these younger people started to pay an income tax after they earned as much as $675 for the year. The 1964 tax table sets the first bracket for unmarried persons at $900 to $925 with only $2 in tax due for total income between those figures. This means an additional $224 of tax-free income in 1964 for these people.

Don't forget, too, that the student's father can still claim him as a dependent on the father's tax return and get an additional $600 dependency credit for him if, despite the student's earnings, his parents still furnished his chief support.

Married persons filing separate instead of joint returns will find special rules applying to them in the handling of the minimum standard deduction.

The old rule continues that when husband and wife file separate returns they must follow the same pattern. This means that both must use the minimum standard deduction, or both must use the optional standard deduction, or both must itemize deductions.

The reason for this is obvious: If one were permitted to itemize his deductions and the other take the 10 per cent allowance for deductions the temptation would be great to shift all the deductions to the one itemizing so that the one getting the 10 per cent would be receiving pure gravy.

Where married couple filing separately elects to use the minimum standard deduction they are limited to $100 plus an additional $100 for each exemption, up to a maximum credit of $500 each.

There will be five new optional tax tables accompanying this year's tax forms, accommodating incomes up to $5,000.

They will be for unmarried taxpayers, for head of a household, married persons filing joint returns, and two for married persons filing separate returns. For married persons filing separate returns one table will use the optional standard method of deduction (10 per cent of total income), the other will use the new minimum standard deduction.

For the first three classifications—unmarried, head of a household and married couple filing a joint return, the table will automatically give them the benefit of the lesser of two deduction methods, optional standard or minimum standard.

Vandals Shoot At Two House Doors

Police reported two separate incidents of vandals shooting bullets at house doors within a 15 minute period Monday.

The first occurred at 817 S. Sahwatch Street at a house owned by Pedro J. Heuilera. Heuilera told police that the vandals shot at the house at approximately 8 p.m. Monday, and that two bullet holes were found in the shingles on the side of the house facing the street. Police, after digging out one of the bullets, said it was a .22 caliber slug.

The second incident occurred at 915 E. Cucharras Street at approximately 8:15 p.m. Monday. Mary A. Flanagan, occupant of the house, said she and her family were sitting in the kitchen when they heard what sounded like gun shots, and also heard something strike the front door of the house. She said that when they checked the front door, they found two bullet holes in it.

Police learned that the victims in the two incidents are cousins, but after talking to both families, they were unable to discover any argument or disagreement with the family or anyone connected with them, according to the report.

Items Taken From Medical Building

Two shovels and a heavy extension cord, worth a total of $85.50, were stolen from Pete Bernabee, doing business in the North Side Medical Building, 1312 E. Fillmore St., the sheriff's office said Monday.

According to Deputy Franklin T. Ripley, the theft probably happened sometime during the day when the door to the building was unlocked and Bernabee was working on the top floor.

A ton of ingot steel will make six and a half automatic washers, seven and a half refrigerators, 12 bathtubs, 375 toasters or 1,000 electric irons.

Vandals Shoot At Two House Doors

Police reported two separate incidents of vandals shooting bullets at house doors within a 15 minute period Monday.

The first occurred at 817 S. Sahwatch Street at a house owned by Pedro J. Heuilera. Heuilera told police that the vandals shot at the house at approximately 8 p.m. Monday, and that two bullet holes were found in the shingles on the side of the house facing the street. Police, after digging out one of the bullets, said it was a .22 caliber slug.

The second incident occurred at 915 E. Cucharras Street at approximately 8:15 p.m. Monday. Mary A. Flanagan, occupant of the house, said she and her family were sitting in the kitchen when they heard what sounded like gun shots, and also heard something strike the front door of the house. She said that when they checked the front door, they found two bullet holes in it.

Police learned that the victims in the two incidents are cousins, but after talking to both families, they were unable to discover any argument or disagreement with the family or anyone connected with them, according to the report.

Items Taken From Medical Building

Two shovels and a heavy extension cord, worth a total of $85.50, were stolen from Pete Bernabee, doing business in the North Side Medical Building, 1312 E. Fillmore St., the sheriff's office said Monday.

According to Deputy Franklin T. Ripley, the theft probably happened sometime during the day when the door to the building was unlocked and Bernabee was working on the top floor.

Germans Get Used to U.S. Integration

By JOHN WEYLAND

BAD KREUZNACH, Germany (AP) — It used to be that a Negro soldier entering certain bars here would be thrown out. If the bar manager tried to insist on racial equality, white GIs might threaten to smash up the joint — and the manager quickly excluded Negroes to save his property and his business.

Things have changed. You find mixed groups of white and Negro soldiers in bars that used to be segregated.

The same appears to be true of most towns and villages in West Germany where American troops are based.

But there are still many bars and restaurants where voluntary segregation is practiced either by white or Negro soldiers, and bar owners toe the line set by their customers.

A U.S. government committee studying overseas discrimination in the armed forces reported last week that problems of discrimination in off-base bars, restaurants and housing were particularly acute in Germany and the Far East.

The U.S. Army in Europe replied that "the heat has been on this situation for 2½ years and we feel we have made tremendous strides. The report is not reflective of the current situation."

An on-the-spot check of dozens of GI bars and restaurants in Bad Kreuznach, Frankfurt and Hanau, where there are heavy concentrations of U.S. troops, shows some changes from conditions of a year or so ago.

In these cities it is still easy to find voluntary segregation, but Army authorities, in cooperation with mayors, have been putting pressure both on soldiers themselves and upon barkeepers and restaurant owners.

The police chief of Hanau, which has 17,000 American soldiers among a German population of 50,000, recently called all bar and restaurant owners together and set up a code of rules.

They call for good behavior, no sales to drunks, no credit and no discrimination due to race, religion or nationality.

Despite all the efforts, there are plcaes in Hanau, Frankfurt and Bad Kreuznach where only people of one color, white or black, are welcome.

In Hanau, despite official efforts, one bar owner said he does not want Negro soldiers. He tells them there's a "private party" going on. He was the only barkeeper who admitted discrimination.

Two years ago, many bars in Germany had signs: "We reserve the right to refuse service." These have disappeared.

Bad Kreuznach's Mayor Gerhard Muhs told bar owners that Germany could not tolerate such practices. As a result, bars which once were segregated and where there was the constant danger of brawling now have mixed crowds.

Lt. Col. C. M. Hurtt, Baltimore, Md., post executive officer at Hanau, said:

"The way I see it, a Negro soldier goes to the joints where Negroes predominate because he knows that there he won't overhear any racial slurs.

"The only way to try to get the men to stop going to these places is to try first the idealistic approach in lectures, character guidance periods and so on. If that doesn't work, then they have to be shamed into realizing that they are wrong and acting against their own interests."

The Army claims that it cannot put segregated places off limits to soldiers but a spokesman for the German Justice Ministry disputes this, saying:

"The U.S. Army is not prevented by anything in our laws from using off limits to stop discrimination. If the Americans want to do it, they can."

When it comes to housing for Negro soldiers and their families, both the authorities and Negro soldiers say some progress has been made although Germans still go to Army bases and say: "I want to rent — but not to Negroes."

Theoretically, such housing offers won't be listed at all.

But at some bases, there still are two lists — one for white soldiers and one for Negro soldiers.

There are evidences, however, that Army headquarters is cracking down on officers who maintain such separate lists.

I warned him not to squeeze me as the hammer was back on the gun and I could not hold it.

"He squeezed me and the gun went off. I smashed him in the face with my hook, (Preston only has one hand) and he chased me and knocked the light out of my hand. I said 'you'd better wait, the sheriff wants you,' and he said 'go to hell' and then drove off."

Deputy District Attorney Bob Russel read to the court the dead man's FBI record which listed several convictions for burglary and car theft. The district attorney's office also stated that although the defendant was charged with first degree murder he was innocent and that it was for his own protection under the double jeopardy laws that the trial was being held.

Testimony was also given by Deputy Sheriff Woodrow Littrell. Littrell said a pickup for the car containing Orin was put out and that it was found some time later with the suspect in it still living.

Orin was taken to the hospital where he died a few hours later.

Counsel for the defense Gordon Cooper then asked for a directed verdict of acquittal and the state confessed the motion. Judge G. Russell Miller then ordered the jury to bring in an acquittal.

$3.1 Million Pipeline Is Being Sought

Club Building.

Its main headquarters is listed as Tula, Okla.

A map of the tentative route of the pipeline indicates it would be slightly to the east of Interstate 25, but no exact locations are shown. The application does not claim the company actually owns the right of way or property for the terminals. It estimates a right of way cost of $185,600 and $188,100 for construction of a pumping station and booster pumps.

The application says that "adequate loading facilities will be provided at the Pueblo and Colorado Springs terminals."

It states that transportation of petroleum products via the pipeline would be cheaper than by present methods of transportation.

The application estimates the Colorado Springs area uses 4,420 barrels of gasoline daily and the Pueblo area 4,875, that Colorado Springs uses 540 barrels of distillate fuel oil and that the Pueblo area used 620 barrels.

The pipeline would have an initial capacity of 17,500 barrels a day, the application says, and this could be increased by additional pumping capacity.

Burglary Counts Filed Against Local Youths

Charges of burglary and conspiracy were filed aginst David Russell Strohm, 18, 620 W. Colorado Ave., and David Charles Jones, 19, 907 N. Corona St. in District Court Monday.

They are alleged to have broken into the Paint Supply Co. Inc., 113 E. Bijou St. Friday and conspired together to commit the felony.

According to a police report they are also involved in the burglaries of the Stewart Photo Service, 121 N. Tejon St., Nicholson's Studio, 117 N. Tejon St., and Blick's Sporting Goous Co., 119 N. Tejon St.

The pair were found hiding behind a screen door at whetston Shoes, 123 N. Tejon St. in the small hours of Jan. 1. The report said they told police officers they "were waiting for their girl friends."

Girls Tell Police That Man Exposed Himself

A man described as 25 to 30 years old exposed himself to two small girls at approximately 12 p.m. Monday in the 200 block of E. Mill Street, police reported.

Police said the girls, who were on their way home from school, were both seven years old. The girls said the man was young, had light hair, and was wearing a black and red waist length jacket.

crews are accompanied by jet fighter escorts when they fly over the remote mountains and jungle, some of the most rugged country in Southeast Asia.

The twin-engine Vigilantes, capable of twice the speed of sound, cross the coast over South Viet Nam, turn into Laos through the Laotian panhandle between Thailand and South Viet Nam, then head north and northwest to their target areas.

"For us it's a strange side of the war," Werner said. "So far none of us have been shot at, but we may look up tomorrow and see the MIGs coming in on us.

"It's hard to believe there is a war on the Plaine des Jarres, or in Viet Nam for that matter. The Plaine and the countryside in Laos and Viet Nam look so peaceful from the air."

Since the loss of several U.S. aircraft in the Plaine des Jarres region, the reconnaissance jets fly above the effective range of ground fire from small weapons.

The Vigilantes have powerful strobe lights mounted on their wings and also carry out night missions, trying to catch the movement of Communist troops and supplies toward battle areas in Laos and Viet Nam.

Lt. Cmdr. David R. Fall Jr., another Vigilante pilot, said night photography can be the most productive — and the most dangerous.

Fall and his photo-navigator, Lt. (jg) Stephen G. Ryan of Grand Rapids, Mich., have made repeated trips over the central Laos town of Tchepone, a Communist supply base.

"During the daytime it looks like a quiet town in Kansas," Fall said. "It certainly doesn't look like a fortress."

Night is the usual Communist time for moving men and materials to the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

arranged for some time this year.

The President also disclosed that he hopes to visit Western Europe and Latin America this year. White House officials said he is ready to accept an invitation from President Charles de Gaulle to visit France -- despite differences on Atlantic alliance policy between France and the United States. It is expected that arrangements will be worked out for Johnson to visit also a number of other European countries, including Britain, West Germany and Italy.

The President did not specify any occasion for a visit to Latin America. Officials said he presumably means to go to South America, and it is understood that there has been some talk among Western Hemisphere governments of having an inter-American summit conference in Brazil in the spring.

Johnson set his invitation to the Russans in the context of a policy of dealing in different ways with different Communist countries.

He said in the foreign policy section of his State of the Union message that during the last four years — the years of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations — no new nation has become Communist and "the unity of the Communist empire has begun to crumble." The last was an evident reference to the Soviet Union's continuing dispute with Communist China.

"There is no longer a single threat," the President said. "There are many. They differ in intensity and danger. They require different attitudes and different answers.

"With the Soviet Union we seek peaceful understandings that can lessen the danger to freedom.. . . . If we are to live together in peace we must come to know each other better."

Injuries Slight In Auto Mishap

A single - car accident early this morning resulted in injuries to one person, the state Patrol reported.

Ruben Contreras, 23, Ft. Carson, suffered contusions and abrasions at 3:30 a.m. today when his car left the road 10 miles south of Fountain.

Contreras was released at the scene but his car, a 1956 model, had $150 damage and was a total loss, according to the patrol.

Visiting Minister Here For Activities

A representative of the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses, located in Brooklyn, New York, Norman E. Walter will be visiting the Midway congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses for a special week of activity, according to Everett Pritts, presiding minister.

The purpose of Mr. Walter's visit is to organize the preaching work of Jehovah's Witnesses here in Colorado Springs, and to give assistance and counsel.

Besides his visit here in Colorado Springs, Walter is scheduled to visit 16 other congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses in southeast Coilorado. Over 1000 ministers in this area will be assisted by Walter in their personal ministry.

The highlight of the week's activity will be a public Bible talk at 3 p.m., Sunday, on the subject, "Do All Religions Lead To Eternal Life?" This will be presented by Walter.

A personal invitation was extended by Pritts to all residents of Colorado Springs to attend all meetings held at the local Kingdom Hall, 1703 N. Cooper Street, during the special week of activity.

Pipeline Would Benefit Region, Officials Say

such establishment had been made.

"Probably no determination for a terminal site will be made until approval of the project is granted by the Colorado Public Utilities Commission," he said.

The Company has applied for the permit to construct the pipeline and terminal in both Colorado Springs and Pueblo areas, and Jerry Mahoney, secretary of the utilities commission, has set a public hearing for Jan. 20 to take place at the commission's hearing room in the state services building in Denver.

The pipeline company has reported that once approval is granted it could have the line in operation in a six-month period after the start of construction.

Opposition to the project is expected to be made by trucking firms, the sole suppliers at present of this type of fuel to the areas.

The Turkish Cypriots have little more than small arms.

There is no lack of accurate intelligence on this ominous Russian weapons buildup. The arms are being transported by plane and freighter, and continous detailed intelligence reports are reaching White House, State Department and Pentagon authorities.

Illustrative is the latest regarding the Soviet freighter Nikolai Bourdenko, which arrived during the Christmas holiday carrying four tanks, 130 heavy trucks, and scores of crates of machineguns, rifles, small arms and ammunition.

This large shipment of battle gear was unloaded at Limassol, a port from which the so-called United Nations peace-keeping force is barred by Makarios.

INVITING RED ARMED MEDDLING

Significantly, soon after the Kremlin began its unhindered delivery of munitions to Makarios, it started pouring military equipment into Egypt and Algeria for transshipment to the leftist-led Congolese rebels.

Military intelligence authorities are firmly convinced there is a direct relation between these two war-breeding developments.

They contend that if President Johnson had sternly put his foot down and proclaimed determination to forcibly block, if necessary, a Soviet military build-up on strategic Cyprus, the so-called Congolese rebellion would not have erupted.

The President's failure to act decisively, it is maintained, was viewed by the Reds as a clear sign of "weakness" and an open invitation to meddle menacingly not only in Cyprus and the Congo, but throughout the turbulent Middle East and Africa, as they are doing increasingly.

That's why intelligence authorities are strongly warning of the urgent need to crack down on the Komars and flatly block their reaching Makarios.

Intelligence now has the gravest misgivings regarding him.

A Soviet KGB (secret police) official is definitely known to be a member of Makarios's staff. Also, Russian-speaking "technicians" have arrived in Cyprus, indicating that an advance group of Soviet military instructors may already be on the island.

Further, Makarios is displaying an increasingly pro-Communist and "anti-imperialist" alignment. Lately, he has issued a number of such statements, among them a vigorous support of the Congo rebels.

McGeorge Bundy, special White House foreign affairs adviser, has apparently been put in charge of formulating administration policy regarding Cyprus. The one-time Harvard dean, who was appointed to his job by the late President Kennedy, not only convenes all interagency meetings on this dynamite-loaded issue, but presides over them — with a tight rein.

A possible clue to the President's eventual decision concerning the Komar PT boats is Bundy's emphatic refusal to permit any discussion in these policy conferences on "contingency planning" — that is, preparations for possible forceful action.

Throughout the deliberations Bundy's only directive has been to continue obtaining intelligence regarding the Soviet weapons build-up and other developments on Cyprus.

RED LIMBO

Former Premier Khrushchev is in good health, restricted to his apartment and under constant surveillance, and is receiving the equivalent of an $11,000-a-year pension.

That's what Yugoslav President Tito told Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, during his recent Belgrade visit.

In talks with Foreign Relations committeemen, Fulbright is relating that Tito expressed no views on Khrushchev's final fate. He indicated he was in no position to comment on whether the one-time Soviet ruler would or wouldn't be tried.

But Tito had an emphatic opinion about one subject. He strongly urged Fulbright to advise President Johnson to "help us get rid of Tshombe in the Congo."

If Vice President-elect Hubert Humphrey is designated to preside over the Senate Democratic caucus, someone other than Floor Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., will have to propose it.

Following is Mansfield's explanation:

'I don't want to go through another fight like the one we had in 1961 when I proposed that Lyndon Johnson, then the Vice President, be named to preside over our caucus. There are still hard feelings about that. My motion was approved, but 17 senators voted against it, and I haven't forgotten that.

"Personally, I have no objection to Humphrey presiding at the caucuses. But I'm not going to take the lead in proposing that. Someone else is going to have to do it if it's going to be done."

The Vice President-elect is known to be very eager to assume this function—which President Johnson performed until he entered the White House. Close Senate associates of Humphrey are quietly taking soundings on his prospects, but they are still conjectural.

El Paso County Sends Freshmen To Legislature

Here is the lineup for the county:

In the House, three Republicans and two Democrats. The House is controlled this year by the Democrats, 43-22. The representatives are:

19th District — James S. La Haye, Democrat.

20th District — Harrie E. Hart, Republican.

21st District — Don Brinton, Democrat.

22nd District — Theodore R. Schubert, Republican.

23rd District — George E. Jackson, Republican.

Every one of them is new to the assembly. Hart had previous governmental experience as secretary to Gov. John A. Love. None of the others have previously held public office. All were elected in the November general election.

In the Senate, the county has two Republicans and one Democrat. The Republicans control the Senate 20-15. The senators are:

10th State Senators District—Lawrence Skiffington, Republican. He was not up for election in November. He has been in the Senate since 1955.

12th State Senators District—William O. Lennox, Republican.

Both Donlon and Lennox were elected to four-year terms in the fall election. This is the first time in public office for Donlon. Lennox served seven terms (14 years) in the House. He entered the House in 1950 with Skiffington, who moved up to the Senate after two House terms.

Of the five-man delegation that represented the county in the legislature in 1963 and 1964, two were defeated in the November election, one chose not to run, one (Lennox) was elected to the other house, and one (Skiffington) did not have to run.

The two defeated Republicans were Sen. Vernon Cheever, who lost to Donlon, and James A. Braden, who lost to La Haye. Cheever was the senior man in the Senate and dean of the El Paso delegation, and Braden was seeking election to a third term in the House.

The man who did not run was veteran Representative Norman Ohlson, Republican.

El Paso County received the three additional seats in the state assembly when the state was reapportioned in 1963 in accordance with a Constitutional Amendment adopted by the voters in 1962. That was ruled unconstitutional and so in hectic action last summer the state assembly twice more reapportioned the state to meet with the directive of the United States Supreme Court.

The reapportioning divided the counties into districts, which the Colorado Supreme Court has subsequently ruled is unconstitutional.

However all that comes out, the state did elect members to its assembly under the subdistricting plan which gave El Paso County five Representative Districts and three Senatorial Districts.

When the tickets were filled last summer, the Republicans fielded four new men and only veteran (Braden) in the House race and the Democrats had all beginners.

In the Senate race, the Republicans moved one man up (Lennox) and teamed a beginner with him. The Democrats had all new men.

When the three Democratic winners were announced, reporters had to go to the record books to find out when the county last had so many Democrats in the assembly — it was in the early 1930s.

Vandals Damage Car Parked in Driveway

Vandals did $37 damage to a car parked in the driveway of a local residence between 5:30 p.m. Sudnay and 8:50 a.m. Monday, police reported.

Vernon C. Pebley, 711 E. High St., told police someone had broken a window out of his car and had damaged two rear view mirrors that were mounted on the car's front fenders. Pebley said the car was parked in the driveway beside his house.

LBJ Calls for Excise Tax Cuts; Medicare

son said, will be spelled out in special messages over the next six weeks.

A health message will come first, on Thursday. Then education, next Tuesday; immigration, two days later; space and foreign aid, before the inauguration on Jan. 20.

The one real surprise was Johnson's hope, mentioned almost casually in an early paragraph, that the new leaders of the Soviet Union will "visit America so they can learn about this country at first hand."

There wasn't a ripple of applause at that. The loudest outburst came when the President vowed to keep this nation's 10-year-old pledge to keep on waging the fight in South Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, Johnson handed his democratic supporters a load of legislation heavy enough to burden them for months to come, and gave the GOP forces plenty of targets to shoot at as House and Senate squared away for the new session.

The President called for:

— A substantial excise tax cut this year. Officials said he means about $1.5 billion. His problem may be to prevent the eager Congress from voting something much bigger.

— Medical care for the aged under Social Security, and larger old age pensions. Snagged in last year's session-end jam, winners in 1965, although perhaps in modified form.

— A $1.5-billion education program including funds for public schools "serving low income families" and aid for pupils in both public and private schools. Johnson did not explain how he hopes to dodge the parochial school issue on which earlier aid plans have foundered.

— A doubling of this year's $784-million attack on poverty.

— Elimination of "every remaining obstacle to the right and opportunity to vote." This upset predictions that Johnson would not seek new civil rights legislation in this session. After the speech, Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., said he knows the President has plans for a new bill to clinch Negroes' voting rights.

— Streamlining of the tax-writing machinery of Congress, so that a quick, temporary income tax cut could be enacted if a recession threatened. Johnson emphasized that this was merely precautionary, since no recession looms; instead, all signs point to continued "flourishing of the economy," he said.

— Also, a massive attack on disease; a "regional recovery program;" extension of minimum wage coverage to two million or more workers; studies of high-speed rail transportation between cities; a nation-wide beautification and antipollution drive; an attack on big-city problems, starting with creation of a new Cabinet-rank department of housing and urban development — a proposal Congress has rejected repeatedly.

All this and much more will be done, Johnson promised, within a spending schedule that will keep the prosperity wave rolling and at the same time move the government closer to "a balanced budget in a balanced economy."

There was no promise that the fiscal 1966 budget, due to reach Congress in two weeks, will be held below $100 billion. Many legislators have indicated they will be disappointed if Johnson fails to whittle down the agency requests, which originally totaled $108.5 billion, to a level somewhere under the $100 billion mark.

The House and Senate Democratic leaders, who bear responsibility for seeing the program through, liked it.

"Attainable goals . . . which all Americans can understand and appreciate, said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. "I predict the achievements . . . will be monumental, said Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the House Democratic leader.

Key committee chairmen were brimming with optimism. "I'm of a mind to give him anything he wants, said Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., whose Government Operations Committee will handle housing and urban problems.

Fair Employment Ordinance Ruled Unconstitutional

tion for the Archdiocese of Omaha.

League of B'nai B'rith.

— The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

— The Omaha Central Labor Union.

— The Nebraska AFL-CIO.

— The United Packinghouse Workers.

The Nebraska high court in no way ruled in favor of or against the spirit of the FEP ordinance as it struck it down.

The court said that Omaha overstepped its bounds when it entered a field of law making that belongs to the state.

The court ruled that the state legislature has pre-empted the field of fair employment practices legislation and has not delegated its power to permit the city council of Omaha or any other city in Nebraska to legislate in that field.

In the opinion handed down by the court, it was stated:

"The power relating to labor relations and practices and civil rights lies in the state, and such matters are of state wide concern and not of local concern nor municipal government concern."

The action of the high court was not a surprise to the legal staff of the city.

The Omaha City Council adopted the now outlawed FEP ordinance in February 1962 on a 4-3 vote despite the advice of its own legal advisers who said at that time that the city did not have the authority to do so.

Deputy City Atty. Frederick A. Brown, in a memorandum sent to the city council before the vote on the ordinance said that the city "does not possess the power and authority to adopt an ordinance dealing with fair employment practices."

The ordinance aimed at preventing discrimination because of race, religion, color or creed by employers, employment agencies or labor unions.

It set up a Human Relations Board as an investigative arm and established fines up to $500 and-or jail sentences up to six months for persons convicted of violating the ordinance.

In August 1963, the criminal clause of the ordinance was ruled unconstitutional in a district court case. But District Judge John Murphy, who threw out the criminal section, held that the city had the right to set out unfair practices and appoint a Human Relations Board to consider complaints.

The ordinance made it unlawful for an employer of more than three persons, except nonprofit social clubs, fraternities, charitable, educational or religious groups from discriminating on the basis of race, religion, creed, color, national origin or ancestry.

In addition to ruling that the city had no right to write municipal codes dealing with FEP because that is a state function, the court pointed out also that at this time the state apparently does not have such a law on its books.

The high court ruling stated: "On three occasions the legislature of this state has refused to pass fair employment practices legislation.

"The action by the legislature is tantamount to a declaration by it of policy, that although it controls labor-management relations and employment relations, it does not, at least to the present time, desire to legislate with respect to discrimination because of race, creed, or colo in private employment."

Clifton Batchelder, president of the U.S. Book Co., who was elected to the state legislature in the general election in November. Nebraska is the only state in the union with only one house in its legislature.

Batchelder said he will oppose any efforts in the legislature to pass FEP legislation when the assembly meets.

The Civil Rights Law adopted last year by Congress provides for federal enforcement in states which do not have civil rights legislation.

Batchelder said, "I feel that's adequate. The taxpayers are paying already for FEP enforcement on the national level. I see no reason to diplicate it. It would mean additional people and additional payrolls.

John E. Tate Jr., executive vice president and secretary of the Midwest Employers Council said that the Supreme Court decision opinion agrees precisely with the briefs submitted in the Nebraska court.

"It is time that city officials paid attention to their own legal staff when it is asked for advice in these areas," he said.

He added, "I think it is most unfair for everybody concerned, including Negroes, that they have tried to stimulate feelings for law. If city government [illegible] it must operate within the confines and delineations of law."

Preston Declared Innocent of Murder Charge

I warned him not to squeeze me as the hammer was back on the gun and I could not hold it.

"He squeezed me and the gun went off. I smashed him in the face with my hook, (Preston only has one hand) and he chased me and knocked the light out of my hand. I said 'you'd better wait, the sheriff wants you,' and he said 'go to hell' and then drove off."

Deputy District Attorney Bob Russel read to the court the dead man's FBI record which listed several convictions for burglary and car theft. The district attorney's office also stated that although the defendant was charged with first degree murder he was innocent and that it was for his own protection under the double jeopardy laws that the trial was being held.

Testimony was also given by Deputy Sheriff Woodrow Littrell. Littrell said a pickup for the car containing Orin was put out and that it was found some time later with the suspect in it still living.

Orin was taken to the hospital where he died a few hours later.

Counsel for the defense Gordon Cooper then asked for a directed verdict of acquittal and the state confessed the motion. Judge G. Russell Miller then ordered the jury to bring in an acquittal.

$3.1 Million Pipeline Is Being Sought

Club Building.

Its main headquarters is listed as Tula, Okla.

A map of the tentative route of the pipeline indicates it would be slightly to the east of Interstate 25, but no exact locations are shown. The application does not claim the company actually owns the right of way or property for the terminals. It estimates a right of way cost of $185,600 and $188,100 for construction of a pumping station and booster pumps.

The application says that "adequate loading facilities will be provided at the Pueblo and Colorado Springs terminals."

It states that transportation of petroleum products via the pipeline would be cheaper than by present methods of transportation.

The application estimates the Colorado Springs area uses 4,420 barrels of gasoline daily and the Pueblo area 4,875, that Colorado Springs uses 540 barrels of distillate fuel oil and that the Pueblo area used 620 barrels.

The pipeline would have an initial capacity of 17,500 barrels a day, the application says, and this could be increased by additional pumping capacity.

Burglary Counts Filed Against Local Youths

Charges of burglary and conspiracy were filed aginst David Russell Strohm, 18, 620 W. Colorado Ave., and David Charles Jones, 19, 907 N. Corona St. in District Court Monday.

They are alleged to have broken into the Paint Supply Co. Inc., 113 E. Bijou St. Friday and conspired together to commit the felony.

According to a police report they are also involved in the burglaries of the Stewart Photo Service, 121 N. Tejon St., Nicholson's Studio, 117 N. Tejon St., and Blick's Sporting Goous Co., 119 N. Tejon St.

The pair were found hiding behind a screen door at whetston Shoes, 123 N. Tejon St. in the small hours of Jan. 1. The report said they told police officers they "were waiting for their girl friends."

Girls Tell Police That Man Exposed Himself

A man described as 25 to 30 years old exposed himself to two small girls at approximately 12 p.m. Monday in the 200 block of E. Mill Street, police reported.

Police said the girls, who were on their way home from school, were both seven years old. The girls said the man was young, had light hair, and was wearing a black and red waist length jacket.

crews are accompanied by jet fighter escorts when they fly over the remote mountains and jungle, some of the most rugged country in Southeast Asia.

The twin-engine Vigilantes, capable of twice the speed of sound, cross the coast over South Viet Nam, turn into Laos through the Laotian panhandle between Thailand and South Viet Nam, then head north and northwest to their target areas.

"For us it's a strange side of the war," Werner said. "So far none of us have been shot at, but we may look up tomorrow and see the MIGs coming in on us.

"It's hard to believe there is a war on the Plaine des Jarres, or in Viet Nam for that matter. The Plaine and the countryside in Laos and Viet Nam look so peaceful from the air."

Since the loss of several U.S. aircraft in the Plaine des Jarres region, the reconnaissance jets fly above the effective range of ground fire from small weapons.

The Vigilantes have powerful strobe lights mounted on their wings and also carry out night missions, trying to catch the movement of Communist troops and supplies toward battle areas in Laos and Viet Nam.

Lt. Cmdr. David R. Fall Jr., another Vigilante pilot, said night photography can be the most productive — and the most dangerous.

Fall and his photo-navigator, Lt. (jg) Stephen G. Ryan of Grand Rapids, Mich., have made repeated trips over the central Laos town of Tchepone, a Communist supply base.

"During the daytime it looks like a quiet town in Kansas," Fall said. "It certainly doesn't look like a fortress."

Night is the usual Communist time for moving men and materials to the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

It is expected that arrangements will be worked out for Johnson to visit also a number of other European countries, including Britain, West Germany and Italy.

The President did not specify any occasion for a visit to Latin America. Officials said he presumably means to go to South America, and it is understood that there has been some talk among Western Hemisphere governments of having an inter-American summit conference in Brazil in the spring.

Johnson set his invitation to the Russans in the context of a policy of dealing in different ways with different Communist countries.

He said in the foreign policy section of his State of the Union message that during the last four years — the years of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations — no new nation has become Communist and "the unity of the Communist empire has begun to crumble." The last was an evident reference to the Soviet Union's continuing dispute with Communist China.

"There is no longer a single threat," the President said. "There are many. They differ in intensity and danger. They require different attitudes and different answers.

"With the Soviet Union we seek peaceful understandings that can lessen the danger to freedom.. . . . If we are to live together in peace we must come to know each other better."

Injuries Slight In Auto Mishap

A single - car accident early this morning resulted in injuries to one person, the state Patrol reported.

Ruben Contreras, 23, Ft. Carson, suffered contusions and abrasions at 3:30 a.m. today when his car left the road 10 miles south of Fountain.

Contreras was released at the scene but his car, a 1956 model, had $150 damage and was a total loss, according to the patrol.

Visiting Minister Here For Activities

A representative of the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses, located in Brooklyn, New York, Norman E. Walter will be visiting the Midway congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses for a special week of activity, according to Everett Pritts, presiding minister.

The purpose of Mr. Walter's visit is to organize the preaching work of Jehovah's Witnesses here in Colorado Springs, and to give assistance and counsel.

Besides his visit here in Colorado Springs, Walter is scheduled to visit 16 other congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses in southeast Coilorado. Over 1000 ministers in this area will be assisted by Walter in their personal ministry.

The highlight of the week's activity will be a public Bible talk at 3 p.m., Sunday, on the subject, "Do All Religions Lead To Eternal Life?" This will be presented by Walter.

A personal invitation was extended by Pritts to all residents of Colorado Springs to attend all meetings held at the local Kingdom Hall, 1703 N. Cooper Street, during the special week of activity.

Pipeline Would Benefit Region, Officials Say

such establishment had been made.

"Probably no determination for a terminal site will be made until approval of the project is granted by the Colorado Public Utilities Commission," he said.

The Company has applied for the permit to construct the pipeline and terminal in both Colorado Springs and Pueblo areas, and Jerry Mahoney, secretary of the utilities commission, has set a public hearing for Jan. 20 to take place at the commission's hearing room in the state services building in Denver.

The pipeline company has reported that once approval is granted it could have the line in operation in a six-month period after the start of construction.

Opposition to the project is expected to be made by trucking firms, the sole suppliers at present of this type of fuel to the areas.

The Turkish Cypriots have little more than small arms.

There is no lack of accurate intelligence on this ominous Russian weapons buildup. The arms are being transported by plane and freighter, and continous detailed intelligence reports are reaching White House, State Department and Pentagon authorities.

Illustrative is the latest regarding the Soviet freighter Nikolai Bourdenko, which arrived during the Christmas holiday carrying four tanks, 130 heavy trucks, and scores of crates of machineguns, rifles, small arms and ammunition.

This large shipment of battle gear was unloaded at Limassol, a port from which the so-called United Nations peacekeeping force is barred by Makarios.

INVITING RED ARMED MEDDLING

Significantly, soon after the Kremlin began its unhindered delivery of munitions to Makarios, it started pouring military equipment into Egypt and Algeria for transshipment to the leftist-led Congolese rebels.

Military intelligence authorities are firmly convinced there is a direct relation between these two war-breeding developments.

They contend that if President Johnson had sternly put his foot down and proclaimed determination to forcibly block, if necessary, a Soviet military buildup on strategic Cyprus, the so-called Congolese rebellion would not have erupted.

The President's failure to act decisively, it is maintained, was viewed by the Reds as a clear sign of "weakness" and an open invitation to meddle menacingly not only in Cyprus and the Congo, but throughout the turbulent Middle East and Africa, as they are doing increasingly.

That's why intelligence authorities are strongly warning of the urgent need to crack down on the Komars and flatly block their reaching Makarios.

Intelligence now has the gravest misgivings regarding him.

A Soviet KGB (secret police) official is definitely known to be a member of Makarios's staff. Also, Russian-speaking "technicians" have arrived in Cyprus, indicating that an advance group of Soviet military instructors may already be on the island.

Further, Makarios is displaying an increasingly pro-Communist and "anti-imperialist" alignment. Lately, he has issued a number of such statements, among them a vigorous support of the Congo rebels.

McGeorge Bundy, special White House foreign affairs adviser, has apparently been put in charge of formulating administration policy regarding Cyprus. The one-time Harvard dean, who was appointed to his job by the late President Kennedy, not only convenes all interagency meetings on this dynamite-loaded issue, but presides over them — with a tight rein.

A possible clue to the President's eventual decision concerning the Komar PT boats is Bundy's emphatic refusal to permit any discussion in these policy conferences on "contingency planning" — that is, preparations for possible forceful action.

Throughout the deliberations Bundy's only directive has been to continue obtaining intelligence regarding the Soviet weapons build-up and other developments on Cyprus.

RED LIMBO

Former Premier Khrushchev is in good health, restricted to his apartment and under constant surveillance, and is receiving the equivalent of an $11,000-a-year pension.

That's what Yugoslav President Tito told Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, during his recent Belgrade visit.

In talks with Foreign Relations committeemen, Fulbright is relating that Tito expressed no views on Khrushchev's final fate. He indicated he was in no position to comment on whether the one-time Soviet ruler would or wouldn't be tried.

But Tito had an emphatic opinion about one subject. He strongly urged Fulbright to advise President Johnson to "help us get rid of Tshombe in the Congo."

If Vice President-elect Hubert Humphrey is designated to preside over the Senate Democratic caucus, someone other than Floor Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., will have to propose it.

That's what he is telling inquiring Democratic senators. Following is Mansfield's explanation:

'I don't want to go through another fight like the one we had in 1961 when I proposed that Lyndon Johnson, then the Vice President, be named to preside over our caucus. There are still hard feelings about that. My motion was approved, but 17 senators voted against it, and I haven't forgotten that.

"Personally, I have no objection to Humphrey presiding at the caucuses. But I'm not going to take the lead in proposing that. Someone else is going to have to do it if it's going to be done."

The Vice President-elect is known to be very eager to assume this function—which President Johnson performed until he entered the White House. Close Senate associates of Humphrey are quietly taking soundings on his prospects, but they are still conjectural.

El Paso County Sends Freshmen To Legislature

miracle answers for the problem.

Here is the lineup for the county:

In the House, three Republicans and two Democrats. The House is controlled this year by the Democrats, 43-22. The representatives are:

19th District — James S. La Haye, Democrat.

20th District — Harrie E. Hart, Republican.

21st District — Don Brinton, Democrat.

22nd District — Theodore R. Schubert, Republican.

23rd District — George E. Jackson, Republican.

Every one of them is new to the assembly. Hart had previous governmental experience as secretary to Gov. John A. Love. None of the others have previously held public office. All were elected in the November general election.

In the Senate, the county has two Republicans and one Democrat. The Republicans control the Senate 20-15. The senators are:

10th State Senators District—Lawrence Skiffington, Republican. He was not up for election in November. He has been in the Senate since 1955.

11th State Senators District — John J. Donlon, Democrat.

Both Donlon and Lennox were elected to four-year terms in the fall election. This is the first time in public office for Donlon. Lennox served seven terms (14 years) in the House. He entered the House in 1950 with Skiffington, who moved up to the Senate after two House terms.

Of the five-man delegation that represented the county in the legislature in 1963 and 1964, two were defeated in the November election, one chose not to run, one (Lennox) was elected to the other house, and one (Skiffington) did not have to run.

The two defeated Republicans were Sen. Vernon Cheever, who lost to Donlon, and James A. Braden, who lost to La Haye. Cheever was the senior man in the Senate and dean of the El Paso delegation, and Braden was seeking election to a third term in the House.

The man who did not run was veteran Representative Norman Ohlson, Republican.

El Paso County received the three additional seats in the state assembly when the state was reapportioned in 1963 in accordance with a Constitutional Amendment adopted by the voters in 1962. That was ruled unconstitutional and so in hectic action last summer the state assembly twice more reapportioned the state to meet with the directive of the United States Supreme Court.

The reapportioning divided the counties into districts, which the Colorado Supreme Court has subsequently ruled is unconstitutional.

However all that comes out, the state did elect members to its assembly under the subdistricting plan which gave El Paso County five Representative Districts and three Senatorial Districts.

When the tickets were filled last summer, the Republicans fielded four new men and only veteran (Braden) in the House race and the Democrats had all beginners.

In the Senate race, the Republicans moved one man up (Lennox) and teamed a beginner with him. The Democrats had all new men.

When the three Democratic winners were announced, reporters had to go to the record books to find out when the county last had any Democrats in the assembly — it was in the early 1930s.

LBJ Calls for Excise Tax Cuts; Medicare

son said, will be spelled out in special messages over the next six weeks.

A health message will come first, on Thursday. Then education, next Tuesday; immigration, two days later; space and foreign aid, before the inauguration on Jan. 20.

The one real surprise was Johnson's hope, mentioned almost casually in an early paragraph, that the new leaders of the Soviet Union will "visit America so they can learn about this country at first hand."

There wasn't a ripple of applause at that. The loudest outburst came when the President vowed to keep this nation's 10-year-old pledge to keep on waging the fight in South Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, Johnson handed his democratic supporters a load of legislation heavy enough to burden them for months to come, and gave the GOP forces plenty of targets to shoot at as House and Senate squared away for the new session.

The President called for:

— A substantial excise tax cut this year. Officials said he means about $1.5 billion. His problem may be to prevent the eager Congress from voting something much bigger.

— Medical care for the aged under Social Security, and larger old age pensions. Snagged in last year's session-end jam, winners in 1965, although perhaps in modified form.

— A $1.5-billion education program including funds for public schools "serving low income families" and aid for pupils in both public and private schools. Johnson did not explain how he hopes to dodge the parochial school issue on which earlier aid plans have foundered.

— A doubling of this year's $784-million attack on poverty.

— Elimination of "every remaining obstacle to the right and opportunity to vote." This upset predictions that Johnson would not seek new civil rights legislation in this session. After the speech, Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., said he knows the President has plans for a new bill to clinch Negroes' voting rights.

— Streamlining of the tax-writing machinery of Congress, so that a quick, temporary income tax cut could be enacted if a recession threatened. Johnson emphasized that this was merely precautionary, since no recession looms; instead, all signs point to continued "flourishing of the economy," he said.

— Also, a massive attack on disease; a "regional recovery program;" extension of minimum wage coverage to two million more workers; studies of high-speed rail transportation between cities; a nation-wide beautification and antipollution drive; an attack on big-city problems, starting with creation of a new Cabinet-rank department of housing and urban development — a proposal Congress has rejected repeatedly.

All this and much more will be done, Johnson promised, within a spending schedule that will keep the prosperity wave rolling and at the same time move the government closer to "a balanced budget in a balanced economy."

There was no promise that the fiscal 1966 budget, due to reach Congress in two weeks, will be held below $100 billion. Many legislators have indicated they will be disappointed if Johnson fails to whittle down the agency requests, which originally totaled $108.5 billion, to a level somewhere under the $100 billion mark.

The House and Senate Democratic leaders, who bear responsibility for seeing the program through, liked it.

"Attainable goals . . . which all Americans can understand and appreciate, said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. "I predict the achievements . . . will be monumental, said Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the House Democratic leader.

Key committee chairmen were brimming with optimism. "I think were on a mind to give him anything he wants, said Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., whose Government Operations Committee will handle housing and urban problems.

Fair Employment Ordinance Ruled Unconstitutional

tion for the Archdiocese of Omaha.

League of B'nai B'rith.

— The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

— The Omaha Central Labor Union.

— The Nebraska AFL-CIO.

— The United Packinghouse Workers.

The Nebraska high court in no way ruled in favor of or against the spirit of the FEP ordinance as it struck it down.

The courst said that Omaha overstepped its bounds when it entered a field of law making that belongs to the state.

The court ruled that the state legislature has pre-empted the field of fair employment practices legislation and has not delegated its power to permit the city council of Omaha or any other city in Nebraska to legislate in that field.

In the opinion handed down by the court, it was stated:

"The power relating to labor relations and practices and civil rights lies in the state, and such matters are of state wide concern and not of local concern nor municipal government concern."

The action of the high court was not a surprise to the legal staff of the city.

The Omaha City Council adopted the now outlawed FEP ordinance in February 1962 on a 4-3 vote despite the advice of its own legal advisers who said at that time that the city did not have the authority to do so.

Deputy City Atty. Frederick A. Brown, in a memorandum sent to the city council before the vote on the ordinance said that the city "does not possess the power and authority to adopt an ordinance dealing with fair employment practices."

The ordinance aimed at preventing discrimination because of race, religions, color or creed by employers, employment agencies or labor unions.

It set up a Human Relations Board as an investigative arm and established fines up to $500 and-or jail sentences up to six months for persons convicted of violating the ordinance.

In August 1963, the criminal clause of the ordinance was ruled unconstitutional in a district court decision. But District Judge John Murphy, who threw out the criminal section, held that the city had the authority to set out unfair practices and appoint a Human Relations Board to consider complaints.

The ordinance made it unlawful for an employer of more than three persons, except nonprofit social clubs, fraternities, charitable, educational or religious groups from discriminating on the basis of race, religious creed, color, national origin or ancestry.

In addition to ruling that the city had no right to write municipal codes dealing with FEP because that is a state function, the court pointed out also that at this time the state apparently does not want such a law on its books.

The high court ruling stated:

"On three occasions the legislature of this state has refused to pass fair employment practices legislation.

"The action by the legisla ture is tantamount to a declaration by it that, although it controls labor-management relations and employment relations, it does not, at least to the present time, desire to legislate with respect to discrimination because of race, creed, or colo in private employment."

Clifton Batchelder, president of the U.S. Book Co., was elected to the state legislature in the general election in November. Nebraska is the only state in the union with only one house in its legislature.

Batchelder said he will oppose any efforts in the legislature to pass FEP legislation when the assembly meets.

The Civil Rights Law adopted last year by Congress provides for federal enforcement in states which don't have civil rights legislation.

Batchelder said, "I feel that's adequate. The taxpayers are paying anyway for FEP enforcement on the national level. I see no reason to diplicate it. It would mean additional people and additional payrolls.

John E. Tate Jr., executive vice presidence and secretary of the Midwest Employers Council said that the Supreme Court decision opinion agrees precisely with the briefs submitted in opposition to the ordinance.

"It is time that city officials paid attention to their own legal staff when it is asked for advice in these areas," he said.

He added, "I think it is most unfair for everybody concerned, including Negroes, that they have tried to substitute feelings for law. If city government itself is to have respect, it must operate within the confines and delineations of law."

WORRY CLINIC

Clara is like millions of women WHO FEAR THE MENOE. But they often are guilty of using that bugaboo as a red herring to disguise their indolence about dieting. Girls, you can't feel like a sports roadster with the chassis of a truck! So study this case and send for the Dieting Booklet below.

CASE U-473: Clara G., aged 39, is moody and despondent.

"Dr. Crane," she lamented, "I feel old and on the shelf.

"So I sit around the house by the hour and cry my eyes out.

"My husband then gets cross and scolds me, so that makes me feel even worse.

"Am I just having the 'change usual?

"What can I do to throw off of life' a little earlier than these fits of the blues?"

"You can't be active and feel blue," runs an axiom of modern psychiatry.

So get going!

Make an agenda of your daily duties so you can increase your output of household chores.

Then, if you have surplus time, develop some hobbies to occupy your salvaged time.

But Clara is like millions of women who have added too much poundage since their wedding day.

For Clara now tips the scales at 168, though she is only 5' 4" and small boned.

"Clara," I replied, "you can't feel like a sports roadster with the chassis of a truck!"

Obviously, that was blunt and shocking, but when we doctors are dealing with weeping patients who are almost hysterical, a shock may often snap them out of their self-pity.

"You probably were slender and quite pretty when you were a bride, weren't you?" I added.

"How much did you weigh then?"

And she admitted that she boasted a weight of only 118 at that time, which means she has added an extra 50 pounds.

It is thus nostalgia (homesickness) for our teen-age thrills that causes much of the upset in women (and men) after the age of 40.

But we can still feel young and also look more like a teenager if we just restore our bodily chassis to its youthful streamlined shape.

For the sexual menopause should not prevent a woman from being a thrilling and thrillable wife, so will you women PLEASE face up to reality?

Quit passing the buck to your menopause! Instead, start looking at your waistline.

For when a woman's waistline equals her bust measurement, she has the appearance of a good old motherly soul but not that of a siren!

And the underlying craving of menopausal females is to appear like a seductive siren though they are fat and forty!

Wives, do you waddle like a walrus? If your husband tries to revive some of the courtship emotions that have long been in cold storage, and thus pulls you down upon his knee, do you feel like a hippo?

If he takes you to a dance and starts to steer you across the ballroom floor, does he find that he is cavorting with an elephant?

Send for my medical booklet "How to Lose 10 Lbs. in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents and banish your menopausal blues!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Western Public Land Laws to Be Put Into Effect

By JOHN KAMPS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steps are being taken to implement potentially historic laws affecting public lands of the West.

The steps were outlined in an interview by John A. Carver Jr., who recently was appointed to the No. 2 post in the Interior Department. The Idahoan was promoted to undersecretary from assistant secretary in charge of public lands.

Carver described as extremely important and most significant three 1964 laws which call for a study of public land laws, classification of public lands for multiple use and for the sale of surplus lands.

Moves to implement the bill authorizing a $4 million,, 4-year review of land laws include a $300,000 appropriation to get started and the appointment of Senate and House members to the commission which will do the job.

Presidential appointment of public members of the commission is expected soon. Within days after this, senior congressional members are expected to call a meeting of the commission to select a chairman and appoint a staff director, Carver said.

Senior members are Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., chairmen of Interior Committee which handle public land legislation.

When the commission has been created, Carver said, Liaison officers from the Interior, Agriculture and Army departments will be picked to work with the commission.

Carver said Interior officials worked overtime last week on proposed criteria to be circulated in the West for use in the classification of lands under the multiple use bill.

Hearings will be held before the criteria are approved, Carver added.

Regulations have been devised for the sale of surplus federal lands for industrial, residential, recreation and other uses, Carver said. The department is awaiting proposals from space-cramped cities and counties.

Carver said that Congress "has wisely done something really statesmanlike" by calling for a comprehensive modernization of archaic land laws "while at the same time permitting us to do our day-to-day work . . . trying to administer the lands to get maximum use, benefits and conservation."

The undersecretary said the review commission bill provides a real opportunity for improving the handling of public lands. Members of Congress on the commission will have a stake in any legislation to be offered on the recommendation of the commission, he said.

Changes also will be made in rules and regulations followed by government officials in the management of public lands. These should lessen future criticism by land users of actions by federal officials. Bureau of Land Management officials have been targets of considerable criticism.

"Like in paying taxes," Carver said, "it's not so much the laws that the people object to, but rather it's the way they are administered."

If rules and regulations—and the criteria on which they are based—can be devised with the consent of the users, there will be fewer complaints that officials are arbitrary, he added.

The new laws spell out procedures for the making of regulations governing the classification of lands and their uses. This will tighten up on changes in classification and withdrawal of lands from public use or for special use, according to Carver.

"The government should only do with land what the regulations say it has the right to do," he said. "We will say that we think this is a public purpose for which land should be used.

"Then if the people think that this is good, we will do it and we won't be called arbitrary or capricious," he added.

Steven Crumpler Comes in Twos

HOUSTON (UPI) — "Steven Crumpler" is not exactly a name you would find repeated often in any directory. But Mrs. Leone Hurlburt was on her job one day as kindergarten teacher at Park Place Elementary School when a school employe entered with a new student—Steven Crumpler.

Earlier Marriages 'Medical Problem'

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Health Department feels the trend toward earlier marriages has created "a real medical problem."

Johnson Turns Attention to Special Message

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson turned his attention today to the preparation of special messages to Congress asking for a big new education program, a substantial cut in excise taxes, expanded efforts to fight poverty and disease and new civil rights legislation.

All these items — plus a suprise bid for an American visit by the new leaders of the Soviet Union — were dealt with in broad terms Monday night in Johnsons State of the Union message to Congress and the nation.

Now comes work on detailed follow-up messages, the first of which, this Thursday, will spell out Johnson's call for "a massive attack on crippling and killing diseases.

Normally, presidents wait until after Inauguration Day to start dispatching special messages. White House associates said Johnson wants the legislators to get an early start on his many-sided programs.

The State of the Union message urged this as the time to give increased attention to problems at home. But it dealt, too, with a suggestion that leaders of the Soviet Union visit the United States. And Johnson slipped in announcements that he wants to travel to Europe and Latin America this year.

For Clara now tips the scales at 168, though she is only 5' 4" and small boned.

"Clara," I replied, "you can't feel like a sports roadster with the chassis of a truck!"

Obviously, that was blunt and shocking, but when we doctors are dealing with weeping patients who are almost hysterical, a shock may often snap them out of their self-pity.

"You probably were slender and quite pretty when you were a bride, weren't you?" I added.

"How much did you weigh then?"

And she admitted that she boasted a weight of only 118 at that time, which means she has added an extra 50 pounds.

One of the chief causes of menopausal upsets is this fear of losing one's youth.

It is thus nostalgia (homesickness) for our teen-age thrills that causes much of the upset in women (and men) after the age of 40.

But we can still feel young and also look more like a teenager if we just restore our bodily chassis to its youthful streamlined shape.

For the sexual menopause should not prevent a woman from being a thrilling and thrillable wife, so will you women PLEASE face up to reality?

Quit passing the buck to your menopause! Instead, start looking at your waistline.

For when a woman's waistline equals her bust measurement, she has the appearance of a good old motherly soul but not that of a siren!

And the underlying craving of menopausal females is to appear like a seductive siren though they are fat and forty!

Wives, do you waddle like a walrus? If your husband tries to revive some of the courtship emotions that have long been in cold storage, and thus pulls you down upon his knee, do you feel like a hippo?

Western Public Land Laws to Be Put Into Effect

By JOHN KAMPS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steps are being taken to implement potentially historic laws affecting public lands of the West.

The steps were outlined in an interview by John A. Carver Jr., who recently was appointed to the No. 2 post in the Interior Department. The Idahoan was promoted to undersecretary from assistant secretary in charge of public lands.

Carver described as extremely important and most significant three 1964 laws which call for a study of public land laws, classification of public lands for multiple use and for the sale of surplus lands.

Moves to implement the bill authorizing a $4 million,, 4-year review of land laws include a $300,000 appropriation to get started and the appointment of Senate and House members to the commission which will do the job.

Presidential appointment of public members of the commission is expected soon. Within days after this, senior congressional members are expected to call a meeting of the commission to select a chairman and appoint a staff director, Carver said.

Senior members are Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., chairmen of Interior Committee which handle public land legislation.

When the commission has been created, Carver said, Liaison officers from the Interior, Agriculture and Army departments will be picked to work with the commission.

Carver said Interior officials worked overtime last week on proposed criteria to be circulated in the West for use in the classification of lands under the multiple use bill.

Hearings will be held before the criteria are approved, Carver added.

Regulations have been devised for the sale of surplus federal lands for industrial, residential, recreation and other uses, Carver said. The department is awaiting proposals from space-cramped cities and counties.

Carver said that Congress "has wisely done something really statesmanlike" by calling for a comprehensive modernization of archaic land laws "while at the same time permitting us to do our day-to-day work . . . trying to administer the lands to get maximum use, benefits and conservation."

The undersecretary said the review commission bill provides a real opportunity for improving the handling of public lands. Members of Congress on the commission will have a stake in any legislation to be offered on the recommendation of the commission, he said.

Changes also will be made in rules and regulations followed by government officials in the management of public lands. These should lessen future criticism by land users of actions by federal officials. Bureau of Land Management officials have been targets of considerable criticism.

"Like in paying taxes," Carver said, "it's not so much the laws that the people object to, but rather it's the way they are administered."

If rules and regulations—and the criteria on which they are based—can be devised with the consent of the users, there will be fewer complaints that officials are arbitrary, he added.

The new laws spell out procedures for the making of regulations governing the classification of lands and their uses. This will tighten up on changes in classification and withdrawal of lands from public use or for special use, according to Carver.

"The government should only do with land what the regulations say it has the right to do," he said. "We will say that we think this is a public purpose for which land should be used.

"Then if the people think that this is good, we will do it and we won't be called arbitrary or capricious," he added.

HOUSTON (UPI) — "Steven Crumpler" is not exactly a name you would find repeated often in any directory. But Mrs. Leone Hurlburt was on her job one day as kindergarten teacher at Park Place Elementary School when a school employe entered with a new student—Steven Crumpler.

Earlier Marriages 'Medical Problem'

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Health Department feels the trend toward earlier marriages has created "a real medical problem."

"The vast majority of first babies are now born to women still in their teens," said a health department spokesman. The trouble, he said, is that teen-age girls have the "poorest nutritional status of any group in our society, with the possible exception of the very elderly."

Johnson Turns Attention to Special Message

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson turned his attention today to the preparation of special messages to Congress asking for a big new education program, a substantial cut in excise taxes, expanded efforts to fight poverty and disease and new civil rights legislation.

All these items — plus a suprise bid for an American visit by the new leaders of the Soviet Union — were dealt with in broad terms Monday night in Johnsons State of the Union message to Congress and the nation.

Now comes work on detailed follow-up messages, the first of which, this Thursday, will spell out Johnson's call for "a massive attack on crippling and killing diseases.

Normally, presidents wait until after Inauguration Day to start dispatching special messages. White House associates said Johnson wants the legislators to get an early start on his many-sided programs.

The State of the Union message urged this as the time to give increased attention to problems at home. But it dealt, too, with a suggestion that leaders of the Soviet Union visit the United States. And Johnson slipped in announcements that he wants to travel to Europe and Latin America this year.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

No Reason for Medicare

While some still clamor for Medicare as a part of the Social Security system administered by the government, the figures being put together concerning voluntary health coverage by private insurance firms in this country provide impressive evidence that no such coverage is required at all.

We have, as you know, something close to 190 million people in the nation, including babes in arms. Did you know that private and voluntary health insurance programs, and pre-paid medical programs, now protect 145 million Americans? This is 77 per cent of the total population.

The leaders in this field are the Blue Cross and Blue Shield agencies, which today have policies with more than 55 million persons, better than one third of all those covered, and more than one fourth of the total population of the nation.

The charge is often made that this coverage simply doesn't protect the elderly, the senior citizen, who does require special medical consideration. The charge rests upon a lack of information.

Today, some 4.5 million people above the age of 65 have coverage with Blue Shield. And there are many other plans and programs in use which are also called upon by the people above the age of 65. Since 1951, the Blue Shield program has had an increase of 350 per cent among the elderly taking out pre-paid protection policies. If the government will hold off for a little while longer, it is entirely within reasonable expectation that the number of persons of advanced age who secure this coverage or similar coverage with other agencies, will increase even above its present high mark.

And we are delighted to note that Blue Shield and Blue Cross, unlike certain other firms which seem too timid to do so, are coming out openly in opposition to any further encroachment in the field of medicine by the government.

There is a popular fallacy that Blue Shield coverage is not available for elderly people except on a group basis. That is, when the older person retires and leaves his place of employment, he must, of necessity, drop his Blue Cross or Blue Shield coverage. This is not the case.

In 1959 Blue Shield had only 10 plans that could be used by individuals without age limit. But today there are some 74 Blue Shield plans available to the elderly for individual, non-group coverage without age limit.

We don't want this editorial to sound like a commercial message from Blue Shield. But it is important for people to know that private and voluntary coverage in the health area is possible for people regardless of their age. Further, this coverage is extensive enough so that it can include full cost protection.

It is true, of course, that a person can obtain partial coverage for less money than he would have to pay for full coverage. The fact remains, however, that full coverage is offered; even when it is not taken, the coverage covers the major costs which are always the most serious drain that can descend upon a person during a time of medical crisis.

Against this encouraging and constructive picture, do you know what would happen if the government adopted Medicare in full? It would mean that many of these voluntarily paid-for programs would be cancelled in favor of government coverage. This would weaken the ability of the free market agencies to do their best job. It might conceivably raise their rates, making it necessary for some additional people to cancel their own voluntry programs.

The final result would be a gradual shifting away from voluntary and market place insurance, with the government getting a bigger and bigger share. But what would that mean? It would mean increasing taxation all the way around. Persons not able to afford insurance coverage for themselves would be coerced into paying for the insurance coverage of others. We would become more and more dependent on the state and less independent and far less able to do for ourselves.

Medicare is nothing but a political boondoggle. It is far too costly to consider and, on the strength of the evidence, isn't needed at all.

Question Box

Question No. 634: "Would it retard the trend toward the loss of more and more of our individual liberty and responsibility if political votes were not secret? If so, why?"

Answer: It is hard to see why well informed individuals who do not understand what causes material and spiritual development or deterioration should be given a secret way of voting to eat up the seed corn and lose their own self-respect and responsibility and be able to cover up their acts.

Remember the Great Teacher said, "Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil. But he that doeth good cometh to the light that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God."

Madison in the Federalist Papers wrote, "such democracies have ever been spectacles of turbulence and contention, have ever been found incompatible with personal security or the rights of property and have in general been as short in their lives as they have been violent in their deaths."

Of course if people believed in individual responsibility and knew what their responsibility is the secret ballot would be all right. But when the youth of the land are grabbed in their formative period of life and indoctrinated by the state to believe that the state has a right to do things that no individual has a moral right to do, if we use the Human Relations Commandments as a guide, then it is only a question of time until the man who is without foresight votes to eat up the seed corn which is a form of immorality and the whole structure of the government will go to pieces.

It seems that those nations who have adopted the secret ballot such as Australia in 1956, England in 1700, the United States in 1844 and France in 1914, have all, since the secret ballot, gone more and more socialistic and have deprived the individual of his right to make moral decisions.

Certainly the confusion we are in today indicates that something is wrong. One party suggests that individuals vote in proportion to the taxes they pay just as a corporation votes according to what they put into the corporation, and a corporation is an open ballot method. This would be a step in the right direction. Any stockholder can find out how the other party votes. If it isn't operated that way, one should not own stock in it.

It seems that if men do not have the courage of their convictions and are not willing to try to defend them, they should not be given the power to vote secretly about something they do not understand.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

Too Proud

Civil Disobedience

Let us discuss tactics.

The difficulty here is to keep one's mind on the tactical procedure while shutting out the objective involved.

It has been our observation that in the past twenty or more years, there is a certain tactic that has been employed in a most successful way. The tactic has usually been employed for the wrong reasons; but as a device to accomplish an objective, it is far superior to tactics arrayed against it.

We can think off-hand of four instances in which the tactic has been successfully used; once in India, thrice in the United States. The tactic to which reference is made is called "civil disobedience."

Civil disobedience, as a device, was introduced in this nation on several occasions, but the first massive effort in which it was successfully used was invoked by labor union bosses. Around the turn of the century, mass demonstration, mass picketing, parades and other public display devices were employed by workers in a wild orgy of abuse conjured up against capitalists, industrialists and the police.

Government was invoked again and again to put down these riots. Bloodshed not infrequently ensued. But, as a tactic, civil disobedience proved to be far more effective than police methods. The labor bosses got their way to a large degree, and today are making a fair bid to seize total control of the government and run things their own way.

In this instance, the objective of the union bosses was in error, based upon economic ignorance, greed and selfishness. But the tactic, which is what we are discussing, was superior to all law-enforcement procedures arrayed against the dissenters.

Again, toward the end of World War I, and beyond, the ladies practiced civil disobedience on a wide scale and managed to obtain woman suffrage. They did so by disregarding the existing laws, staging mass demonstrations and appeals, and not a few of them went to jail for their pains. But they won their point. Whether their objective was worthy of their steel is beside the point. Their tactic was superior and won the argument.

In the 1930's in India, a great mystic arose who, from an economic point of view, was a socialist. But, he adopted civil disobedience as his modus operandi and reduced the British government to impotence and frustration.

The leader was Mahatma Gandhi. His objectives were in error, but his methods were infinitely superior to those arrayed against him.

Only recently in this nation we have seen another demonstration of the superiority of civil disobedience as a modus. The Negroes of the nation, massing behind the leadership of men like Martin Luther King, have managed to get the Civil Rights Law passed. The law is in error. But the tactic employed was infinitely superior to all the force arrayed against them. Once more by public protest, by mass demonstration, by picketing and by activities tinged with disregard of law, the demonstrators have won a major victory.

Now it happens that we believe in an orderly world. We cannot favor riot and a disregard of the rights and properties of others. But we must concede on the basis of any kind of objective criteria employed, that civil disobedience, as a tactic, was superior to law enforcement as practiced by governments in each of the instant cases to which reference is made.

Further, a more detailed examination of history demonstrates again and again that civil disobedience has been employed with great success since the days of Martin Luther, in Germany, and not excluding the massive civil disobedience practiced in this country by our founders, who defied the law of Britain in an effort to avoid taxes which, to them, were onerous and unjust.

Thus, we might sum up the situation this way. Those who believe in some particular objective sufficiently to risk public display and popular disapproval, have a way of winning their point.

Quite recently, this was demonstrated with dramatic impact on the campus of the University of California at Berkley. A group of young socialists, not excluding a pair of "revolutionary socialists" (communists), were staging a protest against a university rule concerning participation by students in off-campus political activities. One of the ring leaders of the dissident faction sought to obtain the microphone at a public meeting led by the university president.

His move to seize the "mike" was interrupted by police who man-handled him and led him away. But at that moment, his success was assured. Young Mario Savio, who at the moment had not quite reached his 22nd birthday, won over the forces of law and order when the forces of law were turned against him with a public display of some violence.

Thus it has been. The forces of socialism, which seek a completely wrong and illogical objective, have employed superior tactics and have been winning battle after battle. The forces of anti-socialism, while their objectives have usually been sound, have employed the legal use of force which is not nearly so effective a tactic as civil disobedience.

So often, in this life, superior methods win. Worthy objectives obviously must adopt successful tactics. The difficulty, as we suggested at the outset, is for people to recognize the difference between an objective and a tactic.

Perhaps the objectives of capitalism and private property may be advanced if capitalists learn how to correctly employ civil disobedience to gain their ends.

The Element of Faith

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Returning home after a week's absence and finding everything shipshape, the house warm, the refrigerator working, the deep freezer protecting our meat, the water, including hot water, on tap, and all this in the dead of winter, I was reminded of the faith we all have not only in our fellow man, but in the gadgets he has invented.

We gave our house plants a good watering, turned the thermostat down to 60 degrees and took off, fully expecting everything to be in good order when we returned. And the amazing thing is that nothing did go amiss during our absence.

There can be power failures, breaks in the gas line, extreme temperatures that could break water lines, any manner of things could happen to make our homecoming a sad instead of a happy one. I did take one precaution about the water. In the basement, where icy temperatures have cause small troubles in the past, I left two electric lights burning from extension cords. But what made me so sure the power wouldn't go off? Faith, that's what.

If the power had failed for any great length of time, we would have lost a good deal of meat. If anything happened to the furnace or the gas lines, we could have had a heck of a mess with broken water lines all over the place. But faith made us believe that everything was okay at home.

Every day we live, we put faith in a thousand different things, most of them machines and gadgets men have invented to make our lives easier and more pleasant. For instance, we had faith that our 1953 Ford would get us over there and back home, although there are a thousand things that could go wrong with it. But we also have faith in ourselves. We had faith that I could drive 80 miles of extremely icy roads without mishap, where every few hundred yards we could see where some other driver had gone into a snowbank higher than his car and had to have the help of a tow car with winch to get out. "It couldn't happen to us," and it didn't.

If we had no faith, we would never get into a car in the first place. We wouldn't go off and leave our house in the winter without first draining all the water. We wouldn't fill a freezer full of meat and expect it to stay frozen. In fact, if we had no faith, we would be pretty well hampered in our daily living. Faith and optimism are blood brothers; without one, you aren't going to have much of the other.

We have faith in our doctors and nurses, we have faith in our plumbers and other artisans, we have faith in a man's word, we even have faith in animals we have learned to trust. But our greatest faith is that the sun will arise again tomorrow morning. Simply because it has always been doing it is no guarantee that it has to. In other words, we have faith in something above and beyond ourselves and over which we have no control. We have faith in nature — some call it God, and I can think of no better name for it.

Remember when, if you wanted to take even a short overnight trip in winter, you drained everything in the house and expected to come home to an "ice box" because you didn't dare to go off and leave a fire in the heater?

Even if you had a furnace, coal burner, you still had to drain everything or have a neighbor keep the furnace fired up for you.

I can remember further back, for I was raised in the "backwoods" of northern Minnesota, when we didn't have to drain anything simply because we did not have running water in the house. We got it from a well 20 yards from the kitchen door. But we did have to empty the water bucket and the "reservoir" on the back of the kitchen stove to keep them from bursting when the temperature indoors dropped to below zero.

Automatic central heating has certainly made living a great deal more pleasant for all of us. Central heating was used by the Romans, there are still tile air ducts in evidence in London as proof of this. But modern man didn't get around to "inventing" it until less than a century ago. And automatic controls and oil, gas, or electric fuels are all very recent innovations, and very nice to live with. Most of us who pine for the "good old days" would want to take a lot of newfangled ideas with us if we ever went back to them.

Americans Look Us Over

By AMBROSE HILLS

The First National City Bank has published a study of Canada. The venerable Atlantic Monthly did the same thing, and also the New Yorker. I was most interested in what the bank had to say. They are hard-headed and objective. Look at the fine things they wrote about Canada:

"Part of the extraordinary expansion of the past year may be attributed to the downward adjustment of the foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar. . . however, a large measure of the credit must go to Canadian farmers, lumbermen, miners, factory workers and businessmen who have seized the opportunities that have arisen. . .

"In addition, by holding the line on costs and prices Canadian manufacturers have been able to increase sales of their products both at home and throughout the world."

First National City Bank is affiliated with the Mercantile Bank of Canada, so it knows what it is talking about. 1964 was our fourth year of advance, and major indicators point to a repeat performance, the bank believes. Certainly it is our longest upswing in economic activity since World War Two.

"Contrary to popular opinion on both sides of the border," the bankers say, "the great bulk of investment in Canada has been financed by the Canadians themselves." That statement will come as a pleasant surprise to many.

The American bankers believe our upswing is more likely to last than is the USA upswing, particularly if our domestic market increases.

They do point out some pitfalls, but the over-all tone of the study indicates strong confidence in Canada's economic future, and they are advising investors that in their opinion, Canada is a mighty good bet. Let's hope we live up to our neighbor's fine opinion of us!

Nation's Press

The Greatest War On Poverty

From Christian Economics

Hundreds — often thousands — of people did without things they wanted, saved their money, bought machines with it, hired men to run the machines, sold the products at a profit so they could buy more machines and hire more men and sell more products and make more profit. That is what every well managed corporation does, and the bigger it is, the more anti-poverty war it can wage. And the corporation doesn't take taxes, it pays them — as well as providing jobs.

So anyone or anything that interferes with profit and savings (slow-down, featherbedding, excessive taxes, unearned wage increases, government hostility)—helps kill the only thing which can provide jobs and decrease poverty.

Government cannot create prosperity. Profit invested in better machines so efficiently operated they create more profit is the one and only way to win the war everyone wants to win — the war on poverty and unemployment.

TRAFFIC SAFETY

To the Editor:

In behalf of the members of the Colorado State Patrol I want to express to you and your staff my sincere gratitude for the fine cooperation and support you gave this department and our traffic safety program during 1964.

Although our traffic death record for the year set an all-time high, exceeding 1963's record toll, it is certainly through no fault of the state's news media, who, I feel, have contributed more space and time to traffic safety than ever before.

During 1964 the patrol continued to apply enforcement pressure on the highways. Your help in publicizing the accident picture helped immeasurably in improving public acceptance of this enforcement, and no doubt contributed much toward eliminating many accidents, in spite of the bad record.

I sincerely hope that we can count on your continued assistance during 1965 in our efforts to create a higher degree of safety on our highways.

Time for a Change

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

A particularly astute correspondent who lives in Orange County included the following remarks in a recent letter: "I am not sure what's wrong but find myself too frequently feeling disgruntled. I start out in the morning feeling fine but by noon I feel mean as a rabid skunk. I stop some place to have lunch and when I get back to my car I feel worse. Fortunately for me, when I get home my wife and family cheer me up. We're not mad at one another. I am a factory sales representative, calling on business concerns. I'll list some of the things I encountered just today and ask you to tell me if I'm getting old and sensitive or are we badly in need of a change in our thinking?"

My correspondent made his first call at a retail clothing store for men. He asked the cashier for the owner-manager by name. The cashier said, "Well, I don't know. He's around here some place, goofing off over the morning paper and coffee, I suppose. Any time we want him for something he disappears." Then she let out a yell. "Harreeee, why don't you get out here to see this guy who wants to see ya?" Harry, looking unhappy, came out of his office, stared at me and yelled, "Now, what? Oh, it's you." My correspondent might have been a customer.

The conditions which disturb the factory representative seem to be part of the American way of life — a way of life which I certainly do deplore because it doesn't make a lick of sense to me. It seems that the average employee hates his boss and the average employer is convinced his employees are bottom of the barrel slobs, and I wonder if this situation prevails in other sections of the country as it does in Arizona, California and Colorado. I wonder if the employer is to blame, the employee or both.

During the past year, I've heard a dozen employers or more say something like this, "Well, I just have to get along with what I can find. It's next to impossible to find decent help. I don't know what's happened."

Thinking back over the years during which I was employed, I know that none of the employers I knew ever adopted that kind of an apologetic attitude towards their employees. There was a good reason. If an employer is unable to find responsible help or properly train them there's something wrong. Either the employer is difficult to get along with, the pay is inadequate for the work demanded, or the employer is a timid but blustering soul who yells at the hired help one minute and tries to treat them as if they were old-time friends, the next.

On the other hand, the employee who accepts employment and pay and then tries to downgrade the boss to customers and salesmen is doing nothing to improve his or her status. Downgrading the boss in public is an admission that the employee is unable to find a better job and why should anybody brag about that?

Certainly, we live in an era in which ordinary courtesy is almost forgotten. Inefficiency and bad manners are signs of cleverness and this seems to be a two-way street: The boss knocks his own employees and the employees show no respect for the boss. Then a customer or salesman enters the establishment and the bad feeling spreads further, while nothing is being accomplished.

Of course, there is also the boss who fiddles impatiently while a clerk is taking care of a customer, and the clerk who interrupts the boss who is waiting on a client, and the boss and employee who stare coldly at the customer, who, after making a purchase, doesn't rush and hurry out of the establishment.

To a sales representative who can't make a dime without customers, conditions of this type described are ridiculous. Ordinary courtesy is an inexpensive commodity. A lack of courtesy becomes more and more apparent as socialism-fascism-communism and all forms of totalitarianism make more and more progress. Good manners are an excellent defense against authoritarianism and collectivism, and courtesy boycotts discourtesy.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

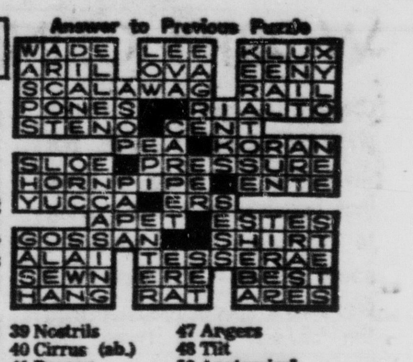
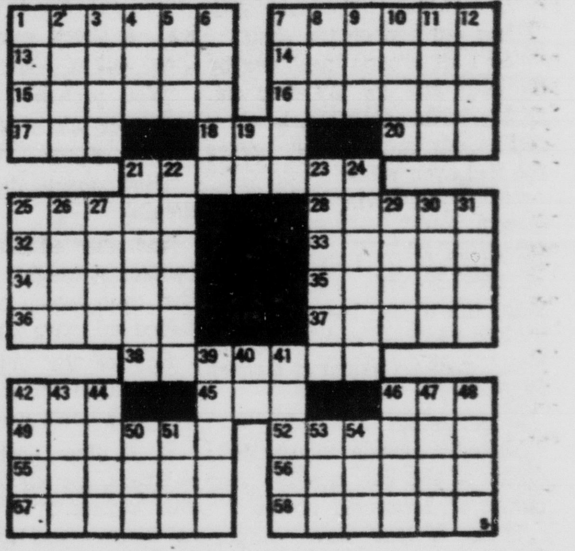
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Morality and the Market Place

BUTLER D. SHAFFER

A well known national publication with a basically pro-free enterprise format, had a recent edtiorial on the subject of steel prices, in which it tried to deal with the supposed "conflict" between the profit-interests of the steel companies, and the so-called "morality" of maintaining stable steel prices for the "public interest." At one point the editorial declared: "If the steel men were monopolists, pushing their steel prices ever higher merely out of greed, the public interest would clearly be imperiled and government intervention would be not only proper but imperative; it would be pertinent to invoke morality."

One of the biggest problems faced by serious advocates of the free market system is the large number of people who sincerely believe they are promoting the capitalistic system, but who nonetheless accept the basic premises of the collectivists, and hence end up destroying the foundations of capitalism. Such people, as in the case of the editorial I mentioned, admit that the primary concern for men in the market place should be to promote the "public interest," and that any profits which they may come by will not be denied them so long as they do not become "greedy." With friends like this, who need fear the socialists?

The basic assumption on which capitalism rests is that all men act in order to promote their own self-interest, and this holds for both producers and consumers. The collectivist who damns the self-interest factor in capitalism, usually limits the application of this concept to the producers. In the eyes of the anti-capitalist, the producer is simply a "greedy" man who only wants to pursue his own "selfish" ends, while the consumers (and the employees of the capitalist) are looked upon as his innocent "victims"; men and women who are not "selfish," but who nevertheless must put up with whatever the capitalist arbitrarily decides upon, whether it has to do with prices, wages, or working conditions.

The unfortunate thing about such a fairy-tale view of economics is that most free-enterprise oriented persons have accepted it, as the above quoted editorial attests. In fact, however, a rational inquiry into the behavior of the market place would lead one to the conclusion that all men do act to promote their self-interest, and that no man or company can arbitrarily set prices or wages. The price for a particular commodity is determined by consumer demand and not by the producer's whim. In the case of the steel industry, any company that decided to raise its prices at will would find its customers taking their business elsewhere. The customer, in seeking his "selfish" ends, looks for the lowest prices and will spend his money where he finds them. Thus, the producers must vigorously compete, by offering lower prices (or better service) in order to attract customers. So it is with wages: the employer is competing with other employers for the services of particular employees — competing because the employee is "selfishly" seeking the highest wages he can find.

There is no such thing as the "public interest." There are only the "interests" of the many individuals who combine to make up our society, and the analysis of the market place, as I have outlined, demonstrates that the interests of every individual are best served by an unregulated system that permits men to seek their own self-interest by taking their dollars, goods, or services to where they can get a better price. The consumer is best served when he is free to say "no" to one producer and go to another; the wage earner's best interests are served when he can go to work for another employer who offers more money for his productive abilities; and the producer is best off when he is free to respond to consumer demand and reap a profit for having done so. And while "self-interest" is the distinguishing feature of the capitalist system, the results of this system have, as history shows, provided a higher standard of living for more people than the systems which have proclaimed to operate for the "public interest."

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

No Reason for Medicare

While some still clamor for Medicare as a part of the Social Security system administered by the government, the figures being put together concerning voluntary health coverage by private insurance firms in this country provide impressive evidence that no such coverage is required at all.

We have, as you know, something close to 190 million people in the nation, including babes in arms. Did you know that private and voluntary health insurance programs, and pre-paid medical programs, now protect 145 million Americans? This is 77 per cent of the total population.

The leaders in this field are the Blue Cross and Blue Shield agencies, which today have policies with more than 55 million persons, better than one third of all those covered, and more than one fourth of the total population of the nation.

The charge is often made that this coverage simply doesn't protect the elderly, the senior citizen, who does require special medical consideration. The charge rests upon a lack of information.

Today, some 4.5 million people above the age of 65 have coverage with Blue Shield. And there are many other plans and programs in use which are also called upon by the people above the age of 65. Since 1951, the Blue Shield program has had an increase of 350 per cent among the elderly taking out pre-paid protection policies. If the government will hold off for a little while longer, it is entirely within reasonable expectation that the number of persons of advanced age who secure this coverage or similar coverage with other agencies, will increase even above its present high mark.

And we are delighted to note that Blue Shield and Blue Cross, unlike certain other firms which seem too timid to do so, are coming out openly in opposition to any further encroachment in the field of medicine by the government.

There is a popular fallacy that Blue Shield coverage is not available for elderly people except on a group basis. That is, when the older person retires and leaves his place of employment, he must, of necessity, drop his Blue Cross or Blue Shield coverage. This is not the case.

In 1959 Blue Shield had only 10 plans that could be used by individuals without age limit. But today there are some 74 Blue Shield plans available to the elderly for individual, non-group coverage without age limit.

We don't want this editorial to sound like a commercial message from Blue Shield. But it is important for people to know that private and voluntary coverage in the health area is possible for people regardless of their age. Further, this coverage is extensive enough so that it can include full cost protection.

It is true, of course, that a person can obtain partial coverage for less money than he would have to pay for full coverage. The fact remains, however, that full coverage is offered; even when it is not taken, the coverage covers the major costs which are always the most serious drain that can descend upon a person during a time of medical crisis.

Against this encouraging and constructive picture, do you know what would happen if the government adopted Medicare in full? It would mean that many of these voluntarily paid-for programs would be cancelled in favor of government coverage. This would weaken the ability of the free market agencies to do their best job. It might conceivably raise their rates, making it necessary for some additional people to cancel their own voluntry programs.

The final result would be a gradual shifting away from voluntary and market place insurance, with the government getting a bigger and bigger share. But what would that mean? It would mean increasing taxation all the way around. Persons not able to afford insurance coverage for themselves would be coerced into paying for the insurance coverage of others. We would become more and more dependent on the state and less independent and far less able to do for ourselves.

Medicare is nothing but a political boondoggle. It is far too costly to consider and, on the strength of the evidence, isn't needed at all.

Too Proud

Civil Disobedience

Let us discuss tactics.

The difficulty here is to keep one's mind on the tactical procedure while shutting out the objective involved.

It has been our observation that in the past twenty or more years, there is a certain tactic that has been employed in a most successful way. The tactic has usually been employed for the wrong reasons; but as a device to accomplish an objective, it is far superior to tactics arrayed against it.

We can think off-hand of four instances in which the tactic has been successfully used; once in India, thrice in the United States. The tactic to which reference is made is called "civil disobedience."

Civil disobedience, as a device, was introduced in this nation on several occasions, but the first massive effort in which it was successfully used was invoked by labor union bosses. Around the turn of the century, mass demonstration, mass picketing, parades and other public display devices were employed by workers in a wild orgy of abuse conjured up against capitalists, industrialists and the police.

Government was invoked again and again to put down these riots. Bloodshed not infrequently ensued. But, as a tactic, civil disobedience proved to be far more effective than police methods. The labor bosses got their way to a large degree, and today are making a fair bid to seize total control of the government and run things their own way.

In this instance, the objective of the union bosses was in error, based upon economic ignorance, greed and selfishness. But the tactic, which is what we are discussing, was superior to all law-enforcement procedures arrayed against the dissenters.

Again, toward the end of World War I, and beyond, the ladies practiced civil disobedience on a wide scale and managed to obtain woman suffrage. They did so by disregarding the existing laws, staging mass demonstrations and appeals, and not a few of them went to jail for their pains. But they won their point. Whether their objective was worthy of their steel is beside the point. Their tactic was superior and won the argument.

In the 1930's in India, a great mystic arose who, from an economic point of view, was a socialist. But, he adopted civil disobedience as his modus operandi and reduced the British government to impotence and frustration.

The leader was Mahatma Gandhi. His objectives were in error, but his methods were infinitely superior to those arrayed against him.

Only recently in this nation we have seen another demonstration of the superiority of civil disobedience as a modus. The Negroes of the nation, massing behind the leadership of men like Martin Luther King, have managed to get the Civil Rights Law passed. The law is in error. But the tactic employed was infinitely superior to all the force arrayed against them. Once more by public protest, by mass demonstration, by picketing and by activities tinged with disregard of law, the demonstrators have won a major victory.

Now it happens that we believe in an orderly world. We cannot favor riot and a disregard of the rights and properties of others. But we must concede on the basis of any kind of objective criteria employed, that civil disobedience, as a tactic, was superior to law enforcement as practiced by governments in each of the instant cases to which reference is made.

Further, a more detailed examination of history demonstrates again and again that civil disobedience has been employed with great success since the days of Martin Luther, in Germany, and not excluding the massive civil disobedience practiced in this country by our founders, who defied the law of Britain in an effort to avoid taxes which, to them, were onerous and unjust.

Thus, we might sum up the situation this way. Those who believe in some particular objective sufficiently to risk public display and popular disapproval, have a way of winning their point.

Quite recently, this was demonstrated with dramatic impact on the campus of the University of California at Berkley. A group of young socialists, not excluding a pair of "revolutionary socialists" (communists), were staging a protest against a university rule concerning participation by students in off-campus political activities. One of the ring leaders of the dissident faction sought to obtain the microphone at a public meeting led by the university president.

His move to seize the "mike" was interrupted by police who man-handled him and led him away. But at that moment, his success was assured. Young Mario Savio, who at the moment had not quite reached his 22nd birthday, won over the forces of law and order when the forces of law were turned against him with a public display of some violence.

Thus it has been. The forces of socialism, which seek a completely wrong and illogical objective, have employed superior tactics and have been winning battle after battle. The forces of anti-socialism, while their objectives have usually been sound, have employed the legal use of force which is not nearly so effective a tactic as civil disobedience.

So often, in this life, superior methods win. Worthy objectives obviously must adopt successful tactics. The difficulty, as we suggested at the outset, is for people to recognize the difference between an objective and a tactic.

Perhaps the objectives of capitalism and private property may be advanced if capitalists learn how to correctly employ civil disobedience to gain their ends.

Question Box

Question No. 634: "Would it retard the trend toward the loss of more and more of our individual liberty and responsibility if political votes were not secret? If so, why?"

Answer: It is hard to see why well informed individuals who do not understand what causes material and spiritual development or deterioration should be given a secret way of voting to eat up the seed corn and lose their own self-respect and responsibility and be able to cover up their acts.

Remember the Great Teacher said, "Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil. But he that doeth good cometh to the light that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God."

Madison in the Federalist Papers wrote, "such democracies have ever been spectacles of turbulence and contention, have ever been found incompatible with personal security or the rights of property and have in general been as short in their lives as they have been violent in their deaths."

Of course if people believed in individual responsibility and knew what their responsibility is the secret ballot would be all right. But when the youth of the land are grabbed in their formative period of life and indoctrinated by the state to believe that the state has a right to do things that no individual has a moral right to do, if we use the Human Relations Commandments as a guide, then it is only a question of time until the man who is without foresight votes to eat up the seed corn which is a form of immorality and the whole structure of the government will go to pieces.

It seems that those nations who have adopted the secret ballot such as Australia in 1956, England in 1700, the United States in 1844 and France in 1914, have all, since the secret ballot, gone more and more socialistic and have deprived the individual of his right to make moral decisions.

Certainly the confusion we are in today indicates that something is wrong. One party suggests that individuals vote in proportion to the taxes they pay just as a corporation votes according to what they put into the corporation, and a corporation is an open ballot method. This would be a step in the right direction. Any stockholder can find out how the other party votes. If it isn't operated that way, one should not own stock in it.

It seems that if men do not have the courage of their convictions and are not willing to try to defend them, they should not be given the power to vote secretly about something they do not understand.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

The Element of Faith

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Returning home after a week's absence and finding everything shipshape, the house warm, the refrigerator working, the deep freezer protecting our meat, the water, including hot water, on tap, and all this in the dead of winter, I was reminded of the faith we all have not only in our fellow man, but in the gadgets he has invented.

We gave our house plants a good watering, turned the thermostat down to 60 degrees and took off, fully expecting everything to be in good order when we returned. And the amazing thing is that nothing did go amiss during our absence.

There can be power failures, breaks in the gas line, extreme temperatures that could break water lines, any manner of things could happen to make our homecoming a sad instead of a happy one. I did take one precaution about the water. In the basement, where icy tempratures have cause small troubles in the past, I left two electric lights burning from extension cords. But what made me so sure the power wouldn't go off? Faith, that's what.

If the power had failed for any great length of time, we would have lost a good deal of meat. If anything happened to the furnace or the gas lines, we could have had a heck of a mess with broken water lines all over the place. But faith made us believe that everything was okay at home.

Every day we live, we put faith in a thousand different things, most of them machines and gadgets men have invented to make our lives easier and more pleasant. For instance, we had faith that our 1953 Ford would get us over there and back home, although there are a thousand things that could go wrong with it. But we also have faith in ourselves. We had faith that I could drive 80 miles of extremely icy roads without mishap, where every few hundred yards we could see where some other driver had gone into a snowbank higher than his car and had to have the help of a tow car with winch to get out. "It couldn't happen to us," and it didn't.

If we had no faith, we would never get into a car in the first place. We wouldn't go off and leave our house in the winter without first draining all the water. We wouldn't fill a freezer full of meat and expect it to stay frozen. In fact, if we had no faith, we would be pretty well hampered in our daily living. Faith and optimism are blood brothers; without one, you aren't going to have much of the other.

We have faith in our doctors and nurses, we have faith in our plumbers and other artisans, we have faith in a man's word, we even have faith in animals we have learned to trust. But our greatest faith is that the sun will arise again tomorrow morning. Simply because it has always been doing it is no guarantee that it has to. In other words, we have faith in nomething above and beyond ourselves and over which we have no control. We have faith in nature — some call it God, and I can think of no better name for it.

Remember when, if you wanted to take even a short overnight trip in winter, you drained everything in the house and expected to come home to an "ice box" because you didn't dare to go off and leave a fire in the heater?

Even if you had a furnace, coal burner, you still had to drain everything or have a neighbor keep the furnace fired up for you.

I can remember further back, for I was raised in the "backwoods" of northern Minnesota, when we didn't have to drain anything simply because we did not have running water in the house. We got it from a well 20 yards from the kitchen door. But we did have to empty the water bucket and the "reservoir" on the back of the kitchen stove to keep them from bursting when the temperature indoors dropped to below zero.

Automatic central heating has certainly made living a great deal more pleasant for all of us. Central heating was used by the Romans, there are still tile air ducts in evidence in London as proof of this. But modern man didn't get around to "inventing" it until less than a century ago. And automatic controls and oil, gas, or electric fuels are all very recent innovations, and very nice to live with. Most of us who pine for the "good old days" would want to take a lot of newfangled ideas with us if we ever went back to them.

Americans Look Us Over

By AMBROSE HILLS

The First National City Bank has published a study of Canada. The venerable Atlantic Monthly did the same thing, and also the New Yorker. I was most interested in what the bank had to say. They are hard-headed and objective. Look at the fine things they wrote about Canada:

"Part of the extraordinary expansion of the past year may be attributed to the downward adjustment of the foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar. . . however, a large measure of the credit must go to Canadian farmers, lumbermen, miners, factory workers and businessmen who have seized the opportunities that have arisen. . .

"In addition, by holding the line on costs and prices Canadian manufacturers have been able to increase sales of their products both at home and throughout the world."

First National City Bank is affiliated with the Mercantile Bank of Canada, so it knows what it is talking about. 1964 was our fourth year of advance, and major indicators point to a repeat performance, the bank believes. Certainly it is our longest upswing in economic activity since World War Two.

"Contrary to popular opinion on both sides of the border," the bankers say, "the great bulk of investment in Canada has been financed by the Canadians themselves." That statement will come as a pleasant surprise to many.

The American bankers believe our upswing is more likely to last than is the USA upswing, particularly if our domestic market increases.

They do point out some pitfalls, but the over-all tone of the study indicates strong confidence in Canada's economic future, and they are advising investors that in their opinion, Canada is a mighty good bet. Let's hope we live up to our neighbor's fine opinion of us!

The Greatest War On Poverty

From Christian Economics

Hundreds — often thousands — of people did without things they wanted, saved their money, bought machines with it, hired men to run the machines, sold the products at a profit so they could buy more machines and hire more men and sell more products and make more profit. That is what every well managed corporation does, and the bigger it is, the more anti-poverty war it can wage. And the corporation doesn't take taxes, it pays them — as well as providing jobs.

So anyone or anything that interferes with profit and savings (slow-down, featherbedding, excessive taxes, unearned wage increases, government hostility)—helps kill the only thing which can provide jobs and decrease poverty.

Government cannot create prosperity. Profit invested in better machines so efficiently operated they create more profit is the one and only way to win the war everyone wants to win — the war on poverty and unemployment.

TRAFFIC SAFETY

To the Editor:

In behalf of the members of the Colorado State Patrol I want to express to you and your staff my sincere gratitude for the fine cooperation and support you gave this department and our traffic safety program during 1964.

Although our traffic death record for the year set an all-time high, exceeding 1963's record toll, it is certainly through no fault of the state's news media, who, I feel, have contributed more space and time to traffic safety than ever before.

During 1964 the patrol continued to apply enforcement pressure on the highways. Your help in publicizing the accident picture helped immeasurably in improving public acceptance of this enforcement, and no doubt contributed much toward eliminating many accidents, in spite of the bad record.

I sincerely hope that we can count on your continued assistance during 1965 in our efforts to create a higher degree of safety on our highways.

Time for a Change

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

A particularly astute correspondent who lives in Orange County included the following remarks in a recent letter: "I am not sure what's wrong but find myself too frequently feeling disgruntled. I start out in the morning feeling fine but by noon I feel mean as a rabid skunk. I stop some place to have lunch and when I get back to my car I feel worse. Fortunately for me, when I get home my wife and family cheer me up. We're not mad at one another. I am a factory sales representative, calling on business concerns. I'll list some of the things I encountered just today and ask you to tell me if I'm getting old and sensitive or are we badly in need of a change in our thinking?"

My correspondent made his first call at a retail clothing store for men. He asked the cashier for the owner-manager by name. The cashier said, "Well, I don't know. He's around here some place, goofing off over the morning paper and coffee, I suppose. Any time we want him for something he disappears." Then she let out a yell. "Harreeee, why don't you get out here to see this guy who wants to see ya?" Harry, looking unhappy, came out of his office, stared at me and yelled, "Now, what? Oh, it's you." My correspondent might have been a customer.

The conditions which disturb the factory representative seem to be part of the American way of life — a way of life which I certainly do deplore because it doesn't make a lick of sense to me. It seems that the average employee hates his boss and the average employer is convinced his employees are bottom of the barrel slobs, and I wonder if this situation prevails in other sections of the country as it does in Arizona, California and Colorado. I wonder if the employer is to blame, the employee or both.

During the past year, I've heard a dozen employers or more say something like this, "Well, I just have to get along with what I can find. It's next to impossible to find decent help. I don't know what's happened.

Thinking back over the years during which I was employed, I know that none of the employers I knew ever adopted that kind of an apologetic attitude towards their employees. There was a good reason. If an employer is unable to find responsible help or properly train them there's something wrong. Either the employer is difficult to get along with, the pay is inadequate for the work demanded, or the employer is a timid but blustering soul who yells at the hired help one minute and tries to treat them as if they were old-time friends, the next.

On the other hand, the employee who accepts employment and pay and then tries to downgrade the boss to customers and salesmen is doing nothing to improve his or her status. Downgrading the boss in public is an admission that the employee is unable to find a better job and why should anybody brag about that?

Certainly, we live in an era in which ordinary courtesy is almost forgotten. Inefficiency and bad manners are signs of cleverness and this seems to be a two-way street: The boss knocks his own employees and the employees show no respect for the boss. Then a customer or salesman enters the establishment and the bad feeling spreads further, while nothing is being accomplished.

Of course, there is also the boss who fiddles impatiently while a clerk is taking care of a customer, and the clerk who interrupts the boss who is waiting on a client, and the boss and employee who stare coldly at the customer, who, after making a purchase, doesn't rush and hurry out of the establishment.

To a sales representative who can't make a dime without customers, conditions of this type described are ridiculous. Ordinary courtesy is an inexpensive commodity. A lack of courtesy becomes more and more apparent as socialism-fascism-communism and all forms of totalitarianism make more and more progress. Good manners are an excellent defense against authoritarianism and collectivism, and courtesy boycotts discourtesy.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

BUTLER D. SHAFFER

A well known national publication with a basically pro-free enterprise format, had a recent edtiorial on the subject of steel prices, in which it tried to deal with the supposed "conflict" between the profit-interests of the steel companies, and the so-called "morality" of maintaining stable steel prices for the "public interest." At one point the editorial declared: "If the steel men were monopolists, pushing their steel prices ever higher merely out of greed, the public interest would clearly be imperiled and government intervention would be not only proper but imperative; it would be pertinent to invoke morality."

One of the biggest problems faced by serious advocates of the free market system is the large number of people who sincerely believe they are promoting the capitalistic system, but who nonetheless accept the basic premises of the collectivists, and hence end up destroying the foundations of capitalism. Such people, as in the case of the editorial I mentioned, admit that the primary concern for men in the market place should be to promote the "public interest," and that any profits which they may come by will not be denied them so long as they do not become "greedy." With friends like this, who need fear the socialists?

The basic assumption on which capitalism rests is that all men act in order to promote their own self-interest, and this holds for both producers and consumers. The collectivist who damns the self-interest factor in capitalism, usually limits the application of this concept to the producers. In the eyes of the anti-capitalist, the producer is simply a "greedy" man who only wants to pursue his own "selfish" ends, while the consumers (and the employees of the capitalist) are looked upon as his innocent "victims"; men and women who are not "selfish," but who nevertheless must put up with whatever the capitalist arbitrarily decides upon, whether it has to do with prices, wages, or working conditions.

The unfortunate thing about such a fairy-tale view of economics is that most free-enterprise oriented persons have accepted it, as the above quoted editorial attests. In fact, however, a rational inquiry into the behavior of the market place would lead one to the conclusion that all men do act to promote their self-interest, and that no man or company can arbitrarily set prices or wages. The price for a particular commodity is determined by consumer demand and not by the producer's whim. In the case of the steel industry, any company that decided to raise its prices at will would find its customers taking their business elsewhere. The customer, in seeking his "selfish" ends, looks for the lowest prices and will spend his money where he finds them. Thus, the producers must vigorously compete, by offering lower prices (or better service) in order to attract customers. So it is with wages: the employer is competing with other employers for the services of particular employees — competing because the employee is "selfishly" seeking the highest wages he can find.

There is no such thing as the "public interest." There are only the "interests" of the many individuals who combine to make up our society, and the analysis of the market place, as I have outlined, demonstrates that the interests of every individual are best served by an unregulated system that permits men to seek their own self-interest by taking their dollars, goods, or services to where they can get a better price. The consumer is best served when he is free to say "no" to one producer and go to another; the wage earner's best interests are served when he can go to work for another employer who offers more money for his productive abilities; and the producer is best off when he is free to respond to consumer demand and reap a profit for having done so. And while "self-interest" is the distinguishing feature of the capitalist system, the results of this system have, as history shows, provided a higher standard of living for more people than the systems which have proclaimed to operate for the "public interest."

Sec. Rusk Faces Questioning Over Viet Nam

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk faces sharp Senate questioning today on U.S. policy in South Viet Nam.

In his first briefing of the new congressional session, Rusk goes before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The closed meeting was arranged primarily for a report on problems of the Congo and the Soviet Union's refusal to pay its U.N. peace-keeping assessments.

Committee members said in advance, however, they would explore the situation in South Viet Nam on the basis of President Johnson's assertion in his State of the Union message the United States will not break its 10-year-old pledge to help that country "against Communist aggression."

Johnson declared that U.S. security is tied to peace in Asia and peace will come to South Viet Nam "only when aggressors leave their neighbors in peace."

Sen Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a member of the committee and a leading critic of Southeast Asia policy, said Johnson's statements did not "camouflage successfully the illegality under international law of unjustified American unilateral military action in South Viet Nam."

"The country must now look to an aroused public opinion to stop the killing of American boys," he said in an interview.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, another member, said the United States must overcome "the tendency of overintervention in the internal affairs of both South Viet Nam and the Congo."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said that "if we can't have a stable government at Saigon, we are wasting millions of dollars there."

Dogs Have Computer As Vets' Reminder

ATLANTA (UPI) — The 106,000 dogs that inhabit Fulton County (Atlanta) have a computer going for them.

Dr. John A. Giddens, director of veterinary medical services for the county, says a computer keeps track of all dogs and when they should be re-vaccinated against rabies.

"We send out post cards to all dog owners reminding them when to have their pets vaccinated," Giddens said.

GESTURES AND FACIAL EXPRESSION

Everyone over age 50 remembers the furor created by the so-called monkey trial in Tennessee in 1925. A young man, John T. Scopes, was tried for teaching the theory of evolution in one of that state's public schools. Clarence Darrow, the famed Chicago lawyer, acted for the defense, and William Jennings Bryan for the plaintiff.

This reaction to the subject was nothing compared with the abuse suffered by Charles Darwin when he first propounded his theory of evolution. More recently, Dr. R. J. Andrew of Yale did some investigative work showing that facial expressions of humans go back to reflex responses of animals. He concentrated on gestures that probably originated as protective reactions, including flattening of the ears, closing the eyes, and retracting the corners of the mouth. Lemurs, for example, retract the ears in the presence of danger. Monkeys and baboons do so, too, and the scalp as well.

Man and apes are more likely to lower the eyebrows and draw them together when confronted with a threatening situation. Contraction of a certain muscle in the mouth occure in the howling dog and the roaring lion. Human babies—before crying—protrude the lower lip.

Grins are common in animals. They accompany hard biting as in defense or a startle reflex, and attempts to vocalize. Lemurs grin as they wail in frustration or defense. Rhesus monkeys grin silently when frightened; other monkeys not only grin but make crackling noises when roughed-up in play. Man, chimpanzees, and gorillas grin when fearful, frustrated, or exicited. Man grimaces when he fights and during physical exertion. Other primates raise a lip or close an eye in attempting to overcome an obstacle.

Smiles may be protective, as when an underling is called down by his superior. This is related to the stress grin when laboring over delicate machinery. The social primates indulge in lip-smacking and exaggerated facial movements. Baboons lip-smack not only in grooming but in greeting, in the same way that man smiles.

These studies on facial expressions as part of primate evolution may sound far-fetched in determining human behavior. Many facial expressions in primates are not caused by specific conditions, drives, pleasure, or unpleasant feelings. But as reactions to selective pressures, they will help our understanding of why we tick.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

ROVING BACTERIA

Mrs. D .B. writes: What is a pseudomonas infection? Does it attack the kidneys and bladder?

Meredith Goes Hollywood for Doubleheader

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) —Burgess Meredith went to Hollywood a few weeks ago for what he calls "a doubleheader" guest appearance in NBC's "Mr. Novak."

On his first day of work in the two-part episode, the show's costar, Dean Jagger, went into the hospital. On his third day on the set, Meredith was offered the job of costar and replacement.

The actor finished his original assignment, playing an English teacher named Martin Woolridge "who was in a cantankerous state because of his slow advancement — a bit bitter because he was entering middle age and felt he had not done very well."

Fortunately for the show's continuity, Woolridge redeems himself in the end, recognizes his problems and all ends happily. In the very next program Woolridge's advancement starts fast: suddenly he is the principal.

"The new principal will not be in the least like Mr. Vane," Meredith said. "Of course he will take shape according to the direction and the writers. I do feel though that he shouldn't be made too awfully nice — he should have some of his old faults left."

Meredith, 55, estimates that he appears in eight or 10 shows as a guest star each season.

"Of course I've had chances to do series before," he said, "but I've turned them down. But this happened at a precise moment when I could be had. In the first place, I like the show and in the second place it is an established series so I didn't have to suffer through the birth pangs."

CBS News continues to reshuffle its staff. Harry Reasoner moves from New York to the White House and the former White House man goes to London. Hughes Rudd, recently stationed in the Midwest goes to Moscow and Stuart Novins will return for reassignment in the United States.

In an effort to vary the viewer's diet, CBS' "To Tell the Truth" and "I've Got a Secret" will exchange panels for one night — Jan. 18. Betsy Palmer, one of the "I've Got a Secret" regulars, will play Sid Caesar's wife — for the second time — on next Sunday's "Ed Sullivan Show."

AMMAN — Jordan has raised the duty on the import of all alcoholic beverages.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. White announce the marriage of Mrs. White's daughter, Elizabeth Knowlton, to Morton McGinley, son of Mr. Edward McGinley of Baltimore, Md.

The recent ceremony was performed in Santa Fe, N.M. with only the members of both families present.

Mr. and Mrs. McGinley will reside at 9 Marland Rd.

Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Charles Duff of 700 Lyra Dr., Skyway Estates, gave a New Year's Day reception and open house at their home, for officers of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command and their wives.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Kenneth I. Curtis gave a holiday party last Wednesday night for 75 military and civilian friends at their home, 1932 El Parque.

The society section of the San Francisco Examiner featured a picture spread of a large cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Ferenc Molnar honoring their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gernot Heinrichsdorff of Colorado Springs. The Molnars had planned to stage the gala party on a houseboat in Sausalito but wet weather forced the party indoors, at the Molnar residence.

Mr. Molnar, noted violinist, who participated in the Colorado Summer Music Festivals for several seasons, is now director of The Chamber Music Center at San Francisco State College. Mrs. Molnar is a well-known novelist.

Guests at the reception included former Colorado Springs residents, Dr. and Mrs. J. Lindsay Patton and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Merrill. Also many notables including artists, sculptors, musicans and Nobel prize winner, Dr. Joshua Lederberg, biochemist, and Mrs. Lederberg.

Mr. and Mrs. David Mitchell Jr. of Broadmoor will leave for Arizona Thursday, where Mr. Mitchell will play in national golf tournaments in Tuscon and Scottsdale, for two successive weeks.

The Mitchells will then go to Los Angeles and board a jet for Honolulu where they will remain until April.

M. Sgt. (Ret.) and Mrs. Chester Mulawa of Stratmoor Hills entertained the cast of the Ft. Carson production of "The Fantasticks" on Dec. 30 with their daughters, Chris, a freshman at Southern Colorado State College, and Marianne who attends Stratmoor Hills Elementary School. Charades were the entertainment high spot of the evening.

Two Colorado Springs youths are among those earning academic honors for the second six weeks grading period of the first semester at Wentworth Military Academy.

The youths, who earned superior grades to qualify for the dean's lists, are as follows:

Cadet David Berwick, son of Mrs. Bobbe Berwick, 711 Manitou Ave., Manitou Springs, who qualified for the dean's Special Distinction List; and Cadet Jack E. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester T. Clark, 2731 W. Colorado Ave., who qualified for the dean's Honor Roll.

Cadets who earn academic honors during the specified grading periods at Wentworth are accorded extra privileges and are permitted to wear the Scholastic Bar on their uniform.

Lt. Col. George T. Bradley and Mrs. Bradley, and their daughter, Jane, of Colorado Springs were guests Christmas weekend at the home of his parents, the J. R. Bardleys of Canon City.

Toastmistress Club Plans Annual Contest

The Pikes Peak Toastmistress Club will hold the first session of the annual speech contest at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Chicken Shack. Dessert will be served.

Speakers will be Helen Jackson, Betty Larson, Jean Rathburn, Eunice Thiel, Cleta Kimberlin, Esther Stringer and Jane Curtis. Each speaker will draw three words that are completely unrelated, 48 hours prior to the speak-off. From these three words each will select one as her subject, and prepare a five to seven minute speech on this topic.

Judges evaluating the speeches will be Esther Price, Creta Bruner, William MacDonald and Robert Grieve.

Mrs. Val Varela is contest chairman, and Toastmistress will be last year's winner, Mrs. Lyda Johnson.

Anyone interested in attending should call Mrs. Johnson, 632-3415, by Wednesday noon.

Episcopal Church Women Will Meet for Dessert

The Church Women of Grace Episcopal Church will meet for dessert and coffee at 12:20 p.m. Thursday at the church.

The role of women in the church will be discussed by the Rector, the church treasurer, a member of the Diocesan board and several women in the parish at 1 p.m.

Anyone interested is invited to attend and reservations should be made.

Presbyterian Women To Meet for Luncheon

The Women's Association for Christian Work of the First Presbyterian Church will meet for luncheon in the church dining room at 12:15 p.m. Wednesday. The Fannie Kellogg and Amanda McFarland Circles will serve the luncheon.

Centennial Chapter Will Meet in Temple

Centennial Chapter 58, Order of Eastern Star, will meet at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in the Masonic Temple. Visiting members are welcome.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Nuts!

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been going nut hunting every year for the past eight years. He stays seven weeks. He looks forward to these trips and can hardly wait to get started. Last time he lost his diamond ring, and about four months later he got a letter from a married woman informing him that she had "found" the ring he lost while THEY were nut hunting.

Now, Abby, I know this woman and she doesn't have a very good name. I asked my husband how come she was along and he said her husband was there, too, which I doubt. He did bring some nuts home, so I know he went nut hunting. He comes and goes as he pleases with no consideration for me. What should I do? —HUNTER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband's report on "nut hunting" sounds a little squirrely to me. You had better find out if your Filbert is philandering, and crack down on him—or shell out. P.S. If he is telling the truth, he's certainly gone nutty on his hobby.

DEAR ABBY: I became engaged to a girl in June. The engagement ring I gave her belonged to my deceased mother. It was a small, but gem quality diamond. I won't go into detail here, but because I learned that she had been unfaithful to me several times during our engagement, I broke off with her. My lawyer tells me that because it was I who broke the engagement, she is entitled to keep the ring. I want that ring for sentimental reasons, Abby. How can I get it back? —SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: Ask her for it and tell her why you think she owes you its return. If that doesn't work, offer to buy it back, and if THAT doesn't work, thank God for saving you from a wretched marriage.

DEAR ABBY: My aunt asked me, "What do you want for a wedding present?" I said, "How much do you want to spend?" My mother heard me and she almost killed me. I don't see anything wrong with my question, do you? I know my aunt is going to buy me something, and I could use anything from a dish towel to a television set. My mother said I should have said, "Oh, nothing, really. All I want are your good wishes." Now isn't that ridiculous? (My aunt happens to be the richest one in our family!) —TOO HONEST

DEAR TOO: No one can be "too honest"—but you could have been more tactful. You might have replied, "I will leave the choice of a gift to you," or you could have TOLD her what you wanted.

Camp Fire Girls' Slogan Reflected in Yule Events

"Give Service" is the slogan of Camp Fire Girls, and during the holiday season several groups in the area council included gifts for others in their Christmas activities.

Among the groups who went caroling were the Monroe School Camp Fire Girls led by Mrs. James V. Eaton. Accompanied by family members, the girls spent an evening singing at several nursing homes.

The Whittier Camp Fire group baked cookies for residents of the Garden of the Gods Nursing Home and entertained with carols. The group is led by Mrs. T. W. Statler.

Second grade Blue Birds of Longfellow School, led by Mrs. Morris Dennis, caroled at the Prospect Lake Nursing Home.

A Christmas gift basket of food, toys and clothing was prepared by the Ki-A-Wa-Ta Camp Fire Girls of Stratton Meadows for a family whose name was referred by the Salvation Army. Ki-A-Wa-Ta guardian is Mrs. H. W. Matteson.

The Te-Pa Camp Fire group of Audubon, led by Mrs. Donald K. Morris, gave a holiday centerpiece to the Zebulon Pike Juvenile Center, and the Camp Fire Girls of Steeele School made Christmas cards for shut-ins. Their guardian is Mrs. Virginia Smith, assisted by Mrs. L. T. Browning Jr.

Some of the groups entertained friends at Yuletide parties. A Christmas ceremonial was held by the Wani Kani Camp Fire Girls of Jefferson, Edison, Lutheran Lutheran Schools. Honored guests were Girl Scouts of Troop 182: Jeanne Callahan, Holly Jack, Laura Jack, Karen Jasmund and Denise Viles.

During the ceremonial, Camp Fire members Lida Andersen, Glenda Hall and Terry Hamilton received their three-year membership honors. Swimming emblems were presented to Lida Andersen and Kathy Bolster.

The Fagot Finder, first in the series of special outdoor living honors, was awarded to Deanna Dwyer, Mary Gosnell and Karen Walker. Kathy Bolster, Karen Davis, Judy Long, Debra McCloughan, Terry Hamilton, Glenda Hall and Sue Rundhammer received Trail Maker, the second camping honor.

Songs of Wohelo were sung, and both Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scouts joined in singing "Make New Friends." Following the ceremonial, the members and guests enjoyed a holiday party with games, refreshments and gift exchange. Guardian and assistant are Mrs. Robert Bolster and Mrs. James Davis.

Another holiday party was given by the Junior Hi Camp Fire Girls of Stratton Meadows for the Aya TaWa Ka Camp Fire group. Guardian of both groups of Mrs. Alvin Jersin, assisted by Mrs. Bernard Wasle and Mrs. William Wilson.

The Junior Hi members made invitations and decorated the house. The party included carol singing, indoor games and refreshments, and the girls drew names for exchange of gifts.

Billy Eckstine Fails To Show Up for Date

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Billy Eckstine failed to show up Monday night for two performances at the Royal Box supper club in the Hotel Americana for the start of a $5,500-a-week engagement.

Milton Deutch, the singer's manager, said Eckstine had not been seen by associates since 6 p.m. Sunday when he finished a rehearsal.

Deutch went to a police station to file a missing person report, but no report was filed.

Eckstine's wife, the former Carolle Drake, said her husband is a teetotaler.

"I'm on pins and needles. Billy has never done anything like this before," she said.

Kathy Tells Mommy She's Not a Car

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Two-year-old Kathy has a cold — and with it some cold sores.

Her mother, Mrs. Brian Dennehy, said Monday night as she was putting the child to bed, "Come here, Kathy, Im going to put some vaseline on you.

Kathy replied, "Mummy, Im not a car.

PAINTINGS ON AUCTION

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—A $2 million collection of paintings by Van Gogh, Degas, Renoir, Modigliani and Monet will be auctioned off here next month.

The French impressionist and post-impressionist works from the private collection of the late Morris W. Haft of New York will be put on the block Feb. 9 at the Trosby Galleries.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Howdy there:

This little item is written for those of you who have cold shoulders!

For years I have had a quilted comforter that just wouldn't stay up around my shoulders. I tried everything.

About four months ago, I had some corduroy left over from a bedspread I made. (Corduroy comes in different widths, but most of it is 36 to 44 inches wide.)

The light-in-my belfrey finally turned on, and I thought, "How much protection is a two-inch binding on my good comforter, anyhow?

So, I nonchalantly covered the head of our comforter with the wole piece of corduroy . . . blankets may be done the same way.

This means that I basted some corduroy across the width of our comforter, putting half of the 36 inches on the top of it and folding it back to the underneath side and basting it. This makes 18 inches of protection for the comforter or blanket.

Let me tell you what this does beside protecting the comforter:

It lends weight. It HUGS your shoulders. The blanket or comforter doesn't slip.

As this corduroy has a NAP and the nap is CROSSWISE (I put it straight across the top of the comforter), the nap KEEPS it hugged on your cold shoulders.

So many friends have asked that I write about this and tell you sweet people how grand it is. . .

I am asking you to try it. Amazing what a help it is. It is the greatest thing I have run across lately.

So watch your sales in the paper and buy a few yards of corduroy on sale. Try it.

After all, you can remove the corduroy and use it for something else if you don't like it, but I would like to make you a little bet . . . you'll never take it off to use for something else. I never will.

Be sure to just "tack" in onto the top and underside of your blanket or comforter and see what comfort (no pun intended) you get that you have never had before when trying to get a good night's sleep.

Oh, it's fantabulous. And isn't the first 18 inches of our blankets where the most soil accumulates? When necessary just untack the corduroy and wash only that. . . —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I bought some moleskin (sold for corns, callouses, etc.) and used it to protect the beauty of uncarpeted dining areas.

It can be cut to fit the bottom of "any" chair or table leg.

This eliminates scratches on the floor and your wax job will stay nice looking much longer. —R. B.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

Down to business . . . gotta great idea to pass along.

For working gals who forget to take those chops, steak, or chicken, out of the freezer in the A.M. Simply open freezer, extract meat, unwrap same and place on aluminum foil. Set the dishwasher on DRY and place meat on bottom rack.

Twenty minutes later . . . defrosted and ready to cook.

Really great when that unexpected company comes and we are stuck with mulligan stew for three. —Marge Crump

Dear Heloise:

Here is an easy way to oil a lock:

Dip your key into oil, insert in lock, work back and forth several times and your lock is oiled. —Nancie

Dear Heloise:

Do you have trouble putting your dress pattern pieces back into the envelope?

Try ironing each piece of the pattern with a fairly warm iron. Then fold and press until the pattern piece measures "almost" as large as your folded guide sheet.

Remember, as the folded pieces are stacked, they take up space so allow for this needed room.

This I learned from my home economics teacher many years ago. —Reader

Centennial Chapter 58, Order of Eastern Star, will meet at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in the Masonic Temple. Visiting members are welcome.

Hard-cook an extra egg. Mash it fairly fine and add it to mayonnaise to serve with a cooked vegetable salad.

Womanly Reason

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) —In trying to round up all 25-year graduates of a local high school, members of the sponsoring group received a refusal from a California woman who preferred to remain anonymous. Her reason: "My husband and children all think I'm four years younger than I am. If they found out I finished hig school 25 years ago, that would be a dead giveaway. Sorry!"

Fabled Shady Oak Farm Reported Sold

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Fabled Shady Oak Farm, where for many years the nationally prominent assembled to sample Western-style hospitality, has been sold by the Amon G. Carter Foundation.

The scenic and storied property of the late Fort Worth Star-Telegram publisher was purchased by Hughes Investment Corp. of Fort Worth for an undisclosed price. A reliable source said the transaction exceeded $1 million.

R. G. Hughes, president of the firm, said the property will become a site for construction of town houses, apartments, homes, a shopping center, light industrial facilities and a marina.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Nuts!

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been going nut hunting every year for the past eight years. He stays seven weeks. He looks forward to these trips and can hardly wait to get started. Last time he lost his diamond ring, and about four months later he got a letter from a married woman informing him that she had "found" the ring he lost while THEY were nut hunting.

Now, Abby, I know this woman and she doesn't have a very good name. I asked my husband how come she was along and he said her husband was there, too, which I doubt. He did bring some nuts home, so I know he went nut hunting. He comes and goes as he pleases with no consideration for me. What should I do? —HUNTER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband's report on "nut hunting" sounds a little squirrely to me. You had better find out if your Filbert is philandering, and crack down on him—or shell out. P.S. If he is telling the truth, he's certainly gone nutty on his hobby.

DEAR ABBY: I became engaged to a girl in June. The engagement ring I gave her belonged to my deceased mother. It was a small, but gem quality diamond. I won't go into detail here, but because I learned that she had been unfaithful to me several times during our engagement, I broke off with her. My lawyer tells me that because it was I who broke the engagement, she is entitled to keep the ring. I want that ring for sentimental reasons, Abby. How can I get it back? —SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: Ask her for it and tell her why you think she owes you its return. If that doesn't work, offer to buy it back, and if THAT doesn't work, thank God for saving you from a wretched marriage.

DEAR ABBY: My aunt asked me, "What do you want for a wedding present?" I said, "How much do you want to spend?" My mother heard me and she almost killed me. I don't see anything wrong with my question, do you? I know my aunt is going to buy me something, and I could use anything from a dish towel to a television set. My mother said I should have said, "Oh, nothing, really. All I want are your good wishes." Now isn't that ridiculous? (My aunt happens to be the richest one in our family!) —TOO HONEST

DEAR TOO: No one can be "too honest"—but you could have been more tactful. You might have replied, "I will leave the choice of a gift to you," or you could have TOLD her what you wanted.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Sign Me Troubled": Thank your father for his well-intentioned offer to help you get into a "good" college, and ask him please to forget it. Many a mediocre student has strangled on the strings his Daddy pulled to get him into a college for which he was not qualified.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. White announce the marriage of Mrs. White's daughter, Elizabeth Knowlton, to Morton McGinley, son of Mr. Edward McGinley of Baltimore, Md.

The recent ceremony was performed in Santa Fe, N.M. with only the members of both families present.

Mr. and Mrs. McGinley will reside at 9 Marland Rd.

Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Charles Duff of 700 Lyra Dr., Skyway Estates, gave a New Year's Day reception and open house at their home, for officers of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command and their wives.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Kenneth I. Curtis gave a holiday party last Wednesday night for 75 military and civilian friends at their home, 1932 El Parque.

The society section of the San Francisco Examiner featured a picture spread of a large cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Ferenc Molnar honoring their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gernot Heinrichsdorff of Colorado Springs. The Molnars had planned to stage the gala party on a houseboat in Sausalito but wet weather forced the party indoors, at the Molnar residence.

Mr. Molnar, noted violinist, who participated in the Colorado Summer Music Festivals for several seasons, is now director of The Chamber Music Center at San Francisco State College. Mrs. Molnar is a well-known novelist.

Guests at the reception included former Colorado Springs residents, Dr. and Mrs. J. Lindsay Patton and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Merrill. Also many notables including artists, sculptors, musicans and Nobel prize winner, Dr. Joshua Lederberg, biochemist, and Mrs. Lederberg.

Mr. and Mrs. David Mitchell Jr. of Broadmoor will leave for Arizona Thursday, where Mr. Mitchell will play in national golf tournaments in Tuscon and Scottsdale, for two successive weeks.

The Mitchells will then go to Los Angeles and board a jet for Honolulu where they will remain until April.

M. Sgt. (Ret.) and Mrs. Chester Mulawa of Stratmoor Hills entertained the cast of the Ft. Carson production of "The Fantasticks" on Dec. 30 with their daughters, Chris, a freshman at Southern Colorado State College, and Marianne who attends Stratmoor Hills Elementary School. Charades were the entertainment high spot of the evening.

Two Colorado Springs youths are among those earning academic honors for the second six weeks grading period of the first semester at Wentworth Military Academy.

The youths, who earned superior grades to qualify for the dean's lists, are as follows:

Cadet David Berwick, son of Mrs. Bobbe Berwick, 711 Manitou Ave., Manitou Springs, who qualified for the dean's Special Distinction List; and Cadet Jack E. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester T. Clark, 2731 W. Colorado Ave., who qualified for the dean's Honor Roll.

Cadets who earn academic honors during the specified grading periods at Wentworth are accorded extra privileges and are permitted to wear the Scholastic Bar on their uniform.

Lt. Col. George T. Bradley and Mrs. Bradley, and their daughter, Jane, of Colorado Springs were guests Christmas weekend at the home of his parents, the J. R. Bardleys of Canon City.

Johnson's State of the Union Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the text of President Johnson's State of the Union message:

We are entering the third century of the pursuit of American union.

For the first century we struggled to hold together the first continental union of democracy in the history of man. One hundred years ago, in 1865, following a terrible test of blood and fire, the compact of union was finally sealed.

For a second century we labored to establish a unity of purpose and interest among the many groups which make up the American community.

That struggle has often brought pain and violence. It is not yet over. But we have achieved a unity of interest among our people unmatched in the history of freedom.

And now, in 1965, we begin a new quest for union. We seek the unity of man with the world he has built — with the knowledge that can save or destroy him — with the cities which can stimulate or stifle him — with the wealth and machines which can enrich or menace his spirit.

We seek to establish a harmony between man and society which will allow each of us to enlarge the meaning of his life and all of us to elevate the quality of our civilization.

This is the search we begin tonight.

State of the World

But the unity we seek cannot realize its full promise in isolation. For today the state of the union depends, in large measure, upon the state of the world.

Our concern and interest, compassion and vigilance, extend to every corner of a dwindling planet.

Yet, it is not merely our concern but the concern of all free men. We will not, and should not, assume it is the task of Americans alone to settle all the conflicts of a torn and troubled world.

Let the foes of freedom take no comfort from this. For in concert with other nations, we shall help men defend their freedom.

Our first aim remains the safety and well-being of our own country.

We are prepared to live as good neighbors with all, but we cannot be indifferent to acts designed to injure our interests, our citizens, or our establishments abroad. The community of nations requires mutual respect. We shall extend it — and we shall expect it.

In our relations with the world we shall follow the example of Andrew Jackson who said: "I intend to ask for nothing that is not clearly right and to submit to nothing that is wrong." And he promised, "The honor of my country shall never be stained by an apology from me for the statement of truth or the performance of duty." That was our policy in the 1830s and that is our policy today.

Our own freedom and growth have never been the final goal of the American dream.

We were never meant to be an oasis of liberty and abundance in a world-wide desert of disappointed dreams. Our nation was created to help strike away the chains of ignorance and misery and tyranny wherever they keep man less than God means him to be.

We are moving toward that destiny, never more rapidly than in the last four years.

In this period we have built a military power strong enough to meet any threat and destroy any adversary. And that superiority will continue to grow so long as this office is mine — and you sit on Capitol Hill.

In this period no new nation has become Communist, and the unity of the Communist empire has begun to crumble.

In this period we have resolved in friendship our disputes with our neighbors of the Hemisphere, and joined in an Alliance for Progress toward economic growth and political democracy.

In this period we have taken more steps toward peace — including the Test Ban Treaty — than at any time since the Cold War began.

In this period we have relentlessly pursued our advances toward the conquest of space.

Most important of all, in this period, the United States has reemerged into the fullness of its self-confidence and purpose. No longer are we called upon to get America moving. We are moving. No longer do we doubt our strength or resolution. We are strong and we have proven our resolve.

No longer can anyone wonder whether we are in the grip of historical decay. We know that history is ours to make. And if there is great danger, there is now also the excitement of great expectations.

America and the Communist Nations

Yet we still live in a troubled and perilous world. There is no longer a single threat. There are many. They differ in intensity and danger. They require different attitudes and different answers.

With the Soviet Union we seek peaceful understandings that can lessen the danger to Freedom.

Last fall I asked the American people to choose that course.

I will carry forward their command.

If we are to live together in peace, we must come to know each other better.

I am sure the American people would welcome a chance to listen to the Soviet leaders on our television — as I would like the Soviet people to hear our leaders.

I hope the new Soviet leaders can visit America so they can learn about this country at first hand.

In Eastern Europe restless nations are slowly beginning to assert their identity. Your government, assisted by leaders in labor and business, is exploring ways to increase peaceful trade with these countries and the Soviet Union. I will report our conclusions to the Congress.

In Asia Communism wears a more aggressive face.

We see that in Viet Nam.

Why are we there?

We are there, first, because a friendly nation has asked us for help against Communist aggression. Ten years ago we pledged our help. Three presidents have supported that pledge. We will not break it.

Second, our own security is tied to the peace of Asia. Twice in one generation we have had to fight against aggression in the Far East. To ignore aggression would only increase the danger of a larger war.

Our goal is peace in Southeast Asia. That will come only when aggressors leave their neighbors in peace.

What is at stake is the cause of freedom. In that cause we shall never be found wanting.

The Non-Communist World

But communism is not the only source of trouble and unrest. There are older and deeper sources — in the misery of nations and in man's irrepressible ambition for liberty and a better life.

With the free republics of Latin America I have always felt — and my country has always felt — special ties of interest and affection. It will be the purpose of this administration to strengthen these ties. Together we share and shape the destiny of the New World. In the coming year I hope to pay a visit to Latin America. And I will steadily enlarge our commitment to the Alliance for Progress as the instrument of our war against poverty and injustice in the Hemisphere.

In the Atlantic community we continue to pursue our goal of 20 years — a Europe growing in strength, unity, and cooperation with America. A great unfinished task is the reunification of Germany through self-determination.

This European policy is not based on any abstract design. It is based on the realities of common interests and common values, common dangers and common expectations. These realities will continue to have their way — especially in our expanding trade and our common defense.

Free Americans have shaped the policies of the United States. And because we know these realities, those policies have been, and will be, in the interest of Europe.

Free Europeans must shape the course of Europe. And, for the same reasons, that course has been, and will be, in our interest and the interest of freedom.

I found this truth confirmed in my talks with European leaders in the yast year. I hope to repay these visits to some of our friends in Europe this year.

In Africa and Asia we are witnessing the turbulent unfolding of new nations and continents.

We welcome them to the society of nations.

We are committed to help those seeking to strengthen their own independence, and to work most closely with those governments dedicated to the welfare of all their people.

We seek not fidelity to an iron faith, but a diversity of belief as varied as man himself. We seek not to extend the power of America but the progress of humanity. We seek not to dominate others but to strengthen the freedom of all.

I will seek new ways to use our knowledge to help deal with the explosion in world population and the growing scarcity in world resources.

Finally, we renew our commitment to the continued growth and effectiveness of the United Nations. The frustrations of the U.N. are a product of the world we live in, not of the institution which gives them voice. It is far better to throw these differences open to the assembly of nations than permit them to fester in silent danger.

We seek peace.

We seek freedom.

We seek to enrich the life of man.

For that is the world in which we will flourish.

That is the world we mean for all men to have.

Toward the Great Society

World affairs will continue to call upon our energy and courage.

But today we can turn increased attention to the character of American life.

We are in the midst of the greatest upward surge of economic well-being in the history of any nation.

Our flourishing progress has been marked by price stability unequalled in the world. Our balance of payments deficit has declined and the soundness of our dollar is unquestioned. I pledge to keep it that way. I urge business and labor to cooperate to that end.

We worked for two centuries to climb this peak of prosperity But we are only at the beginning of the road to the Great Society Ahead, now is a summit where freedom from the wants of the body can help fulfill the needs of the spirit.

We built this nation to serve its people.

We want to grow and build and create, but we want progress to be the servant and not the master of man.

We do not intend to live — in the midst of abundance — isolated from neighbors and nature, confined by blighted cities and bleak suburbs, stunted by a poverty of learning and an emptiness of leisure.

The Great Society asks not only how much, but how good; not only how to create wealth but how to use it; not only how fast we are going, but where we are headed.

It proposes as the first test for a nation: The quality of its people.

This kind of society will not flower spontaneously from swelling riches and surging power.

It will not be the gift of government or the creation of presidents.

It will require of every American, for many generations, both faith in the destination and the fortitude to make the journey.

Like freedom itself, it will always be challenge and not fulfillment.

Tonight we accept that challenge.

A National Agenda

I propose we begin a program in education to ensure every American child the fullest development of his mind and skills.

I propose we begin a massive attack on crippling and killing diseases.

I propose we launch a national effort to make the American city a better and more stimulating place to live.

I propose we increase the beauty of America and end the poisoning of our rivers and the air we breathe.

I propose we carry out a new program to develop regions of our country now suffering from distress and depression.

I propose we make new efforts to control and prevent crime and delinquency.

I propose we eliminate every remaining obstacle to the right and opportunity to vote.

I propose we honor and support the achievements of thought and the creations of art.

I propose we make an all-out campaign against waste and inefficiency.

The Task

Our basic task is three fold:

—To keep our economy growing.

—To open for all Americans the opportunities now enjoyed by most Americans.

—To improve the quality of life for all.

In the next six weeks I will submit special messages with detailed proposals for national action in each of these areas.

Tonight I would like briefly to explain some of my major recommendations in the three main areas of national need.

I. A Growing Economy

Basic policies

First, we must keep our nation prosperous. We seek full employment opportunity for every American. I will present a budget designed to move the economy forward. More money will be left in the hands of the consumer by a substantial cut in excise taxes. We will continue along the path toward a balanced budget and a balanced economy.

I confidently predict — what every economy sign now tell us — the continued flourishing of the American economy.

But we must remember that fear of a recession can contribute to the fact of a recession. The knowledge that our government will, and can, move swiftly will strengthen the confidence of investors and business.

Congress can re-enforce this confidence by insuring that its procedures permit rapid action on temporary income tax cuts. And special funds for job-creating public programs should be made available for immediate use if recession threatens.

Our continued prosperity demands continued price stability. Business, labor and the consumer all have a high stake in keeping wages and prices within the framework of the guideposts that have already served the nation so well.

Finding new markets abroad for our goods depends on the initiative of American business. But we stand ready — with credit and other help — to assist the flow of trade which will benefit the entire nation.

On The Farms

Our economy owes much to the efficiency of our farmers. We must continue to assure them the opportunity to earn a fair reward. I have instructed the secretary of agriculture to lead a major effort to find new approaches to reduce the heavy cost of our farm programs and to direct more of our effort to the small farmer who needs help most.

Increased Prosperity

We can help insure continued prosperity through:

—A regional recovery program to assist development of stricken areas left behind by our national progress.

—Further efforts to provide our workers with the skills demanded by modern technology, for the laboring man is an indespensible force in the American system.

—Extension of the minimum wage to more than two million unprotected workers.

—Improvement and modernization of the unemployment compensation system.

As pledged in our 1960 and 1964 Democratic platforms, I will propose to Congress changes in the Taft-Hartley Act including Section 14-B. I will do so hoping to reduce conflicts.

Transportation For Growth

I will recommend heavier reliance on competition in transportation and a new policy for our Merchant Marine.

I will ask for funds to study high speed rail transportation between urban centers. We will begin with test projects between Boston and Washington. On high-speed trains, passengers could travel this distance in less time.

II. Opportunity For All

Second, we must open opportunity to all our people.

Let a just nation throw open to them the city of promise:

—To the elderly, by providing hospital care under Social Security and by raising benefit payments to those struggling to maintain the dignity of their later years.

—To the poor, through doubling the war against poverty this year.

—To Negro Americans, through enforcement of the Civil Rights Law and elimination of barriers to the right to vote.

—To those in other lands seeking the promise of America, through an immigration law based on the work a man can do and not where he was born or how he spells his name.

III. To Enrich the Life of All

Our third goal is to improve the quality of American life.

Through education: We begin with learning.

Every child must have the best education our nation can provide.

Thomas Jefferson said no nation can be both ignorant and free. Today no nation can be both ingorant and great.

In addition to our existing programs, I will recommend a new program for schools and students with a first year authorization of one billion, 500 million dollars.

It will help at every stage along the road to learning.

For the pre-school years we will help needy children become aware of the excitement of learning.

For the primary and secondary school years we will aid public schools serving low income families and assist students in both public and private schools.

For the college years we will provide scholarships to high school students of the greatest promise and greatest need and guaranteed low interest loans to students continuing their college studies.

New laboratories and centers will help our schools lift their standards of excellence and explore new methods of teaching. These centers will provide special training for those who need and deserve special treatment.

Through Better Health

Greatness requires not only an educated people but a healthy people.

Our goal is to match the achievements of our medicine to the afflictions of our people.

We already carry on a large program for research and health.

In addition, regional medical centers can provide the most advanced diagnosis and treatment for heart disease, cancer, stroke, and other major diseases.

New support for medical and dental education will provide the trained men to apply our knowledge.

Community centers can help the mentally ill and improve health care for school-age children from poor families, including services for the mentally retarded.

Through Improving The World We Live In

The city:

An educated and healthy people require surroundings in harmony with their hopes.

In our urban areas the central problem today is to protect and restore man's satisfaction in belonging to a community where he can find security and significance.

The first step is to break old patterns — to begin to think, work and plan for the development of entire metropolitan areas. We will take this step with new programs of help for basic community facilities and neighborhood centers of health and recreation.

We must also make important changes in our housing programs if we are to pursue these same basic goals.

A Department of Housing and Urban Development will be needed to spearhead this effort in our cities.

Every citizen has the right to feel secure in his home and on the streets of his community.

To help control crime, we will recommend programs:

—To train local law enforcement officers.

—To put the best techniques of modern science at their disposal.

—To discover the causes of crime and better ways to prevent it.

I will soon assemble a panel of outstanding experts to search out answers to the national problem of crime and delinquency.

The Beauty Of America

For over three centuries the beauty of America has sustained our spirit and enlarged our vision. We must act now to protect this heritage. In a fruitful new partnership with the states and cities the next decade should be a conservation milestone. We must make a massive effort to save the countryside and establish — as a green legacy for tomorrow — more large and small parks, more seashores and open spaces than have been created during any period in our history.

A new and substantial effort must be made to landscape highways and provide places of relaxation and recreation wherever our roads run.

Within our cities imaginative programs are needed to landscape streets and transform open areas into places of beauty and recreation.

We will seek legal power to prevent pollution of our air and water before it happens. We will step up our effort to control harmful wastes, giving first priority to the cleanup of our most contaminated rivers. We will increase research to learn more about control of pollution.

We hope to make the Potomac a model of beauty and recreation for the entire country — and preserve unspoiled stretches of some of our waterways with a wild rivers bill.

More ideas for a beautiful America will emerge from a White House conference on natural beauty which I will soon call.

Art And Science

We must also recognize and encourage those who can be pathfinders for the nation's imagination and understanding.

To help promote and honor creative achievements, I will propose a national foundation on the arts.

To develop knowledge which will enrich our lives and ensure our progress, I will recommend programs to encourage basic science, particularly in the universities — and to bring closer the day when the oceans will supply our growing need for fresh water.

IV. The Government

For government to serve these goals it must be modern in structure, efficient in action, and ready for any emergency.

I am currently reviewing the structure of the executive branch. I hope to reshape and reorganize it to meet more effectively the tasks of today.

I intend to do better this year.

And I will soon report to you on our progress and on new economies we plan to make.

Even the best of government is subject to the worst of hazards.

I will propose laws to ensure the necessary continuity of leadership should the President become disabled or die.

In addition, I will propose reforms in the Electoral College — leaving undisturbed the vote by states — but making sure no elector can substitute his will for that of the people.

Last year I spoke to you after 33 years of public service, most of them on this hill.

This year I speak after one year as President of the United States.

Many of you in this chamber are among my oldest friends. We have shared many happy moments and many hours of work, and we have watched many presidents together. Yet, only in the White House can you finally know the full weight of this office.

The greatest burden is not running the huge operations of government — or meeting daily troubles, large and small — or even working with the Congress.

Yet the presidency brings no special gift of prophecy or foresignt. You take an oath — step into an office — and must then help guide a great democracy.

The answer was waiting for me in the land where I was born.

It was once barren land. The angular hills were covered with scrub cedar and a few live oaks. Little would grow in the harsh caliche soil. And each spring the Pedernales River would flood the valley.

But men came and worked and endured and built.

Today that country is abundant with fruit, cattle, goats and sheep. There are pleasant homes, and lakes, and the floods are gone.

Why did men come to that once forbidding land?

They were restless, of course, and had to be moving on. But there was more than that. There was a dream — a dream of a place where a free man could build for himself, and raise his children to a better life — a dream of a continent to be conquered, a world to be won, a nation to be made.

Remembering this, I knew the answer.

He collects it from the scattered hopes of the American past.

It existed when the first settlers saw the coast of a new world, and when the first pioneers moved westward.

It has guided us every step of the way.

It sustains every President. But it is also your inheritance and it belongs equally to the people we serve.

It must be interpreted anew by each generation for its own needs; as I have tried, in part, to do today.

It shall lead us as we enter this third century of the search for "a more perfect union."

This, then, is the state of the union:

Free, restless, growing and full of hope.

So it was in the beginning.

So it shall always be, while God is willing, and we are strong enough to keep the faith.

MORE TAX TRACKERS

CHICAGO (AP)—The federal government now is getting help from 34 states and the District of Columbia in tracking down and collecting taxes.

The Commerce Clearing House says during the past 12 months 10 states including New York and Massachusetts have negotiated state - federal tax agreements to step up enforcement.

The agreements cover exchanges of audit information relating to income, sales, use, estate and gift, motor fuel and highway use taxes. The pacts also agree to exchange information on failure to file returns and nonpayment of taxes involving either jurisdiction.

Only 10 per cent of the population of Ecuador is white. Indians comprise 30 per cent; mixed 40 per cent, and the remainder are mulattoes, Negroes and others.

Welfare Plan's Success Rests With Democrats

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's plans for opening "the city of promise to Americas poor and unfortunate seem assured of a warm reception in Congress.

The chances of success rest largely with the Democrats, whose heavy majority found them overflowing their side of the House chamber Monday night to hear Johnson's State of the Union address.

The attitude of many of them was summed up by Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, when he said: "I think were of a mind to give him anything he wants. All he has to do is tell us what it is.

Dawsons committee will handle a key part of Johnsons program for restoring vitality to Americas urban centers — the creation of a department of housing and urban development.

This proposal, knocked down by the House when President John F. Kennedy requested it, now faces clear sailing in Dawsons view.

Another chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., who heads the Judiciary Committee, expressed similar feelings about Johnson's request for legislation to eliminate "barriers to the right to vote."

The request is expected to take the form of a constitutional amendment that would eliminate literacy tests as a qualification for voting.

Asked if he thought it could pass, Celler replied: "With this group here it sure can.

Other Democrats, however, said any civil rights legislation might be put over until the second session of the 89th Congress in view of the long struggle over civil rights last year.

Johnson's call or $1.5 billion to improve U.S. education got a friendly response from some Republicans as well as Democrats.

Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., ranking GOP member of the House Education and Labor Committee, pointed out that the federal scholarship program requested by the President for needy high school students originated under President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Details of the program were lacking in Johnson's message. But Frelinghuysen, echoing the sentiments of many Democrats, added: "I would assume he would get just about what he wants.

That would include a federal aid program geared to public schools serving low income families. Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the House subcommittee that will handle the legislation, said he has a bill ready to go.

It would use a formula to funnel money to school districts based on unemployment and per capita income of parents, and the number of parents receiving public welfare assistance.

Another bill ready to go would carry out Johnson's request for legislation to provide hospital care for the elderly under Social Security, and an increase in Social Security benefits.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a long-time foe of the program, has come a long way toward a meeting of the minds with the administration.

Mills attitude gives every prospect of a compromise and quick action on the long stalled measure.

NEW CIRCUITS UNVEILED

HICKSVILLE, N.Y. (UPI)—Microelectronic circuits that can operate on only two ten thousands of a watt were announced Monday by General Instrument Corp.

The circuits, for use in space vehicle instrumentation, are less than one-tenth of an inch thick and measure only three-eighths of an inch square. Use of a special ceramic - -mehallic resistor makes possible the high efficiency at lower power.

Test-drive a Ford—and you're in for some surprises. Leading acoustical consultants conducted tests in which 1965 Fords (Galaxie 500 Sedan, XL and LTD Hardtops) with 289-cu. in. V-8 engines rode quieter than a Rolls-Royce. These tests were certified by the U. S. Auto Club.

When you feel a 1965 Ford in action—with the strongest Ford body ever . . . a revolutionary new frame that "tunes out" vibration . . . new ultrasoft coil spring suspension—you're bound to be impressed. But the ride is only one of Ford's surprises . . .

■ New swept-back instrument panel adds five inches extra knee room. ■ Transmission tunnel is lower for extra foot room. ■ Trunk has more space than ever—holds four 2-suiters standing upright.

■ Handy new "reversible" ignition key—works either side up.

■ Hot, but hushed, 289-cu. in. V-8 is standard equipment in XL and LTD models. ■ Smooth, thrifty all-new Bix Six in other models—the most powerful standard Six offered by any car in Ford's class. ■ V-8 options to 425 hp.

■ All Ford automatic transmissions have three speeds, not two as in some competing cars. Result: you pass faster, shift smoother, save on gas. ■ Fully synchronized manual transmissions—you can even shift down to first without clashing gears. ■ New Ford LTD 4-door hardtops have 10 courtesy lights, 5 ash trays. Upholstery treated to keep its beauty with Scotchgard® stain repellent. ■ Luxuries you'd expect only in the highest priced cars.

Johnson's State of the Union Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the text of President Johnson's State of the Union message:

We are entering the third century of the pursuit of American union.

For the first century we struggled to hold together the first continental union of democracy in the history of man. One hundred years ago, in 1865, following a terrible test of blood and fire, the compact of union was finally sealed.

For a second century we labored to establish a unity of purpose and interest among the many groups which make up the American community.

That struggle has often brought pain and violence. It is not yet over. But we have achieved a unity of interest among our people unmatched in the history of freedom.

And now, in 1965, we begin a new quest for union. We seek the unity of man with the world he has built — with the knowledge that can save or destroy him — with the cities which can stimulate or stifle him — with the wealth and machines which can enrich or menace his spirit.

We seek to establish a harmony between man and society which will allow each of us to enlarge the meaning of his life and all of us to elevate the quality of our civilization.

This is the search we begin tonight.

State of the World

But the unity we seek cannot realize its full promise in isolation. For today the state of the union depends, in large measure, upon the state of the world.

Our concern and interest, compassion and vigilance, extend to every corner of a dwindling planet.

Yet, it is not merely our concern but the concern of all free men. We will not, and should not, assume it is the task of Americans alone to settle all the conflicts of a torn and troubled world.

Let the foes of freedom take no comfort from this. For in concert with other nations, we shall help men defend their freedom.

Our first aim remains the safety and well-being of our own country.

We are prepared to live as good neighbors with all, but we cannot be indifferent to acts designed to injure our interests, our citizens, or our establishments abroad. The community of nations requires mutual respect. We shall extend it — and we shall expect it.

In our relations with the world we shall follow the example of Andrew Jackson who said: "I intend to ask for nothing that is not clearly right and to submit to nothing that is wrong." And he promised, "The honor of my country shall never be stained by an apology from me for the statement of truth or the performance of duty." That was our policy in the 1830s and that is our policy today.

Our own freedom and growth have never been the final goal of the American dream.

We were never meant to be an oasis of liberty and abundance in a world-wide desert of disappointed dreams. Our nation was created to help strike away the chains of ignorance and misery and tyranny wherever they keep man less than God means him to be.

We are moving toward that destiny, never more rapidly than in the last four years.

We built this nation to serve its people.

We want to grow and build and create, but we want progress to be the servant and not the master of man.

We do not intend to live — in the midst of abundance — isolated from neighbors and nature, confined by blighted cities and bleak suburbs, stunted by a poverty of learning and an emptiness of leisure.

The Great Society asks not only how much, but how good; not only how to create wealth but how to use it; not only how fast we are going, but where we are headed.

It proposes as the first test for a nation: The quality of its people.

This kind of society will not flower spontaneously from swelling riches and surging power.

It will not be the gift of government or the creation of presidents.

It will require of every American, for many generations, both faith in the destination and the fortitude to make the journey.

Like freedom itself, it will always be challenge and not fulfillment.

Tonight we accept that challenge.

A National Agenda

I propose we begin a program in education to ensure every American child the fullest development of his mind and skills.

I propose we begin a massive attack on crippling and killing diseases.

I propose we launch a national effort to make the American city a better and more stimulating place to live.

I propose we increase the beauty of America and end the poisoning of our rivers and the air we breathe.

I propose we carry out a new program to develop regions of our country now suffering from distress and depression.

I propose we make new efforts to control and prevent crime and delinquency.

I propose we eliminate every remaining obstacle to the right and opportunity to vote.

I propose we honor and support the achievements of thought and the creations of art.

I propose we make an all-out campaign against waste and inefficiency.

The Task

Our basic task is three fold:

—To keep our economy growing.

—To open for all Americans the opportunities now enjoyed by most Americans.

—To improve the quality of life for all.

In the next six weeks I will submit special messages with detailed proposals for national action in each of these areas.

Tonight I would like briefly to explain some of my major recommendations in the three main areas of national need.

I. A Growing Economy

Basic policies

First, we must keep our nation prosperous. We seek full employment opportunity for every American. I will present a budget designed to move the economy forward. More money will be left in the hands of the consumer by a substantial cut in excise taxes. We will continue along the path toward a balanced budget and a balanced economy.

I confidently predict — what every economy sign now tell us — the continued flourishing of the American economy.

But we must remember that fear of a recession can contribute to the fact of a recession. The knowledge that our government will, and can, move swiftly will strengthen the confidence of investors and business.

Congress can re-enforce this confidence by insuring that its procedures permit rapid action on temporary income tax cuts. And special funds for job-creating public programs should be made available for immediate use if recession threatens.

Our continued prosperity demands continued price stability. Business, labor and the consumer all have a high stake in keeping wages and prices within the framework of the guideposts that have already served the nation so well.

Finding new markets abroad for our goods depends on the initiative of American business. But we stand ready — with credit and other help — to assist the flow of trade which will benefit the entire nation.

On The Farms

Our economy owes much to the efficiency of our farmers. We must continue to assure them the opportunity to earn a fair reward. I have instructed the secretary of agriculture to lead a major effort to find new approaches to reduce the heavy cost of our farm programs and to direct more of our effort to the small farmer who needs help most.

Increased Prosperity

We can help insure continued prosperity through:

—A regional recovery program to assist development of stricken areas left behind by our national progress.

—Further efforts to provide our workers with the skills demanded by modern technology, for the laboring man is an indespensible force in the American system.

—Extension of the minimum wage to more than two million unprotected workers.

—Improvement and modernization of the unemployment compensation system.

As pledged in our 1960 and 1964 Democratic platforms, I will propose to Congress changes in the Taft-Hartley Act including Section 14-B. I will do so hoping to reduce conflicts.

Transportation For Growth

I will recommend heavier reliance on competition in transportation and a new policy for our Merchant Marine.

I will ask for funds to study high speed rail transportation between urban centers. We will begin with test projects between Boston and Washington. On high-speed trains, passengers could travel this distance in less time.

II. Opportunity For All

Second, we must open opportunity to all our people.

Let a just nation throw open to them the city of promise:

—To the elderly, by providing hospital care under Social Security and by raising benefit payments to those struggling to maintain the dignity of their later years.

—To the poor, through doubling the war against poverty this year.

—To Negro Americans, through enforcement of the Civil Rights Law and elimination of barriers to the right to vote.

—To those in other lands seeking the promise of America, through an immigration law based on the work a man can do and not where he was born or how he spells his name.

III. To Enrich the Life of All

Our third goal is to improve the quality of American life.

Through education: We begin with learning.

Every child must have the best education our nation can provide.

Thomas Jefferson said no nation can be both ignorant and free. Today no nation can be both ingorant and great.

In addition to our existing programs, I will recommend a new program for schools and students with a first year authorization of one billion, 500 million dollars.

It will help at every stage along the road to learning.

For the pre-school years we will help needy children become aware of the excitement of learning.

For the primary and secondary school years we will aid public schools serving low income families and assist students in both public and private schools.

For the college years we will provide scholarships to high school students of the greatest promise and greatest need and guaranteed low interest loans to students continuing their college studies.

New laboratories and centers will help our schools lift their standards of excellence and explore new methods of teaching. These centers will provide special training for those who need and deserve special treatment.

Through Better Health

Greatness requires not only an educated people but a healthy people.

Our goal is to match the achievements of our medicine to the afflictions of our people.

We already carry on a large program for research and health.

In addition, regional medical centers can provide the most advanced diagnosis and treatment for heart disease, cancer, stroke, and other major diseases.

New support for medical and dental education will provide the trained men to apply our knowledge.

Community centers can help the mentally ill and improve health care for school-age children from poor families, including services for the mentally retarded.

Through Improving The World We Live In

The city:

An educated and healthy people require surroundings in harmony with their hopes.

In our urban areas the central problem today is to protect and restore man's satisfaction in belonging to a community where he can find security and significance.

The first step is to break old patterns — to begin to think, work and plan for the development of entire metropolitan areas. We will take this step with new programs of help for basic community facilities and neighborhood centers of health and recreation.

We must also make important changes in our housing programs if we are to pursue these same basic goals.

A Department of Housing and Urban Development will be needed to spearhead this effort in our cities.

Every citizen has the right to feel secure in his home and on the streets of his community.

To help control crime, we will recommend programs:

—To train local law enforcement officers.

—To put the best techniques of modern science at their disposal.

—To discover the causes of crime and better ways to prevent it.

I will soon assemble a panel of outstanding experts to search out answers to the national problem of crime and delinquency.

The Beauty Of America

For over three centuries the beauty of America has sustained our spirit and enlarged our vision. We must act now to protect this heritage. In a fruitful new partnership with the states and cities the next decade should be a conservation milestone. We must make a massive effort to save the countryside and establish — as a green legacy for tomorrow — more large and small parks, more seashores and open spaces than have been created during any period in our history.

A new and substantial effort must be made to landscape highways and provide places of relaxation and recreation wherever our roads run.

Within our cities imaginative programs are needed to landscape streets and transform open areas into places of beauty and recreation.

We will seek legal power to prevent pollution of our air and water before it happens. We will step up our effort to control harmful wastes, giving first priority to the cleanup of our most contaminated rivers. We will increase research to learn more about control of pollution.

We hope to make the Potomac a model of beauty and recreation for the entire country — and preserve unspoiled stretches of some of our waterways with a wild rivers bill.

More ideas for a beautiful America will emerge from a White House conference on natural beauty which I will soon call.

Art And Science

We must also recognize and encourage those who can be pathfinders for the nation's imagination and understanding.

To help promote and honor creative achievements, I will propose a national foundation on the arts.

To develop knowledge which will enrich our lives and ensure our progress, I will recommend programs to encourage basic science, particularly in the universities — and to bring closer the day when the oceans will supply our growing need for fresh water.

IV. The Government

For government to serve these goals it must be modern in structure, efficient in action, and ready for any emergency.

I am currently reviewing the structure of the executive branch. I hope to reshape and reorganize it to meet more effectively the tasks of today.

I intend to do better this year.

And I will soon report to you on our progress and on new economies we plan to make.

Even the best of government is subject to the worst of hazards.

I will propose laws to ensure the necessary continuity of leadership should the President become disabled or die.

In addition, I will propose reforms in the Electoral College — leaving undisturbed the vote by states — but making sure no elector can substitute his will for that of the people.

Last year I spoke to you after 33 years of public service, most of them on this hill.

This year I speak after one year as President of the United States.

Many of you in this chamber are among my oldest friends. We have shared many happy moments and many hours of work, and we have watched many presidents together. Yet, only in the White House can you finally know the full weight of this office.

The greatest burden is not running the huge operations of government — or meeting daily troubles, large and small — or even working with the Congress.

Yet the presidency brings no special gift of prophecy or foresight. You take an oath — step into an office — and must then help guide a great democracy.

The answer was waiting for me in the land where I was born.

It was once barren land. The angular hills were covered with scrub cedar and a few live oaks. Little would grow in the harsh caliche soil. And each spring the Pedernales River would flood the valley.

But men came and worked and endured and built.

Today that country is abundant with fruit, cattle, goats and sheep. There are pleasant homes, and lakes, and the floods are gone.

Why did men come to that once forbidding land?

They were restless, of course, and had to be moving on. But there was more than that. There was a dream — a dream of a place where a free man could build for himself, and raise his children to a better life — a dream of a continent to be conquered, a world to be won, a nation to be made.

Remembering this, I knew the answer.

He collects it from the scattered hopes of the American past.

It existed when the first settlers saw the coast of a new world, and when the first pioneers moved westward.

It has guided us every step of the way.

It sustains every President. But it is also your inheritance and it belongs equally to the people we serve.

It must be interpreted anew by each generation for its own needs; as I have tried, in part, to do today.

It shall lead us as we enter this third century of the search for "a more perfect union."

This, then, is the state of the union:

Free, restless, growing and full of hope.

So it was in the beginning.

So it shall always be, while God is willing, and we are strong enough to keep the faith.

MORE TAX TRACKERS

CHICAGO (AP)—The federal government now is getting help from 34 states and the District of Columbia in tracking down and collecting taxes.

The Commerce Clearing House says during the past 12 months 10 states including New York and Massachusetts have negotiated state - federal tax agreements to step up enforcement.

The agreements cover exchanges of audit information relating to income, sales, use, estate and gift, motor fuel and highway use taxes. The pacts also agree to exchange information on failure to file returns and nonpayment of taxes involving either jurisdiction.

Only 10 per cent of the population of Ecuador is white. Indians comprise 30 per cent; mixed 40 per cent, and the remainder are mulattoes, Negroes and others.

Welfare Plan's Success Rests With Democrats

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's plans for opening "the city of promise to Americas poor and unfortunate seem assured of a warm reception in Congress.

The chances of success rest largely with the Democrats, whose heavy majority found them overflowing their side of the House chamber Monday night to hear Johnson's State of the Union address.

The attitude of many of them was summed up by Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, when he said: "I think were of a mind to give him anything he wants. All he has to do is tell us what it is.

Dawsons committee will handle a key part of Johnsons program for restoring vitality to Americas urban centers — the creation of a department of housing and urban development.

This proposal, knocked down by the House when President John F. Kennedy requested it, now faces clear sailing in Dawsons view.

Another chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., who heads the Judiciary Committee, expressed similar feelings about Johnson's request for legislation to eliminate "barriers to the right to vote."

The request is expected to take the form of a constitutional amendment that would eliminate literacy tests as a qualification for voting.

Asked if he thought it could pass, Celler replied: "With this group here it sure can.

Other Democrats, however, said any civil rights legislation might be put over until the second session of the 89th Congress in view of the long struggle over civil rights last year.

Johnson's call or $1.5 billion to improve U.S. education got a friendly response from some Republicans as well as Democrats.

Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., ranking GOP member of the House Education and Labor Committee, pointed out that the federal scholarship program requested by the President for needy high school students originated under President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Details of the program were lacking in Johnson's message. But Frelinghuysen, echoing the sentiments of many Democrats, added: "I would assume he would get just about what he wants.

That would include a federal aid program geared to public schools serving low income families. Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the House subcommittee that will handle the legislation, said he has a bill ready to go.

It would use a formula to funnel money to school districts based on unemployment and per capita income of parents, and the number of parents receiving public welfare assistance.

Another bill ready to go would carry out Johnson's request for legislation to provide hospital care for the elderly under Social Security, and an increase in Social Security benefits.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a long-time foe of the program, has come a long way toward a meeting of the minds with the administration.

Mills attitude gives every prospect of a compromise and quick action on the long stalled measure.

NEW CIRCUITS UNVEILED

HICKSVILLE, N.Y. (UPI)—Microelectronic circuits that can operate on only two ten thousands of a watt were announced Monday by General Instrument Corp.

The circuits, for use in space vehicle instrumentation, are less than one-tenth of an inch thick and measure only three-eighths of an inch square. Use of a special ceramic - -mehallic resistor makes possible the high efficiency at lower power.

The world's leading acoustical experts made the test.
The U. S. Auto Club certified the results:
at 20 mph . . . at 40 mph . . . at 60 mph . . .
The 1965 Ford rides quieter than a Rolls-Royce!

...and now let's talk about some other Ford surprises...

Test-drive a Ford—and you're in for some surprises. Leading acoustical consultants conducted tests in which 1965 Fords (Galaxie 500 Sedan, XL and LTD Hardtops) with 289-cu. in. V-8 engines rode quieter than a Rolls-Royce. These tests were certified by the U. S. Auto Club.

When you feel a 1965 Ford in action—with the strongest Ford body ever . . . a revolutionary new frame that "tunes out" vibration . . . new ultrasoft coil spring suspension—you're bound to be impressed. But the ride is only one of Ford's surprises . . .

■ New swept-back instrument panel adds five inches extra knee room. ■ Transmission tunnel is lower for extra foot room. ■ Trunk has more space than ever—holds four 2-suiters standing upright. ■ Handy new "reversible" ignition key—works either side up.

■ Hot, but hushed, 289-cu. in. V-8 is standard equipment in XL and LTD models. ■ Smooth, thrifty all-new Bix Six in other models—the most powerful standard Six offered by any car in Ford's class. ■ V-8 options to 425 hp.

■ All Ford automatic transmissions have three speeds, not two as in some competing cars. Result: you pass faster, shift smoother, save on gas. ■ Fully synchronized manual transmissions—you can even shift down to first without clashing gears. ■ New Ford LTD 4-door hardtops have 10 courtesy lights, 5 ash trays. Upholstery treated to keep its beauty with Scotchgard® stain repellent. ■ Luxuries you'd expect only in the highest priced cars.

Surprised? You will be . . . when you visit your Ford Dealer and test-drive the Quiet One. Do it soon!

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

BRYAN FORBES IS RATED AT TOP WRITER-DIRECTOR

HOLLYWOOD — The hottest writer-director these days is England's Bryan ("L - Shaped Room") Forbes. His sleeper, "Seance on a Wet Afternoon," is bound to gather some Oscars, and we gave him the VIP treatment when he was here making "King Rat." Ten years ago Forbes first came here as the husband of a starlet. He got an acting job in "The World in His Arms" for Director Raoul Walsh. The marriage broke up as the film ended. Bryan was shattered and penniless. Walsh took over. "If you stay here you'll become a bum," he told Forbes. And with that he took him straight to the T.W.A. ticket office, bought him a one-way to London, and said "Don't pack. We'll send your luggage."

Raoul got his money back last year. Says Forbes: "I waited until I could pay him in dollars. When I gave him the envelope with the money, he'd completely forgotten the incident. He visited me on 'King Rat'; is still hale and hearty, and tough as nails. Lives on a ranch in Thousand Oaks, still rolls Bull Durham, wears an eye patch and tells marvelous stories about the early days. He was in 'Birth of a Nation' and directed the original "What Price Glory.'"

The biggest mystery in town is who hired Ann Rosenberg and her New York public relations firm to change Hollywood's image, for which she gets a mere $250,000 a year from our producers. I've asked five people who should know. None could answer. Anna was responsible for that first United Nations show (the one about Scrooge) on TV recently. Now if that's her idea of changing our image, somebody should get her aside and give her a briefing. It was propaganda all right, but not for our industry. For a quarter of a million a year, she's got to do better than that. If I were one of those producers shelling out the loot, I'd be screaming murder.

Ailing but on the mend: Ray Bolger home from the hospital after minor (but not to him) surgery, and Joe Pasternak reduced to a whisper for 10 days after a throat operation. He's in Palm Springs recuping.

The Theater Guild is trying to lure Bob Newhart to New York for the play, "The Wayward Stork." It'll have to be good to get Bob out of his cozy apartment here. The story's about a couple who wanted a baby for years and finally made it. Not too promising a premise.

Max Showalter returned from New York and spent two weeks in bed with flu, but wrote six songs and plays opposite Lucy on her show with Arthur Godfrey and Vivian Vance. Max had a social whirl in New York. Had to buy six extra evening shirts.

The Santa Monica postoffice is snowed under with mail for Nat (King) Cole. In two days alone, he got 25,000 letters.

Capitol Records has orders for 3½ million copies of the Beatles' new album.

Anne Bazter narrates the world premier of "Aesop's Fables" with the California Chamber Synphony, March 20, the first of three hour-long concerts for youth at U.C.L.A. Herbert Donaldson's score will be conducted by Henry Temianka, while Anne recites seven of the familiar fables. Rehearsals start shortly after her return from Honolulu where she and her husband, Randolph Galt, with their three children, spent the holidays.

Pat Buttram goes to Detroit to emcee the big annual General Motors shindig. He's just the guy to keep 'em laughing. He's our modern Will Rogers, and the country's beginning to realize it.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

HOLLYWOOD — The hottest writer-director these days is England's Bryan ("L - Shaped Room") Forbes. His sleeper, "Seance on a Wet Afternoon," is bound to gather some Oscars, and we gave him the VIP treatment when he was here making "King Rat." Ten years ago Forbes first came here as the husband of a starlet. He got an acting job in "The World in His Arms" for Director Raoul Walsh. The marriage broke up as the film ended. Bryan was shattered and penniless. Walsh took over. "If you stay here you'll become a bum," he told Forbes. And with that he took him straight to the T.W.A. ticket office, bought him a one-way to London, and said "Don't pack. We'll send your luggage."

Raoul got his money back last year. Says Forbes: "I waited until I could pay him in dollars. When I gave him the envelope with the money, he'd completely forgotten the incident. He visited me on 'King Rat'; is still hale and hearty, and tough as nails. Lives on a ranch in Thousand Oaks, still rolls Bull Durham, wears an eye patch and tells marvelous stories about the early days. He was in 'Birth of a Nation' and directed the original "What Price Glory.'"

The biggest mystery in town is who hired Ann Rosenberg and her New York public relations firm to change Hollywood's image, for which she gets a mere $250,000 a year from our producers. I've asked five people who should know. None could answer. Anna was responsible for that first United Nations show (the one about Scrooge) on TV recently. Now if that's her idea of changing our image, somebody should get her aside and give her a briefing. It was propaganda all right, but not for our industry. For a quarter of a million a year, she's got to do better than that. If I were one of those producers shelling out the loot, I'd be screaming murder.

Ailing but on the mend: Ray Bolger home from the hospital after minor (but not to him) surgery, and Joe Pasternak reduced to a whisper for 10 days after a throat operation. He's in Palm Springs recuping.

The Theater Guild is trying to lure Bob Newhart to New York for the play, "The Wayward Stork." It'll have to be good to get Bob out of his cozy apartment here. The story's about a couple who wanted a baby for years and finally made it. Not too promising a premise.

Max Showalter returned from New York and spent two weeks in bed with flu, but wrote six songs and plays opposite Lucy on her show with Arthur Godfrey and Vivian Vance. Max had a social whirl in New York. Had to buy six extra evening shirts.

Capitol Records has orders for 3½ million copies of the Beatles' new album.

Anne Bazter narrates the world premier of "Aesop's Fables" with the California Chamber Synphony, March 20, the first of three hour-long concerts for youth at U.C.L.A. Herbert Donaldson's score will be conducted by Henry Temianka, while Anne recites seven of the familiar fables. Rehearsals start shortly after her return from Honolulu where she and her husband, Randolph Galt, with their three children, spent the holidays.

Pat Buttram goes to Detroit to emcee the big annual General Motors shindig. He's just the guy to keep 'em laughing. He's our modern Will Rogers, and the country's beginning to realize it.

Final Session Slated For Ecumenical Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The fourth and final session of the Vatican Ecumenical Council will start next Sept. 14, the Vatican press office announced today.

The date was set by Pope Paul VI.

The council, first to be held by the Roman Catholic Church in 92 years, was convened by Pope Johnn XIII on Oct. 11, 1962. It has met annually each fall for two months since then.

SNOW WARNING

NEW YORK (UPI) — If snow remains on your neighbor's roof after it has melted from yours it's a good bet he's paying less for fuel than you are, say insulation experts at Allied Chemical's Barrett Division. A snowfree roof often indicates inadequate insulation and unnecessary loss of heat.

Mishandling of Tax Money to Be Watched

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texas Taxpayers, Inc., a 600-member private organization, posted $1,000 Monday for rewards to any citizen who catches a public official mishandling tax money.

"This is the first time there have been lobbyists for the taxpayers in a corporation," said W. B. Hallmark, secretary-treasurer. "Citizens will be able to collect anywhere from $100 to $1,000 if they see public officials misappropriating public funds."

SPICY COLLECTION

MOSCOW MILLS, Mo. (UPIz —Mrs. Marie Yohn has four large store-size glass cabinets in her modest frame home filled with 2,267 salt and pepper shaker sets. She has acquired shakers from all over the world and some still make their way through the post office.

"Not a set in my collection is a duplicate," Mrs. Yohn said. "When I feel blue or bad, I come in and examine my shakers. It gives me a real improved outlook on things."

The shakers are of silver, cut glass, plastic, metal and china. They are of all shapes, banana pairs, tobacco worms, hats, brief cases, grave stones, snails and even a pair of slot machine shakers.

Discover the difference in the '65 Chevrolets

(As different from other cars as they are from each other)

Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe

CHEVROLET—As roomy a car as Chevrolet's ever built.

When you take in everything, there's more room inside this car than in any Chevrolet as far back as they go. It's wider this year. The windows are curved for more shoulder room. The engine's been moved forward for more foot room. So, besides the way a '65 Chevrolet looks and rides, we now have one more reason to ask you: What do you get by paying more for a car—except bigger monthly payments?

Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe

CHEVELLE—The most popular intermediate-sized car you can buy.

Of all the cars its size, Chevelle is the biggest seller. Why? Because it has a smooth Full Coil suspension ride. Because most models come with thick deep-twist carpeting and all-vinyl interiors; and all are available with up to 350 hp that's just Grrrrrr8!

Corvair Corsa Sport Coupe

CORVAIR—The only rear engine American car made.

You should read what the car enthusiast magazines say about it. They think there's nothing else this side of the Atlantic that can touch its styling or ride. They say if you haven't driven a new Corsa with 180 hp, you just don't know what you're missing.

Chevy II Nova Sport Coupe

CHEVY II—As economical a car as you can own, but . . .

But those rust-resisting rocker panels, self-adjusting brakes and those smooth dependable engines have never been in more beautiful surroundings. Come see what some very expensive looking styling changes and yards of luxurious upholstery can do.

Corvette Sting Ray Sport Coupe

CORVETTE—The only true sports car America makes.

Now everybody claims to have a "true" sports car. But other dealers can't say they have one available with a fuel-injected V8, as Corvette does. Or with 4-wheel disc brakes, as Corvette does. They can't say they have one with a clear conscience.

Mishandling of Tax Money to Be Watched

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texas Taxpayers, Inc., a 600-member private organization, posted $1,000 Monday for rewards to any citizen who catches a public official mishandling tax money.

"This is the first time there have been lobbyists for the taxpayers in a corporation," said W. B. Hallmark, secretary-treasurer. "Citizens will be able to collect anywhere from $100 to $1,000 if they see public officials misappropriating public funds."

SPICY COLLECTION

MOSCOW MILLS, Mo. (UPIz —Mrs. Marie Yohn has four large store-size glass cabinets in her modest frame home filled with 2,267 salt and pepper shaker sets. She has acquired shakers from all over the world and some still make their way through the post office.

"Not a set in my collection is a duplicate," Mrs. Yohn said. "When I feel blue or bad, I come in and examine my shakers. It gives me a real improved outlook on things."

The shakers are of silver, cut glass, plastic, metal and china. They are of all shapes, banana pairs, tobacco worms, hats, brief cases, grave stones, snails and even a pair of slot machine shakers.

Discover the difference in the '65 Chevrolets

Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe

CHEVROLET—As roomy a car as Chevrolet's ever built.

When you take in everything, there's more room inside this car than in any Chevrolet as far back as they go. It's wider this year. The windows are curved for more shoulder room. The engine's been moved forward for more foot room. So, besides the way a '65 Chevrolet looks and rides, we now have one more reason to ask you: What do you get by paying more for a car—except bigger monthly payments?

Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe

CHEVELLE—The most popular intermediate-sized car you can buy.

Of all the cars its size, Chevelle is the biggest seller. Why? Because it has a smooth Full Coil suspension ride. Because most models come with thick deep-twist carpeting and all-vinyl interiors; and all are available with up to 350 hp that's just Grrrrrr8!

Corvair Corsa Sport Coupe

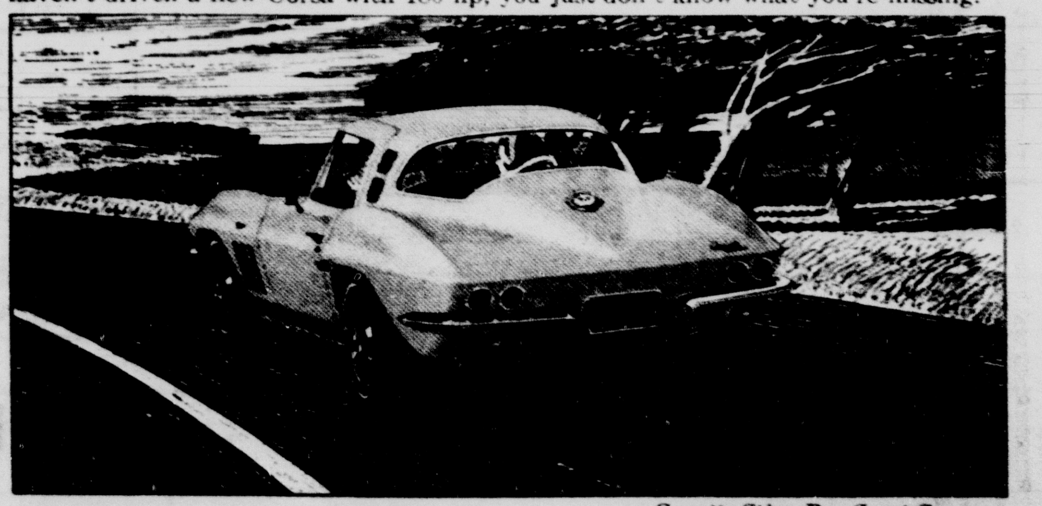
CORVAIR—The only rear engine American car made.

You should read what the car enthusiast magazines say about it. They think there's nothing else this side of the Atlantic that can touch its styling or ride. They say if you haven't driven a new Corsa with 180 hp, you just don't know what you're missing.

Chevy II Nova Sport Coupe

CHEVY II—As economical a car as you can own, but . . .

But those rust-resisting rocker panels, self-adjusting brakes and those smooth dependable engines have never been in more beautiful surroundings. Come see what some very expensive looking styling changes and yards of luxurious upholstery can do.



Corvette Sting Ray Sport Coupe

CORVETTE—The only true sports car America makes.

Now everybody claims to have a "true" sports car. But other dealers can't say they have one available with a fuel-injected V8, as Corvette does. Or with 4-wheel disc brakes, as Corvette does. They can't say they have one with a clear conscience.

Protection Against Sharks Is Devised

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—Countries faced with a shark menace to their beaches could benefit from a major advance in anti-shark protection claimed by the Anti-Shark Association here. The Association has developed an electrical shark barrier system which is to be tested in the shark-infested waters of St. Lucia Bay, 160 miles north of here on the Zuzuland Coast.

In extensive tank tests, not one of 40 sharks under observation penetrated the barrier. The tests also showed that for a barrier 30 feet long, operating in water 10 feet deep, the power requirements amount to 1.7 kilowatts. This is equivalent to the amount of power used by the average household kettle.

MEETING SET

STERLING (UPI)— A four-member GOP committee will meet in Sterling Thursday to fill an expected vacancy in the State House of Representatives. The group is expected to name a successor to Rep.-elect John Orcutt, R-Holyoke. Orcutt has indicated he will refuse to take the oath of office so he may succeed former state Sen. Earl Wolvington, R-Sterling, in the State Senate.

Wild Goose Finds Safety Among Geese

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP)—A wild goose has found apparent winter safety on the farm of John Powell, four miles north of Paragould, Ark.

The goose lighted on the farm and began mingling with a flack of tame geese kept by Powell.

It "loosens up" twice daily by flying in a two or three mile circle around the farm, calling for the land-bound geese to follow.

So far it has stayed close enough to the farm to stay off some hunter's dinner table.

Differences Between Generations Explained

By The Associated Press

The marked difference between today's younger generation and those which have gone before may stem, as Dr. Harold Taylor has said, from "the circumstances of their birthtime."

Taylor, former president of Sarah Lawrence College and a frequent visitor on college campuses, wrote recently that today's youth "missed the Great Depression, the Nazi - Fascist movement, the second World War, McCarthyism and the Eisenhower era.

"They sprang directly, uninhibited by history, into a time when the moral issue of freedom for the colored races, in America and in the world, and the moral issue of peace against war, life against death, gave them clear alternatives for taking sides.

"You could be for freedom and against the tyranny of whites over blacks, you could be for peace and against war, for social progress and against the status quo, without becoming entangled in the ideological chains of either pro or anti-communism."

Whtaever the forces that stifled the youth of the 50s, the civil rights movement has given many of today's young men and women a rallying point, a cause, a reason for being.

Now, in the Northern states, this movement will take a new direction— organizing the poor and giving them the means and techniques of exerting political pressures.

Two student groups involved are moving slowly now, but getting ready for fireworks in the coming months.

The Northern Student Movement, the group which started the tutorial projects and collected money for civil rights workers in the South, has chosen two states for demonstration projects next summer. One is in the Midwest, the other in the Northeast, but neither has yet been publicly identified.

Target areas may include seven or eight cities in each of the two states. The projects probably will include school boycotts, rent strikes, and community centers operated by and for the slum neighborhood residents. The community centers, like those established in Mississippi, would serve as a focal point for community action.

Some young men and women, without bitterness, have become disenchanted with the environment they knew so long.

Such a young woman is Marcia Rogers, 26, of Rickton, Mississippi. Marcia was at the University of Arizona, preparing for a Peace Corps assignment in Panama.

"I was frustrated in Mississippi," she said. "I couldn't work in civil rights there. This was a way to escape. If I had been active in civil rights at the University of Southern Mississippi, the university probably would have found a way to get rid of me.

"My parents don't share my views on integration. But I have no right to jeopardize my family's safety, or its economic welfare. I have always been a liberal. But some of us who are liberal are cowardly, too."

Many young Americans today are a reflection of the world and the time into which they have emerged — a world where creature comforts abound and thus can be disdained, a time when the great moral issue is clearly the brotherhood of man.

Steve Randels, 23, of Fort Worth, Texas, is a 1964 graduate of Stanford. He was at the University of California, training for a Peace Corps project in Venezuela.

"My folks went through the depression and the war. I don't have the pressure to get established that they had. I have time to look around and determine what's really important," he said.

"We have been too intent, too concerned, with personal security in this country. It's time we looked for other rewards."

Richard Stauffer, a 23-year-old Peace Corps trainee from York, Pa., knows what those rewards can be. Dick lived on a cooperative farm in Israel in the summer of 1961, and went to Kenya and Uganda in 1962 with the "Crossroads Africa" program.

"It's a chance to see what you can give after years of taking," he said. "A chance to test the difference between ideas and action.

"You learn that sweat breaks the barriers, and that you're going to learn more than you're going to teach. You learn to come to terms with yourself.

"You can see the need. It's tangible. And you learn that you, as an individual, can make a difference."

QUESTION: Must we accept Jesus while alive on this earth, or will we be given another chance after death?—R. W. V.

ANSWER: The Bible teaches that our decision for Christ must be made this side of the grave. There are many admonitions to this end, such as: "Now is the accepted time; today is the day of Salvation." One of the most pertinent warnings along this line comes from the Proverbs: "He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy." (Proverbs 29:1)

The most important thing we have to settle in this life, is our soul's salvation. It should receive priority over every other matter. The Bible says: "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Those who say they don't believe the Bible, and those who entertain doubts about Christ's validity, should ask themselves the question: "Can I afford to take the risk that it is not true?"

Just as other important decisions cannot be deferred until after death, this most crucial decision of all should not be delayed until it is too late. The Bible says: "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" God has given us today. He has given us ample opportunity to ponder the seriousness of this decision. "Today, if you hear his voice, harden not your hearts", say the Scriptures.

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) — When the Stuttgart, Ark., Daily Leader received the rosters of the Paragould, Ark., football program it prints, the numbers of the players were written out in Latin.

Plea by Burch Fails to Change GOP Attitudes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Burch's plea in letters to all 132 members of the Republican National Committee that he be allowed to stay on as chaiman seems to have produced no change of heart.

If they were for him before they heard from him they still are; if they were against him, they are still against him, an Associated Press survey indicated.

Burch's argument that he ought to be retained was keyed to the theme of an earlier letter written the committee members by Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential candidate who picked Burch for the job.

Goldwater had said firing Burch would be "a repudiation of me" and "those Republicans who have supported me and the principals for which I stood."

Similarly, Burch said his resignation has been urged on the grounds that he is a symbol of Goldwater and "of the so-called 'conservative faction' of the Republican party."

"If this is true," Burch said, "then my resignation under pressure at this time would identified themselves with responsible conservative Republicanism."

Several of those commenting in the AP survey noted that no other candidate for the job was on the horizon and that "personalities" were involved.

Said California committeewoman Ann Bowler: "I'd already told the party I was going to vote to retain Dean Burch. I don't see why any one man should be made the scapegoat."

Texas committeeman Albert Bel Fay declared, "Now is not a good time to make a change. That's been my position all along. I'll do anything I can to help him stay."

Illinois committeewoman Audrey Peak said, "I haven't changed any — I'm still going to vote for his retention."

Virginia committeewoman Hazel K. Barger retained her previous position that Burch should be replaced, but said whether she votes against him will depend on whether an adequate replacement can be found. She said, "We've got to change this image that we've projected in the last campaign."

New Jersey committeewoman Katherine Neuberger said, "I still think he represents one segent of the party and we need someone who will represent all segments of the party."

The move to oust Burch is expected to come to a head at a meeting of the National Committee in Chicago Jan. 22 and 23. It began to gather momentum immediately after president Johnson's landslide victory over Goldwater last Nov. 3.

Today, in a speech prepared for delivery to the District of Columbia League of Republican Women, Burch called for party unity and responsible opposition to the Johnson administration programs where they clashed with Republican philosophy.

"If 1965 becomes a year spent in division and recrimination — the year of the scapegoat — then we will also fail our larger duty to the nation as the party of responsible opposition," he said.

In his letter Burch declared "this is a time for dedication to the party as a whole rather than to any personality or narrow portion of the party for purposes of individual political gain."

The decision concerning Burch depends solely on his bility and said his interest in staying on is not "simply a personal one," financial or primarily "a loyalty to a particular leader or faction."

"The fact is," Burch said, "that I am dedicated to just three things: the unity, the strength and the achievements of the Republican party throuhgout the nation."

Since the lection, Burch wrote, he and his staff have been busy drawing up programs that will be presented in Chicago. He said they include "plans for a broader base for the party, which if implemented, can result in significant gains for our party."

These plans, he added, were drawn up with help from "the entire spectrum of Republican activity."

DEFICIT CUT

DENVER (UPI)—Officials of a drive to save the Trianon Mansion in Colorado Springs say they now are only $1,335 short of their $175,000 goal. Contributions the past week have cut the deficit. The building will be moved to the Denver area.

Wahsatch Ave., 10 days, drunk, and $25, committing a nuisance.

Judge Asher refused to dismiss charges of riotous conduct, drunkenness and discharging firearms in the city that Roberta Hayes filed against her husband Edward Hayes, 38, 908 E. Cimarron St. Instead he continued the couple's hearing to allow time for Deputy City Attorney Roger Hunt to make an investigation of the charges.

Also continued, until March 8, was the hearing of Robert Lewellen, 23, 695 S. 8th St., who has been charged with disorderly conduct, riotous conduct and breach of peace by Mrs. Lewellen.

The man's wife said there would be no further difficulty between them because "by mutual agreement, we're going to dissolve the relationship."

Charges were dismissed against Claude Fox, 29, 418 W. Willamette St., and Kenneth Neel, 35, 1327 Server Dr. Fox had been charged with riotous conduct breach of peace and drunkenness on a complaint by Donna Thesing, and Neel with riotous conduct and breach of peace by his wife Patricia.

Trial dates were set for the following.

Jan. 11: Al Garza, 41, 707 S. Tejon St., riotous conduct, breach of peace, and drunkenness.

Jan. 12: Jenne Loomis, 33, 431 E. Kiowa St., having a vicious dog.

Jan. 18: William Armstrong, 24, 912 N. Royer St., riotous conduct, drunkenness and trespassing; Henry Swanson, 45, 618 S. Circle Dr., riotous condict and breach of peace.

Jan. 25: Emilio Trujillo, 31, 317 W. Costilla St., riotous conduct, breach of peace and drunkenness; Mack Luckett, 23, 310 W. Cameron St., riotous conduct and breach of peace; Floyd Martinez, 23, 3010 W. Colorado Ave., disorderly conduct, riotous conduct, and drunkenness.

TB Fund Drive Nears Goal; More Needed

"Don't stop now!" is the plea from campaign fund chairman Bob Kohler who is pushing hard for the goal of the TB fund drive.

Kohler said the last day of the year showed a total of $25,500 has been contributed by citizens of the region, and only $4,500 more is needed to put the effort over the top.

"The money is returned to our citizens through testing for TB and other respiratory diseases, and the sparkling health of our children who are protected against threats to their health," Kohler said, adding that "perhaps no investment brings such handsome returns."

One big contribution would take care of the $4,500 still needed, and this can always happen, according to Kohler. He explained that each person makes the decision to donate to help others on his own time and for his own personal reasons—and these reasons are always kept secret within one's own hear.

"Will there be one citizen who contributes the whole amount? Or will there be many of us who give two or three dollars each? Or will both happen to make it more wonderful than ever? There is no way of telling—but I am certain the money will come to keep more people alive in 1965."

Help should be sent to the TB Association at 809 N. Cascade Ave.

Sign Requests On Agenda For City Board Meet

Three requests from oil companies for variances from sign regulations are on the agenda for the City Board of Adjustment meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday in City Hall.

They are: Continental Oil Co., request to leave existing sign next to the property line instead of the 10-foot required setback, at 305 S. Hancock Ave.; Humble Oil and Refining Co.. request to leave existing sign at 331 S. Hancock Ave. next to property line; and Continental Oil Co., request to leave existing sign next to property line, at 2129 Templeton Gap.

Other requests, to be considered at the public hearing are:

—Colorado Electrical Contractor's Association, conditional use permit to convert existing dwelling to business office at 123 N. aWhsatch Ave.

Lennox Freshman Again After 14 Years in House

After 14 years in the general assembly, Republican State Sen. William O. Lennox is going to be a freshman.

Lennox first went to the Colorado House of Representatives in 1950 and wound up his seventh term last month. Last summer, after first declining to run for another term in the House he was picked by the Republicans to run for state senator from the 12th State Senatorial District, and won the seat, defeating Democrat Norman Bodinger.

There is one consolation for him in becoming a freshman. The Democrats took control of the house in the last general election and had Lennox remained there he would be a member of the minority party. As it is he is with the majority party in the Senate.

He already has his committee assignments: Chairman of the Labor Committee, and member of the Business Affairs, Industrial Affairs, Water, and Finance Affairs Committees.

In his last year in the House, Lennox had these assignments: Chairman of the Business Affairs Committee and member of the Finance, Metropolitan Affairs, and Legislative Committees, and chairman of the Legislative Council Iterim Committee on Institutions.

As Lennox looks to the new assembly, he sees a long session. "Others have estimated 110 days, but I figure it might be longer. I suppose the assembly will be in session until the last of April or first of May," he said.

He figures the largest problems facing the assembly are these in the order of size: education, finances, safety and water.

"I haven't any original ideas on how to finance the school programs," he said.

Both the public education bill and the bill for education beyond the high school will be larger than it was last year, and money will have to be raised to pay both bills, Lennox said.

The public education people alone have asked for almost double the present figure from the general fund, he pointed out. Further, he added, the state's institutions have asked for double and triple the amount they had last year, part of it to pay for capital construction.

"I don't know how the legislature will finance al of this. I plan to introduce a bill that I introduced into the House in 1959," he declared.

"My bill would put property on the tax rolls as soon as the construction is completed. As it is now the property is not put on the tax rolls until the following year," he expained.

"This wouldn't raise enough money to cover all the additional budget requests, but it would help. We figured it out for the metropolitan area of Colorado Springs and learned that such a law would have increased revenues to all taxing bodies by about $1,300,000, with the city of Colorado Springs getting $39,000," Lennox said.

He said he did not know how it would affect other areas such as Denver, Pueblo, Grand Junction, Boulder, Greeley and Ft. Collins.

"Something must be done about the inventory tax and freeport idea too," Lennox stated. "We are one of the highest taxed states in the union. Our taxes are high and our income is low, and it is difficult to get industry when the taxes are high," he said.

What the legislature will work out in the way of answers for that problem Lennox didn't care to predict. "It is a problem, and we can't all get together at once on all problems," he stated.

In fact the problems look so large that he is sort of glad he is a freshman in the Senate, thus not having the top responsibility for finding answers.

Retired Officers Schedule Meeting

County Clerk Takes in $110,114 in Fees

The El Paso County Clerk and Recorders office reports that it took in a total of $110,114.49 during 1964 in marriage license fees, reception fees, document recording and miscellaneous fees.

During the year a total of 1,944 marriage licenses were issued, an increase of 288 over 1963. A total of 64,029 documents were recorded, compared with 55,600 during 1963 and $97,882.70 in reception fees was taken in, an increase of $10,765 over the previous year.

The office reports that during the month of December, 1964, 184 marriage licenses were issued, 30 more than during December of the previous year,

A total of 6,285 documents were recorded last month, as compared with 5,000 during December, 1963.

The clerk and Recorders office took in $9,051 in reception fees which is an increase of $1,358.75 over December, 1963.

City Meter Take Less for 1964

December collections were $13,511 compared with $13,584 for December 1963.

One of the main purposes of the parking meters is to keep traffic moving and to prevent cars from being parked all day in the metered areas of Colorado Springs, officials claim.

Skiffington Sees Financing As Major Problem for State

By GLENN URBAN
GAazette Telegraph
Political Writer

Financing education and institutions will be the biggest problem facing the general assembly, according to the dean of the eight - member contingent from El Paso County.

He is Sen. Lawrence Skiffington, Republican from the 30th Senatorial District, who has been a member of the senate since 1955, and has a total of 14 years service in the assembly counting the four years (two terms) he served in the House of Representatives.

Skiffington is the only assembly member from El Paso County returning to the same job, and he also is the only member who was not up for re-election in the November general elections. Senatorial terms are for four years and he was elected in 1962.

The Senate is controlled by the Republicans, and so in addition to having some good committee assignments Skiffington also has the chairmanship of a key committee.

These are his committee assignments: State Affairs, chairman, and member of Business Affairs, Education, Finance and Mining Committees.

As he now ranks third in seniority in the Senate, he does not expect to lose any of his assignments, unless he is involved in a mutual swap.

As every legislator apparently realizes, Skiffington is fully aware that financing education is the prime problem. And right next to it is the problem of financing operations and expansion of the penal institutions.

Looking at those problems, he said, "My way — the only way I can see—is to cut the requests, lower the expenditures, and raise revenues.

Last year, Skiffington suggested that the state up the sales tax by one cent on every dollar, making it a total of three per cent.

He estimated that the added one per cent tax would raise about $32 million, which could be used to help finance both public schools and higher education as well as help with the bills for the penal institutions.

However, Skiffington does not know what will happen, and is not willing to hazard a prediction. "I can't predict what will happen. I know it will require a bi-partisan effort since the Republicans control the Senate and Democrats the House, he said.

"I am very much opposed to any more mill levy on property as a state tax. I think that belongs to the local governments, county, city, school districts and the other local taxing bodies, he explained.

The mill levy on property passed out of existence on Jan. 1, and Skiffington hopes it stays gone, but once again he would not perdict what will happen.

The senator laments one change in the tax laws that he sould like to see changed back the way it was, but at this time he holds no hope for such a change. The assembly last year knocked out the $1,000 deduction allowed for income tax purposes by the state to retired military personnnel.

"I was against that. The amount of money the state gained was not great, and I'd like to see that rescinded," he said.

Although he does not know what will happen, Skiffington figures that the legislature ought at least to appropriate a half million to get the Colorado University Extension Center here started in the right direction. "That much ought at least to get it off the ground, and after that I would suppose that the school would need a million a year, he explained.

The state also needs money for highway construction. "We always need more good roads, and we need money for matching funds with the federal funds that are available. We, of course have some money from the highway users fund for that, but maybe we'll also have to rake up some money from the general fund, he stated.

Colorado also will have to come up with some money for matching funds purposes for its share of the costs of the medicare program under the Kerr-Mills bill. That covers certain expenditures for people over 65 who do not have other sources of money to pay for certain financial expenses.

The public school system, from kindergarten through 12th grade, probably will need $8-10 million more this year than last, and that money will have to be raised somewhere.

Skiffington pointed out that the population of the public school system in the state is growing by about 2,000 classroom units a year. A classroom unit is one class of 25 students. That figures out to a growth of about 50,000 students a year.

The figure set last year for classroom support was $5,400. What that means is that after the county and the school district have raised a given figure per classroom unit by local taxes, the state makes up the difference. If a school district, with its county support, raised $4,400 per classroom unit, the state would have to come up with the additional $1,000 per classroom unit.

Said Skiffington, looking at that problem, "We have to face it. We were elected to do it. It will take bi-partisan support and I think we will get it.

Another problem the legislature will have to wrestle with is that of women prisoners. "We must do something about a women's prison. We must build one in Canon City. We have too many women there now, and also have too many of them in the various county jails because there is no other place for them. the senator explained.

"I personally would like to see more work in the rehabilitation field at the state prison and the boys reformatory. We set up a rehabilitation and training program 10 years ago and now I think it is time we took a look at it to see what more can be done, he said.

"Rehabilitation saves money. If we can train those people and then find them jobs at wages on which they can lie, we save ourselves a lot of trouble and expense, he poined out.

Skiffington said that he looked for considerable bi-partisan effort.

"I think members of both parties from both houses will work together so that we can take care of the problems, he predicted, and that was about the only hard prediction he was interested in making on the eve of the assembly opening.

Robert Pepin, 2124 Eagle View, is to be installed as new chief ruler of Pike Junior Lodge IOOF at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Oddfellow Temple, 128 N. Nevada Ave.

Other officers to be installed are: Arthur Cox, deputy ruler; Steve Chostler, recorder; Tim McClure, accountant; and Edward Bevens, treasurer.

The public is invited to the installation.

Projects of the Junior Lodge included taking first-aid courses and raising funds for the IOOF United Nations Contest and for charitable activities, according to John Perry, chief advisor for the Junior Lodge.

Jury Finds for Plaintiff in Death Suit

A District Court jury awarded Elizabeth M. and Roger M. Sullivan $2,706.67 Monday evening in the $26,766.60 wrongful death suit the couple brought against Toby G. Anderson, 7 Winfield Ave.

The Sullivans, 1606 Rideway St., alleged that their daughter, Maurie E. Sullivan, was killed Feb. 22, 1964 when she was a passenger in a car driven by the defendant.

It was further alleged the death was caused by the negligence and intoxication of Anderson, whose car hit a pine tree on Mirado Road.

Donato Molello Died Sunday At Canon City

Donato Molello, formerly of Penrose, died Sunday at 97, at a Canon City nursing home. He came to Colorado from Italy in 1902, and had been a resident of Penrose since 1918. He was employed for 20 years by the Portland Cement Co. and had subsequently been a fruit farmer. He was a member of St. Michaels Catholic Church of Canon City.

Mr. Molello was born in Caramonco, Italy, Nov. 6, 1877. He was married Jan. 2, 1902, in Caramonco, to Filomene Alberico, who preceded him in death. He is survived by four sons, Anthony M. Molello, of Long Beach, Calif., and John, Arthur and Albert Molello, all of Penrose; five daughters, Mrs. Anne Eughy, New York, N.Y.; Mrs. Angeline Koerner, Denver; Mrs. Lucille Lane, Pueblo; Mrs. Mary Peery, Denver, and Mrs. Clara Baxter, Penrose; a brother, Dominic Molello, Florence, nine grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren. A son, Nicola Molello, a grandchild, two brothers and a sister preceded him in death.

Rosary services will be held at St. Michaels Church, Canon City, at 7:30 p.m. today. A Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Welnesday at St. Michaels Church. Burial will be in the Penrose Cemetery. The Holt and Wilson Mortuary of Canon City has charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Nellie Waddill Died Here Saturday

Mrs. Nellie E. Waddill, of Monument, died Saturday at a Colorado Springs hospital. She was born in Monument, March 26, 1892, and had been a lifelong resident of that town. She was a member of the Monument Presbyterian Church, Martha Chapter, OES, at Castle Rock; the Mt. Herman Grange, Monument, and the Homemakers Club of Monument.

Mrs. Waddill is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Dixie E. Woodworth, of Monument and Mrs. Lucie Dell Simpson, Lomita, Calif. and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Low Drawing Room. The Rev. G. Dageenakis will officiate. Burial will be in the Monument Cemetery.

TB Fund Drive Nears Goal; More Needed

"Don't stop now!" is the plea from campaign fund chairman Bob Kohler who is pushing hard for the goal of the TB fund drive.

Kohler said the last day of the year showed a total of $25,500 has been contributed by citizens of the region, and only $4,500 more is needed to put the effort over the top.

"The money is returned to our citizens through testing for TB and other respiratory diseases, and the sparkling health of our children who are protected against threats to their health," Kohler said, adding that "perhaps no investment brings such handsome returns."

One big contribution would take care of the $4,500 still needed, and this can always happen, according to Kohler. He explained that each person makes the decision to donate to help others on his own time and for his own personal reasons—and these reasons are always kept secret within one's own hear.

"Will there be one citizen who contributes the whole amount? Or will there be many of us who give two or three dollars each? Or will both happen to make it more wonderful than ever? There is no way of telling—but I am certain the money will come to keep more people alive in 1965."

Help should be sent to the TB Association at 809 N. Cascade Ave.

Sign Requests On Agenda For City Board Meet

Three requests from oil companies for variances from sign regulations are on the agenda for the City Board of Adjustment meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday in City Hall.

They are: Continental Oil Co., request to leave existing sign next to the property line instead of the 10-foot required setback, at 305 S. Hancock Ave.; Humble Oil and Refining Co., request to leave existing sign at 331 S. Hancock Ave. next to property line; and Continental Oil Co., request to leave existing sign next to property line, at 2129 Templeton Gap.

Other requests, to be considered at the public hearing are:

—Colorado Electrical Contractor's Association, conditional use permit to convert existing dwelling to business office at 123 N. aWhsatch Ave.

—Darwin G. Van Raalte, conditional use permit for professional offices at 226 N. Union St.

—Guinn Construction Co., variance to set dwelling within 4.5 feet of south property line instead of required five feet, at 7 and 11 N. Claremont St.

—Faith Realty and Development Co., variance to set dwelling within 20 feet of Loring Circle instead of required 25 foot setback. This would also be short of the required rear lot area at 4025 N. Loring Circle.

—Holland Park Co., variances on 919, 923, 927, 1003, 1007 and 1011 Ellston St., for 20 foot rear yards instead of required 25 feet.

—Thurman J. Skelley, variance at 3411 W. Pikes Peak Ave. for 13.4-foot rear yard setback. This would be for an apartment building.

—P. C. Tyree, variance at 625 San Juan Rd. to add 400 square feet to non-conforming property.

—Reel C. Davis, variance at 624 N. Pine St. to build duplex on lot with 6,080 square feet, instead of required 7,000 feet for R-3 (two-family) zone.

Charles C. Gill Services Wednesday

Lennox Freshman Again After 14 Years in House

After 14 years in the general assembly, Republican State Sen. William O. Lennox is going to be a freshman.

Lennox first went to the Colorado House of Representatives in 1950 and wound up his seventh term last month. Last summer, after first declining to run for another term in the House he was picked by the Republicans to run for state senator from the 12th State Senatorial District, and won the seat, defeating Democrat Norman Bodinger.

There is one consolation for him in becoming a freshman. The Democrats took control of the house in the last general election and had Lennox remained there he would be a member of the minority party. As it is he is with the majority party in the Senate.

He already has his committee assignments: Chairman of the Labor Committee, and member of the Business Affairs, Industrial Affairs, Water, and Finance Affairs Committees.

In his last year in the House, Lennox had these assignments: Chairman of the Business Affairs Committee and member of the Finance, Metropolitan Affairs, and Legislative Committees, and chairman of the Legislative Council Iterim Committee on Institutions.

As Lennox looks to the new assembly, he sees a long session. "Others have estimated 110 days, but I figure it might be longer. I suppose the assembly will be in session until the last of April or first of May," he said.

He figures the largest problems facing the assembly are these in the order of size: education, finances, safety and water.

"I haven't any original ideas on how to finance the school programs," he said.

Both the public education bill and the bill for education beyond the high school will be larger than it was last year, and money will have to be raised to pay both bills, Lennox said.

The public education people alone have asked for almost double the present figure from the general fund, he pointed out. Further, he added, the state's institutions have asked for double and triple the amount they had last year, part of it to pay for capital construction.

"I don't know how the legislature will finance al of this. I plan to introduce a bill that I introduced into the House in 1959," he declared.

"My bill would put property on the tax rolls as soon as the construction is completed. As it is now the property is not put on the tax rolls until the following year," he expained.

"This wouldn't raise enough money to cover all the additional budget requests, but it would help. We figured it out for the metropolitan area of Colorado Springs and learned that such a law would have increased revenues to all taxing bodies by about $1,300,000, with the city of Colorado Springs getting $39,000," Lennox said.

He said he did not know how it would affect other areas such as Denver, Pueblo, Grand Junction, Boulder, Greeley and Ft. Collins.

"Something must be done about the inventory tax and freeport idea too," Lennox stated. "We are one of the highest taxed states in the union. Our taxes are high and our income is low, and it is difficult to get industry when the taxes are high," he said.

What the legislature will work out in the way of answers for that problem Lennox didn't care to predict. "It is a problem, and we can't all get together at once on all problems," he stated.

In fact the problems look so large that he is sort of glad he is a freshman in the Senate, thus not having the top responsibility for finding answers.

Retired Officers Schedule Meeting

The Pikes Peak Chapter of the Retired Officers Association will hold their monthly breakfast, 7:15 a.m., Thursday, at the Embers Steak House, 21 So. Wahsatch Ave.

All retired officers of all military branches and those soon to be retired are invited to attend. No reservations are necessary.

Further information about the activities of the Pikes Peak Chapter may be obtained from the Chapter secretary Lt. Col. Roemer, Phone 636-3628.

County Clerk Takes in $110,114 in Fees

The El Paso County Clerk and Recorders office reports that it took in a total of $110,114.49 during 1964 in marriage license fees, reception fees, document recording and miscellaneous fees.

During the year a total of 1,944 marriage licenses were issued, an increase of 288 over 1963. A total of 64,029 documents were recorded, compared with 55,600 during 1963 and $97,882.70 in reception fees was taken in, an increase of $10,765 over the previous year.

The office reports that during the month of December, 1964, 184 marriage licenses were issued, 30 more than during December of the previous year.

A total of 6,285 documents were recorded last month, as compared with 5,000 during December, 1963.

The clerk and Recorders office took in $9,051 in reception fees which is an increase of $1,358.75 over December, 1963.

City Meter Take Less for 1964

December collections were $13,511 compared with $13,584 for December 1963.

One of the main purposes of the parking meters is to keep traffic moving and to prevent cars from being parked all day in the metered areas of Colorado Springs, officials claim.

Skiffington Sees Financing As Major Problem for State

By GLENN URBAN
GAazette Telegraph
Political Writer

Financing education and institutions will be the biggest problem facing the general assembly, according to the dean of the eight-member contingent from El Paso County.

He is Sen. Lawrence Skiffington, Republican from the 30th Senatorial District, who has been a member of the senate since 1955, and has a total of 14 years service in the assembly counting the four years (two terms) he served in the House of Representatives.

Skiffington is the only assembly member from El Paso County returning to the same job, and he also is the only member who was not up for re-election in the November general elections. Senatorial terms are for four years and he was elected in 1962.

The Senate is controlled by the Republicans, and so in addition to having some good committee assignments Skiffington also has the chairmanship of a key committee.

These are his committee assignments: State Affairs, chairman, and member of Business Affairs, Education, Finance and Mining Committees.

As he now ranks third in seniority in the Senate, he does not expect to lose any of his assignments, unless he is involved in a mutual swap.

As every legislator apparently realizes, Skiffington is fully aware that financing education is the prime problem. And right next to it is the problem of financing operations and expansion of the penal institutions.

Looking at those problems, he said, "My way — the only way I can see—is to cut the requests, lower the expenditures, and raise revenues.

Last year, Skiffington suggested that the state up the sales tax by one cent on every dollar, making it a total of three per cent.

He estimated that the added one per cent tax would raise about $32 million, which could be used to help finance both public schools and higher education as well as help with the bills for the penal institutions.

However, Skiffington does not know what will happen, and is not willing to hazard a prediction. "I can't predict what will happen. I know it will require a bi-partisan effort since the Republicans control the Senate and Democrats the House, he said.

"I am very much opposed to any more mill levy on property as a state tax. I think that belongs to the local governments, county, city, school districts and the other local taxing bodies, he explained.

The mill levy on property passed out of existence on Jan. 1, and Skiffington hopes it stays gone, but once again he would not perdict what will happen.

The senator laments one change in the tax laws that he sould like to see changed back the way it was, but at this time he holds no hope for such a change. The assembly last year knocked out the $1,000 deduction allowed for income tax purposes by the state to retired military personnnel.

"I was against that. The amount of money the state gained was not great, and I'd like to see that rescinded," he said.

Although he does not know what will happen, Skiffington figures that the legislature ought at least to appropriate a half million to get the Colorado University Extension Center here started in the right direction. "That much ought at least to get it off the ground, and after that I would suppose that the school would need a million a year, he explained.

The state also needs money for highway construction. "We always need more good roads, and we need money for matching funds with the federal funds that are available. We, of course have some money from the highway users fund for that, but maybe we'll also have to rake up some money from the general fund, he stated.

Colorado also will have to come up with some money for matching funds purposes for its share of the costs of the medicare program under the Kerr-Mills bill. That covers certain expenditures for people over 65 who do not have other sources of money to pay for certain financial expenses.

The public school system, from kindergarten through 12th grade, probably will need $8-10 million more this year than last, and that money will have to be raised somewhere.

Skiffington pointed out that the population of the public school system in the state is growing by about 2,000 classroom units a year. A classroom unit is one class of 25 students. That figures out to a growth of about 50,000 students a year.

The figure set last year for classroom support was $5,400. What that means is that after the county and the school district have raised a given figure per classroom unit by local taxes, the state makes up the difference. If a school district, with its county support, raised $4,400 per classroom unit, the state would have to come up with the additional $1,000 per classroom unit.

Said Skiffington, looking at that problem, "We have to face it. We were elected to do it. It will take bi-partisan support and I think we will get it.

Another problem the legislature will have to wrestle with is that of women prisoners. "We must do something about a women's prison. We must build one in Canon City. We have too many women there now, and also have too many of them in the various county jails because there is no other place for them. the senator explained.

"I personally would like to see more work in the rehabilitation field at the state prison and the boys reformatory. We set up a rehabilitation and training program 10 years ago and now I think it is time we took a look at it to see what more can be done, he said.

"Rehabilitation saves money. If we can train those people and then find them jobs at wages on which they can lie, we save ourselves a lot of trouble and expense, he poined out.

Skiffington said that he looked for considerable bi-partisan effort.

"I think members of both parties from both houses will work together so that we can take care of the problems, he predicted, and that was about the only hard prediction he was interested in making on the eve of the assembly opening.

Ralph B. Clements Pioneer Resident Died

Ralph B. Clements, who came to Colorado in a covered wagon in 1898, died Sunday at his home on Route 1, Colorado Springs.

Mr. Clements was born July 30, 1891, in Cass County, Mo. He homesteaded on Squirrel Creek from 1915 to 1919, and had lived on his father's homestead, southeast of Colorado Springs, since 1919. Since 1918 he was in the cattle business and was a member of the Colorado Cattlemen's Association.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Swan Funeral Home with the Rev. Bud McGuire in charge. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mr. Clements is survived by his widow Mrs. Estella Clements; a son Keith M. Clements of Colorado Springs; two daughters, Mrs. Elise White of Arvada and Mrs. Virginia Pease of Colorado Springs, and seven grandchildren.

Retired Rancher Died Monday in Hugo

Robert H. Bolender, of Hugo, Colo., did Monday at the age of 86 at a Hugo hospital. He was a retired rancher and had been a resident of Colorado since 1913.

Mr. Bolender was born in Caldwell, Kan. He is survived by a son, E. F. Bolender, Wauneta, Neb.; three daughters, Mrs. Leah Kelleher, Colorado Springs; Mrs. Edna Dwyer, Oraville, Calif., and Mrs. Bertha Busch, Las Animas, Colo., nine grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

CC Symposium To Feature Dr. S. M. Ulam

Dr. Stanislaw M. Ulam, noted mathematician and research adviser at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico, will conduct two sessions on mathematics and the future during the week-long symposium on The New Science getting under way Sunday at Colorado College.

Dr. Ulam will talk about "The Future of Mathematics" at 9 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 14, in Olin Hall, and at 3:34 in the afternoon in Olin he will discuss "Computers in Science."

One of more than 30 top scientists and scholars from throughout the United States and Europe taking part in the Colorado College symposium, Dr. Ulam is renowned for initiating the Monte Carlo Method, a procedure for finding solutions to mathematical and physical problems by random sampling.

Dr. Ulam's Monte Carlo Method, which became practical with the development of high speed electronic computers, permits the solution of problems not amenable to more orthodox methods of analysis. It has become a standard research tool.

Pemits Total $1,492,845 In County

The El Paso County building permits office reports that it issued 88 permits during the month of December, for a total valuation of $1,492,845.

A total of 36 permits were issued for the construction of private dwellings, which range in value from $9,500 to $42,500. The value for all the private dwelling permits issued totals $637,900.

The largest single permit issued during the month of December was for the construction of a 58 unit apartment building to be located at 1719 S. Cascade Ave. with a valuation of $350,000. The permit was issued to David Bram.

Tourney to Return

Above all else, the recently concluded International Hockey Tournament proved that area sports fans are connoisseurs and appreciate a first-class attraction.

There has been some maligning remarks concerning the support of regional promotions when fans failed to throng to a certain event in the past.

KONSTANTIN LOKTEV
Veteran Soviet Wing

But you can usually tell the class of any game or series by counting noses. All too frequently in the past, these fans have been short-changed.

It was only natural before the tournament started over a week ago at the Broadmoor World Arena that there was some scepticism of the response. Much of this stemmed from the World Tournament which was held on the same ice in 1962, in which several games were played before only a sprinkling of patrons.

In that case, however, the few times the major world powers met there was a premium on seats at the Arena. Had Russia and Czechoslovakia not boycotted that tourney at the last minute because of political trouble over the infamous Berlin Wall, the sell-out crowds would undoubtedly have tripled. And who could blame the fans for staying away from those lopsided affairs in which the final margin was the only thing left in doubt.

The holiday double round-robin between Russia, Czechoslovakia and Canada assured an excellent contest for every one of the six games. And as a result the crowds averaged just under 4,000 for each one. The fifth game of the series, a return meeting between Russia and Canada, was tops of the week long offering as judged by the capacity 5,000 that jammed the World Arena.

All the attendance figures were estimates since no head count is given by the Arena officials, but the total tickets sold were enough to virtually assure the return of the tourney next year.

Thayer Tutt, president of the Broadmoor and ideaman behind this rather unique tournament, indicated at the conclusion of the meet that he was satisfied with the turnout and that he is willing to have another such hockey series in 1965.

It cost somewhere around $46,000 to bring the three teams into Colorado Springs, and these expenses were met after the fourth game. That meant that the sellout of Russian and Canada in the fifth game, and the 2,500 of the final game produced a profit.

That represents a pretty juicy tidbit for the first time out, but it's also a pretty hefty investment. Any profit this time hardly makes up for the debits incurred in '62 when the boycott of two of the top five in the World Tournament dropped the bottom out of expected receipts.

About the only thing that would halt what is hoped to be a continuing series for the Walter A. Brown Memorial trophy would be another major crisis. And in these times, that's hardly out of the question.

Which teams will be invited for '65 will depend largely on how the forthcoming World Tournament in Finland turns out later this winter. All three teams that were here will be participating, along with a dozen or more. Both the Russians (champs here with a 3-1 record) and the Czechs (2-1-1) have indicated they will return upon invitation.

However, it would improve the pairings even more with fresh blood. Sweden, World titlist at the Broadmoor in '62, is another high on the list of teams which could be invited, and if the United States could mold together a representative squad the Yanks undoubtedly would join the fun. However, the original thought of restricting the tourney to only the best of amateur hockey will retain the competition seen last week—and also the support of area fans.

Another possibility would be an entry from Denver University, which has been proposed. But this would be departing from the international aspect unless Canada was willing to let the Pioneers represent their country instead of the team which was sent here.

Besides warming an invite from the Broadmoor, Denver would have to have special sanction from the NCAA and the American Amateur Hockey Association to play. If this comes about, it would be an obvious gimmick to try and draw DU fandom from the Mile High City and at the same time reduce expenses of importing a team from Europe.

From their play here, the Russians clearly demonstrated why they are the early favorites to successfully defend their World title in Finland in March. The Olympic champions were awesome to watch and played the game exactly the way the international rules indicate it should be played.

Although the return match with Canada had the largest crowd in anticipation of a possible upset (following the excellent 5-3 decision by the Soviets in the first round), the game the night before undoubtedly set up the capacity attendance.

That 5-3 surprise by the Czechs over the Russians had to rank as the best of the six games. It was a great display of an almost perfectly planned contest as Czechoslovakia seldom allowed the powerful skaters from the Soviet Union to form their intricate plays. The Czechs beat Russia as only they can; forechecking to break the patterns and staying out of the penalty box.

The tremendous passing, playmaking and skating of the Russians was obvious, as always, but perhaps overlooked by a few was the Soviet defense. Working in through this network of defenders for a clear shot was rough enough, but getting a rebound or second shot on goal was next to impossible.

And, of course, the cat-like reactions of Russian goalie Victor Konovalenko was a show in itself. All told, he was probably the most valuable player of the tournament. Another who would rate high on our list for MVP was the veteran team leader and play-maker Konstantin Loktev.

Since it's common knowledge that the Russian team is subsidized to the extent that they do little else besides play hockey together, some have wondered just how they would stack up against our players who have played together for years — the pros.

This was answered to some extent by one of the Canadian officials here with that country's national team. And it came from someone who has watched hockey at close range for years.

"Given three months of practice under the rules played by the National Hockey League, the Russian team could play right with the top four in that league. And with only a month or so practice, they could regularly beat the Boston Bruins and the New York Rangers," said the spokesman.

Pros or no, the Russians will dominate "amateur" international hockey until the day comes that all countries have a standard definition for amateur — or other nations develop the Soviet system of sponsoring and training their players.

SCL Cage Race Opens Friday

(Editor's note: This is the first of two articles reviewing prospects in the 1965 South Central League basketball race)

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The South Central League, long noted for unpredictable basketball races, has come up with one for 1965 that should outdo anything that has gone before.

The seven-team conference, which is scheduled to open intra-league firing Friday night, actually appears to have a seven-team race on its hands. Following a 41 game non-conference schedule that concluded with scattered action over the holidays, no one club appears to have much of an edge on any other team in the SCL.

Defending champion Pueblo Central and Centennial collected the best records against outside opposition. But in marching to 5-1 marks neither battled the caliber of opposition that confronted some of the other league teams. Aside from those two, no one else bettered .500. Pueblo East, Palmer and Pueblo South all finished at that level while Trinidad and Wasson fell below the .500 mark.

Wasson, only 2-4 in non-conference play, is still considered by the majority of coaches as a potential challenger. The Thunderbirds, who went to the state football finals, were set back when several of their top cagers reported late due to the length of the grid season. And the T-Birds, who actually will floor one of the more veteran teams in the circuit, have shown signs that they are starting to come.

Pueblo East, another team with outstanding veterans, also started slow. The Eagles lost their first three starts but rebounded to win three straight and must be considered a strong contender.

Still, most of the talk when considering championship caliber revolves around three clubs that are predominately inexperienced. Central, which graduated four of its starting five, has some outstanding young players and is expected to come strong late in the campaign. Palmer, under new coach Roger O'Neill, has picked up polish and the Terrors could be the surprise team of the season. And Centennial, with the tallest player in the history of the SCL in seven-foot Ron Smith, has to figure heavily in any pre-season predictions.

Some of the questions may be answered quickly as the teams leave the starting blocks this weekend. A Friday match between the Bulldogs and Cen- between Wasson and Centennial and a Saturday game between the Bulldogs and Central should be the top attractions. Palmer travels to Pueblo South and East to Trinidad in other Friday action and Trinidad goes to South Saturday.

PUEBLO CENTRAL — The Wildcats are probably no threat to repeat their great season in 1964 which saw them finish 19-2 and as runner-up in the Class AAA State Tournament.

Coach Jim Ranson lost four starters plus three of his top five reserves off that club, including the heralded shooting duo of C. D. Bodam and Rick Shelton plus their great rebounder, Bob Price.

Strangely enough, the Cats may have changed little but the faces. Physically this team is certainly comparable if not a shade above last year and the long range potential may be as great. The hub is 6-2 senior, Dan Kochevar who is the only returning starter, but Ranson has another oustanding crop of sophomores and juniors.

In 6-1 Terry Snider, a soph who is averaging right at 20 points, the 'Cats have another brilliant shooter. Eddie Smith, a 6-2 jumping jack, is another standout soph. In addition veterans Joe Klune and Jim Allen are back and in the remainder of the junior and senior group there is excellent size and jumping ability for the front line.

Central has not acquired the smoothness of last year's team—yet! But the Wildcats may improve more than any other league club and they have that valuable intangible of the great season behind them. So if they are to be unseated it will probably depend on the ability of the other teams to get to them early in the schedule.

PALMER — The Terrors' potential is outstanding and their performance improving. O'Neill, who is a transplant from basketball - rich Illinois, has already made noticeable strides in improving the fundamentals and this team could turn out to be an excellent one.

In Bill McCalvy, the Tribe may have the league's best player. He will certainly be one of its top scorers. Bob Pearson has evidently shaken off early season inconsistencies and he gives the team another solid scorer. In Ed Fitzgerald, Palmer had an outstanding 6-5 sophomore who is destined to become one of the SCL's top stars. Tom Espinoza is the only experienced guard but O'Neill is also solving that problem with a pair of talented sophomores in Charles McKenzie and Wade Exum.

The heighth is certainly adequate and although the inexperience will hurt some, that problem should have less significance as the season progresses. Probably the most acute need is for a strong team leader, someone to weld a firm unit out of a club that now plays in waves of inconsistency.

O'Neill, a tireless worker, is uncovering the abilities. If a player comes along to light a match under the potential, Palmer could go all the way.

CENTENNIAL — The Bulldogs have been something of a surprise to date. Coach Doyle Fyfe had only three returning letermen and nonee were outstanding members of the 1964 team.

This group includes forward Scott Eslinger, guard Abel Fuentes, and center Bud Temple. In addition there are four other seniors on the squad, although their experience is limited.

Still, the dominent figure on this team is Smith, the seven-foot sophomore. His start was slow as expected but his scoring and rebounding have both improved consistently and there is no doubt that he poses a rough defensive challenge for all of the league teams. Mike Quigg, a guard, is another sophomore prospect and juniors Ken Martucci and Christy Bivin bolster the front line.

In addition, Fyfe will pick up a pair of transfer students at the start of the second semester. Carl Powers, a 6-1 forward from Pueblo Catholic and Butch Krissbaum, a 6-0 guard from Indianapolis, Ind., will provide aid in the latter stages of the season.

The Bulldogs definitely have their "ifs", but like most of the other SCL clubs, they also definitely have a shot at the title.

Tiger Icers Trip Terriers 2-0

BOSTON, Mass. — Colorado College's hockey team, still somewhat breathless over their third win of the season in a 2-0 struggle here with Boston University, headed west today with a good chance of making it back to Colorado Springs with nearly an even record.

The only stop-off will be this weekend when the CC Tigers take on the University of Wisconsin in a pair of non-league games at Madison, Wis. The Badgers have just recently formed a hockey team, after several years absence on the Big Ten campus, and CC will be favored to win its fourth and fifth against six losses.

In Monday night's thriller here, senior center Jeff Sauer broke up a scoreless tie within the final two minutes of the game to back a spectacular performance by goalie Mike Carter as the Tigers came off with the 2-0 triumph.

The Terriers outplayed CC but couldn't get one of their 43 shots past Carter, who kicked out shot after shot in a sensational display of goal tending. In addition to the two scores, Colorado College got off only 15 shots on Boston goalie Jack Ferreira.

Sauer, a slick-skating senior from St. Paul, Minn., scored off the power play with 18:10 gone in the third period shortly after Boston's Brian Gilmore left his team shorthanded on one of two unusual clipping penalties. Sauer took a pass from Steve Ebert and blasted in a 25-footer.

Sophomore Bob Lindberg gave the Bengals an insurance tally in the final minute of action on a deflected shot with this time CC a man short via Sauer's penalty for tripping just eight seconds after he had scored the winning goal. Lindberg, a first-year performer for the Tigers from Minneapolis, also fired in a long shot and it went in off the skate of one of the BU defensemen and zipped into the net.

Ferreira, Boston's goalie, was cut over the eye by a shot at the end of the first period. It took six stitches to close the wound but he still came up with an outstanding game until the last two minutes.

Honors for the evening, however, were reserved for Carter and his 43 saves without a score against him. The stubby little CC goalie has been improving with each contest on this Eastern tour over the holidays, but this unquestionably was his best game ever.

This Friday night in the opener against Wisconsin, Carter is scheduled for relief from his heavy duty as transfer goalie Bill Howard becomes eligible and will see action. Howard is rated one of the best to ever guard the nets for the Tigers.

The game Monday was only the third loss this season for Boston U. in 14 games. Other defeats were to Northeastern 4-3 and the University of Michigan, 4-3.

Pirates Get Early Rest At Carmel

The Buccaneers take on lowly Mt. Carmel tonight, a team the 1962-63 St. Mary's basketball edition defeated, 14-2, to clinch the DPL title. The St. Mary's-Mt. Carmel game is scheduled for the St. Joseph's Gymnasium. Tip-off time is set for 8 p.m.

Wright's chargers will be seeking their seventh victory this season while the Pirates have suffered only one setback, losing that single outing to the Triple-A Will Rogers League favorites Harrison.

Last weekend the Bucs made a two-game sweep, dumping the State AA defending champion Salida, 51-46, and the St. Mary's squad followed with a 57-42 DPL league opening win over Cathedral.

The Pirates are slated to receive an acid test of their abilith on the hardwood court as they play host to Regis and Mullen this weekend. The Bucs tangle with Regis on Friday and take on the top challenger for the DPL crown the next night when they tangle with Mullen. Both games are scheduled for the Pirates Gymnasium with game time set for 8 p.m. both nights.

Going into tonight's contest against Mt. Carmel, the Pirates have a 6-1 won-loss record and a 58.6 points per game average. The St. Mary's defense has limited the opposition to 48.1 points per game. Tom McCarthy, the Pirates backcourt general, leads the St. Mary's team in scoring via 128 points in seven games.

Cellar-Picked Fives Rally To Trouble Big Eight Elite

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kansas State and Oklahoma State flirted with disaster on opening night in the Big Eight basketball race, Colorado lost at Missouri in a mild upset and Kansas' tournament champions got past Nebraska at Lincoln.

The results emphasized the outstanding balance in the Big Eight this season. Oklahoma and Iowa State, rated near the bottom, came within an eyelash of knocking off K-State and OSU, both top contenders. What's more, the Sooners were on K-State's home court.

It was a wild finish at Manhattan for 9,500 fans as 6-foot-10 Roy Smith's tip-in won it, 71-69, with one second on the clock. Oklahoma State squeezed past Iowa State at Ames, 54-52, in overtime.

At Columbia, Missouri wiped out a 12-point deficit with a full-court press that demoralized Colorado and went on to a 63-58 victory. Kansas spoiled Nebraska's perfect home record, 66-56, with a tough defense and balanced attack. Colorado beat Missouri 65-61 in the tournament semifinals.

Oklahoma raced to a 40-37 halftime edge with 50 per cent shooting and moved it to 50-43 with 14:29 left. Then Ron Paradis came off the bench with some hot shooting and K-State rolled up a 69-59 bulge with 4:54 left.

But the fired-up Sooners broke up K-State's delay game and tied it with 10 straight points. With seven seconds left, Paradis was fouled but missed the shot on a one-and-one, Sammy Robinson rebounded and fed Jeff Simons under the goal. Simons blew the layup and Smith tipped it in.

Kansas hit 11 of its first 15 field shots for a 22-10 bulge, but Fred Hare led a rally which put the Huskers in rfont 35-34 at halftime.

Al Lopes turned the tide for Kansas with deadly shooting early in the last half as Kansas spurted ahead 48-40.

Colorado was in front 48-36 early in the last half when Missouri clamped on its press, outscored the Buffs 14-2 in a nine-minute span and tied the game.

Buff Halftime Lead Falls Before Tigers' Onslaught

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Tigers demoralized Colorado with a tough pressing pressing defense in the second half, overcame a 12-point deficit and beat the Buffaloes 63-58 in their Big Eight basketball opener Monday night.

Colorado controlled the game through the first half and ran its 37-28 halftime margin up to 48-36 with 5½ minutes gone in the second period. Then Missouri went charging all over the court after the ball, and stopped the Buffaloes cold. At the 8:42 mark the score was tied 50-all.

After several lead changeovers and two ties, Missouri took the lead for good on Don Early's layup at 57-56 with 4:42 to go.

Gary Garner, a flu victim whose availability had been questionable up to game time, shook off his illness and led the Tigers with 22 points, getting 16 of them in the second half. Ned Monsees hit 17, after missing his first six shots, and grabbed 13 rebounds.

Chuck Gardner tallied 20 points and took 16 rebounds for Colorado.

After Early put Missouri on top, the Tigers went into a stall the last three minutes and fattened their lead on buckets by Garner, Lynn Baker, Monsees and George Flamank.

Colorado's season record is 5-7 and Missouri's is 6-5.

Dakotans Repel AFA On Defense

GRAND FORKS, N. D. (AP) — University of North Dakota clipped the invading Air Force Academy 61-54 in non-conference basketball Monday night for the fourth straight win for the Sioux.

The Sioux, strong favorites to cop the North Central Conference championship, and Air Force were tied 34-all at halftime but Jim Hester's lay-up at the start of the second half gave the Sioux a permanent lead. The biggest lead for the winners was at 59-50 with 4:43 to play.

North Dakota shot 39.1 per cent on 25 of 64 field goal attempts. The Falcons hit 21 of 68 for 30.9 per cent in the defensive battle before 6,200.

The taller Sioux won the rebound battle 48-30, with 6-8 sophomore forward Phil Jackson pulling down 16.

Paul Pederson paced the Sioux scoring with 16 counters. Scott Etnyre popped in 18 and Fred Budinger 16 for the Falcons.

To Rejoin Wings

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP) — Coach Sid Abel of the Detroit Red Wings said Monday night Bill Gadsby will be back in the line-up for the clubs National Hockey League game with the Canadiens in Montreal Wednesday night.

Gadsby, a regular defenseman with the Wings, has been sidelined for more than a month with a charley horse.

Panthers Still Holding Choice Role

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

At the onset of the basketball season, Norman Sullivan's towering Panthers were chosen for a favorite role in the newly formed Triple-A Will Rogers League pennant chase.

The Harrison coach, in his first term as the Panthers' new head mentor, managed to produce a varsity unit which has jelled to live up to their rating as WRL favorites. The Panthers compiled the best non-conference record among the five-team loop circuit via a 5-2 won-loss mark.

However, the Panthers will have to contend with last year's State AA semi-finalist and Pikes Peak League champion Cheyenne Mountain, a team which presented the Harrison roundballers with one of two defeats earlier this season. The Panthers dropped their second game to Pueblo Centennial of the strong South Central League.

The Harrison crew puts its WRL pennant hopes on the line this weekend as the five league teams resume action after a holiday break. Two games are scheduled for Friday as the league officially begins when Cheyenne plays host to Harrison and Academy High journeys to Canon City.

Saturday's slate calls for two non-conference games. Cheyenne travels to Mapleton and the Gladiators of Widefield visit Brighton.

Don O'Hare's Indians, behind the shooting and rebounding of Ron Graham and Bill Massarand, have managed to win four of their six non-loop games including a win over Harrison.

Canon City came on strong to wipe out a disastrous three-game losing streak as the Tigers won three of eight games. Widefield and Academy High could only managed one victory apiece but John Delventhal's small-but-potent scoring Kadets, behind the gunning of Bert Spear, could give the top challengers a run for the WRL crown.

The Kadets won their single outing against Canon City but the Academy High gunners went against a rugged non-conference slate, including Palmer's Terrors which initiated the first basketball game between the city and suburban schools.

Harrison's Panthers have the tallest team in the WRL with a starting unit averaging 6-2. Mike Obert and John Dalton give the Panthers rebounding strength as both cagers measure six-foot-four. In addition to these towering basketballers, the Panthers have Eddie Hook (6-2) and Harold Oldham (6-2).

Tourney to Return

There has been some maligning remarks concerning the support of regional promotions when fans failed to throng to a certain event in the past.

But you can usually tell the class of any game or series by counting noses. All too frequently in the past, these fans have been short-changed.

It was only natural before the tournament started over a week ago at the Broadmoor World Arena that there was some scepticism of the response. Much of this stemmed from the World Tournament which was held on the same ice in 1962, in which several games were played before only a sprinkling of patrons.

In that case, however, the few times the major world powers met there was a premium on seats at the Arena. Had Russia and Czechoslovakia not boycotted that tourney at the last minute because of political trouble over the infamous Berlin Wall, the sell-out crowds would undoubtedly have tripled. And who could blame the fans for staying away from those lopsided affairs in which the final margin was the only thing left in doubt.

The holiday double round-robin between Russia, Czechoslovakia and Canada assured an excellent contest for every one of the six games. And as a result the crowds averaged just under 4,000 for each one. The fifth game of the series, a return meeting between Russia and Canada, was tops of the week long offering as judged by the capacity 5,000 that jammed the World Arena.

All the attendance figures were estimates since no head count is given by the Arena officials, but the total tickets sold were enough to virtually assure the return of the tourney next year.

Thayer Tutt, president of the Broadmoor and ideaman behind this rather unique tournament, indicated at the conclusion of the meet that he was satisfied with the turnout and that he is willing to have another such hockey series in 1965.

It cost somewhere around $46,000 to bring the three teams into Colorado Springs, and these expenses were met after the fourth game. That meant that the sellout of Russian and Canada in the fifth game, and the 2,500 of the final game produced a profit.

That represents a pretty juicy tidbit for the first time out, but it's also a pretty hefty investment. Any profit this time hardly makes up for the debits incurred in '62 when the boycott of two of the top five in the World Tournament dropped the bottom out of expected receipts.

About the only thing that would halt what is hoped to be a continuing series for the Walter A. Brown Memorial trophy would be another major crisis. And in these times, that's hardly out of the question.

Which teams will be invited for '65 will depend largely on how the forthcoming World Tournament in Finland turns out later this winter. All three teams that were here will be participating, along with a dozen or more. Both the Russians (champs here with a 3-1 record) and the Czechs (2-1-1) have indicated they will return upon invitation.

However, it would improve the pairings even more with fresh blood. Sweden, World titlist at the Broadmoor in '62, is another high on the list of teams which could be invited, and if the United States could mold together a representative squad the Yanks undoubtedly would join the fun. However, the original thought of restricting the tourney to only the best of amateur hockey will retain the competition seen last week—and also the support of area fans.

Another possibility would be an entry from Denver University, which has been proposed. But this would be departing from the international aspect unless Canada was willing to let the Pioneers represent their country instead of the team which was sent here.

Besides winning an invite from the Broadmoor, Denver would have to have special sanction from the NCAA and the American Amateur Hockey Association to play. If this comes about, it would be an obvious gimmick to try and draw DU fandom from the Mile High City and at the same time reduce expenses of importing a team from Europe.

From their play here, the Russians clearly demonstrated why they are the early favorites to successfully defend their World title in Finland in March. The Olympic champions were awesome to watch and played the game exactly the way the international rules indicate it should be played.

Although the return match with Canada had the largest crowd in anticipation of a possible upset (following the excellent 5-3 decision by the Soviets in the first round), the game the night before undoubtedly set up the capacity attendance.

That 5-3 surprise by the Czechs over the Russians had to rank as the best of the six games. It was a great display of an almost perfectly planned contest as Czechoslovakia seldom allowed the powerful skaters from the Soviet Union to form their intricate plays. The Czechs beat Russia as only they can; forechecking to break the patterns and staying out of the penalty box.

The tremendous passing, playmaking and skating of the Russians was obvious, as always, but perhaps overlooked by a few was the Soviet defense. Working in through this network of defenders for a clear shot was rough enough, but getting a rebound or second shot on goal was next to impossible.

And, of course, the cat-like reactions of Russian goalie Victor Konovalenko was a show in itself. All told, he was probably the most valuable player of the tournament. Another who would rate high on our list for MVP was the veteran team leader and play-maker Konstantin Loktev.

Since it's common knowledge that the Russian team is subsidized to the extent that they do little else besides play hockey together, some have wondered just how they would stack up against our players who have played together for years — the pros.

This was answered to some extent by one of the Canadian officials here with that country's national team. And it came from someone who has watched hockey at close range for years.

"Given three months of practice under the rules played by the National Hockey League, the Russian team could play right with the top four in that league. And with only a month or so practice, they could regularly beat the Boston Bruins and the New York Rangers," said the spokesman.

Pros or no, the Russians will dominate "amateur" international hockey until the day comes that all countries have a standard definition for amateur — or other nations develop the Soviet system of sponsoring and training their players.

SCL Cage Race Opens Friday

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The South Central League, long noted for unpredictable basketball races, has come up with one for 1965 that should outdo anything that has gone before.

The seven - team conference, which is scheduled to open intra-league firing Friday night, actually appears to have a seven-team race on its hands. Following a 41 game non-conference schedule that concluded with scattered action over the holidays, no one club appears to have much of an edge on any other team in the SCL.

Defending champion Pueblo Central and Centennial collected the best records against outside opposition. But in marching to 5-1 marks neither battled the caliber of opposition that confronted some of the other league teams. Aside from those two, no one else bettered .500. Pueblo East, Palmer and Pueblo South all finished at that level while Trinidad and Wasson fell below the .500 mark.

Wasson, only 2-4 in non-conference play, is still considered by the majority of coaches as a potential challenger. The Thunderbirds, who went to the state football finals, were set back when several of their top cagers reported late due to the length of the grid season. And the T-Birds, who actually will floor one of the more veteran teams in the circuit, have shown signs that they are starting to come.

Pueblo East, another team with outstanding veterans, also started slow. The Eagles lost their first three starts but rebounded to win three straight and must be considered a strong contender.

Still, most of the talk when considering championship caliber revolves around three clubs that are predominately inexperienced. Central, which graduated four of its starting five, has some outstanding young players and is expected to come strong late in the campaign. Palmer, under new coach Roger O'Neill, has picked up polish and the Terrors could be the surprise team of the season. And Centennial, with the tallest player in the history of the SCL in seven-foot Ron Smith, has to figure heavily in any pre-season predictions.

Some of the questions may be answered quickly as the teams leave the starting blocks this weekend. A Friday match between the Bulldogs and Centennial between Wasson and Centennial and a Saturday game between the Bulldogs and Central should be the top attractions. Palmer travels to Pueblo South and East to Trinidad in other Friday action and Trinidad goes to South Saturday.

PUEBLO CENTRAL — The Wildcats are probably no threat to repeat their great season in 1964 which saw them finish 19-2 and as runner-up in the Class AAA State Tournament.

Coach Jim Ranson lost four starters plus three of his top five reserves off that club, including the heralded shooting duo of C. D. Bodam and Rick Shelton plus their great rebounder, Bob Price.

Strangely enough, the Cats may have changed little but the faces. Physically this team is certainly comparable if not a shade above last year and the long range potential may be as great. The hub is 6-2 senior, Dan Kochevar who is the only returning starter, but Ranson has another oustanding crop of sophomores and juniors.

In 6-1 Terry Snider, a soph who is averaging right at 20 points, the 'Cats have another brilliant shooter. Eddie Smith, a 6-2 jumping jack, is another standout soph. In addition veterans Joe Klune and Jim Allen are back and in the remainder of the junior and senior group there is excellent size and jumping ability for the front line.

Central has not acquired the smoothness of last year's team—yet! But the Wildcats may improve more than any other league club and they have that valuable intangible of the great season behind them. So if they are to be unseated it will probably depend on the ability of the other teams to get to them early in the schedule.

PALMER — The Terrors' potential is outstanding and their performance improving. O'Neill, who is a transplant from basketball - rich Illinois, has already made noticeable strides in improving the fundamentals and this team could turn out to be an excellent one.

In Bill McCalvy, the Tribe may have the league's best player. He will certainly be one of its top scorers. Bob Pearson has evidently shaken off early season inconsistencies and he gives the team another solid scorer. In Ed Fitzgerald, Palmer had an outstanding 6-5 sophomore who is destined to become one of the SCL's top stars. Tom Espinoza is the only experienced guard but O'Neill is also solving that problem with a pair of talented sophomores in Charles McKenzie and Wade Exum.

The heighth is certainly adequate and although the inexperience will hurt some, that problem should have less significance as the season progresses. Probably the most acute need is for a strong team leader, someone to weld a firm unit out of a club that now plays in waves of inconsistency.

O'Neill, a tireless worker, is uncovering the abilities. If a player comes along to light a match under the potential, Palmer could go all the way.

CENTENNIAL — The Bulldogs have been something of a surprise to date. Coach Doyle Fyfe had only three returning letermen and nonee were outstanding members of the 1964 team.

This group includes forward Scott Eslinger, guard Abel Fuentes, and center Bud Temple. In addition there are four other seniors on the squad, although their experience is limited.

Still, the dominent figure on this team is Smith, the seven-foot sophomore. His start was slow as expected but his scoring and rebounding have both improved consistently and there is no doubt that he poses a rough defensive challenge for all of the league teams. Mike Quigg, a guard, is another sophomore prospect and juniors Ken Martucci and Christy Bivin bolster the front line.

In addition, Fyfe will pick up a pair of transfer students at the start of the second semester. Carl Powers, a 6-1 forward from Pueblo Catholic and Butch Krissbaum, a 6-0 guard from Indianapolis, Ind., will provide aid in the latter stages of the season.

The Bulldogs definitely have their "ifs", but like most of the other SCL clubs, they also definitely have a shot at the title.

Panthers Still Holding Choice Role

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

At the onset of the basketball season, Norman Sullivan's towering Panthers were chosen for a favorite role in the newly formed Triple-A Will Rogers League pennant chase.

The Harrison coach, in his first term as the Panthers' new head mentor, managed to produce a varsity unit which has jelled to live up to their rating as WRL favorites. The Panthers compiled the best non-conference record among the five-team loop circuit via a 5-2 won-loss mark.

However, the Panthers will have to contend with last year's State AA semi-finalist and Pikes Peak League champion Cheyenne Mountain, a team which presented the Harrison roundballers with one of two defeats earlier this season. The Panthers dropped their second game to Pueblo Centennial of the strong South Central League.

The Harrison crew puts its WRL pennant hopes on the line this weekend as the five league teams resume action after a holiday break. Two games are scheduled for Friday as the league officially begins when Cheyenne plays host to Harrison and Academy High journeys to Canon City.

Saturday's slate calls for two non-conference games. Cheyenne travels to Mapleton and the Gladiators of Widefield visit Brighton.

Don O'Hare's Indians, behind the shooting and rebounding of Ron Graham and Bill Massarand, have managed to win four of their six non-loop games including a win over Harrison.

Canon City came on strong to wipe out a disastrous three-game losing streak as the Tigers won three of eight games. Widefield and Academy High could only managed one victory apiece but John Delventhal's small-but-potent scoring Kadets, behind the gunning of Bert Spear, could give the top challengers a run for the WRL crown.

The Kadets won their single outing against Canon City but the Academy High gunners went against a rugged non-conference slate, including Palmer's Terrors which initiated the first basketball game between the city and suburban schools.

Harrison's Panthers have the tallest team in the WRL with a starting unit averaging 6-2. Mike Obert and John Dalton give the Panthers rebounding strength as both cagers measure six-foot-four. In addition to these towering basketballers, the Panthers have Eddie Hook (6-2) and Harold Oldham (6-2).

Tiger Icers Trip Terriers 2-0

BOSTON, Mass. — Colorado College's hockey team, still somewhat breathless over their third win of the season in a 2-0 struggle here with Boston University, headed west today with a good chance of making it back to Colorado Springs with nearly an even record.

The only stop-off will be this weekend when the CC Tigers take on the University of Wisconsin in a pair of non-league games at Madison, Wis. The Badgers have just recently formed a hockey team, after several years absence on the Big Ten campus, and CC will be favored to win its fourth and fifth against six losses.

In Monday night's thriller here, senior center Jeff Sauer broke up a scoreless tie within the final two minutes of the game to back a spectacular performance by goalie Mike Carter as the Tigers came off with the 2-0 triumph.

The Terriers outplayed CC but couldn't get one of their 43 shots past Carter, who kicked out shot after shot in a sensational display of goal tending. In addition to the two scores, Colorado College got off only 15 shots on Boston goalie Jack Ferreira.

Sophomore Bob Lindberg gave the Bengals an insurance tally in the final minute of action on a deflected shot with this time CC a man short via Sauer's penalty for tripping just eight seconds after he had scored the winning goal. Lindberg, a first-year performer for the Tigers from Minneapolis, also fired in a long shot and it went in off the skate of one of the BU defensemen and zipped into the net.

Ferreira, Boston's goalie, was cut over the eye by a shot at the end of the first period. It took six stitches to close the wound but he still came up with an outstanding game until the last two minutes.

Honors for the evening, however, were reserved for Carter and his 43 saves without a score against him. The stubby little CC goalie has been improving with each contest on this Eastern tour over the holidays, but this unquestionably was his best game ever.

This Friday night in the opener against Wisconsin, Carter is scheduled for relief from his heavy duty as transfer goalie Bill Howard becomes eligible and will see action. Howard is rated one of the best to ever guard the nets for the Tigers.

The game Monday was only the third loss this season for Boston U. in 14 games. Other defeats were to Northeastern 4-3 and the University of Michigan, 4-3.

Pirates Get Early Rest At Carmel

The Buccaneers take on lowly Mt. Carmel tonight, a team the 1962-63 St. Mary's basketball edition defeated, 14-2, to clinch the DPL title. The St. Mary's-Mt. Carmel game is scheduled for the St. Joseph's Gymnasium. Tip-off time is set for 8 p.m.

Wright's chargers will be seeking their seventh victory this season while the Pirates have suffered only one setback, losing that single outing to the Triple-A Will Rogers League favorites Harrison.

Last weekend the Bucs made a two-game sweep, dumping the State AA defending champion Salida, 51-46, and the St. Mary's squad followed with a 57-42 DPL league opening win over Cathedral.

The Pirates are slated to receive an acid test of their abilith on the hardwood court as they play host to Regis and Mullen this weekend. The Bucs tangle with Regis on Friday and take on the top challenger for the DPL crown the next night when they tangle with Mullen. Both games are scheduled for the Pirates Gymnasium with game time set for 8 p.m. both nights.

Going into tonight's contest against Mt. Carmel, the Pirates have a 6-1 won-loss record and a 58.6 points per game average. The St. Mary's defense has limited the opposition to 48.1 points per game. Tom McCarthy, the Pirates backcourt general, leads the St. Mary's team in scoring via 128 points in seven games.

Cellar-Picked Fives Rally To Trouble Big Eight Elite

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kansas State and Oklahoma State flirted with disaster on opening night in the Big Eight basketball race, Colorado lost at Missouri in a mild upset and Kansas' tournament champions got past Nebraska at Lincoln.

The results emphasized the outstanding balance in the Big Eight this season. Oklahoma and Iowa State, rated near the bottom, came within an eyelash of knocking off K-State and OSU, both top contenders. What's more, the Sooners were on K-State's home court.

It was a wild finish at Manhattan for 9,500 fans as 6-foot-10 Roy Smith's tip-in won it, 71-69, with one second on the clock. Oklahoma State squeezed past Iowa State at Ames, 54-52, in overtime.

At Columbia, Missouri wiped out a 12-point deficit with a full-court press that demoralized Colorado and went on to a 63-58 victory. Kansas spoiled Nebraska's perfect home record, 66-56, with a tough defense and balanced attack. Colorado beat Missouri 65-61 in the tournament semifinals.

Oklahoma raced to a 40-37 halftime edge with 50 per cent shooting and moved it to 50-43 with 14:29 left. Then Ron Paradis came off the bench with some hot shooting and K-State rolled up a 69-59 bulge with 4:54 left.

But the fired-up Sooners broke up K-State's delay game and tied it with 10 straight points. With seven seconds left, Paradis was fouled but missed the shot on a one-and-one, Sammy Robinson rebounded and fed Jeff Simons under the goal. Simons blew the layup and Smith tipped it in.

Kansas hit 11 of its first 15 field shots for a 22-10 bulge, but Fred Hare led a rally which put the Huskers in rfont 35-34 at halftime.

Al Lopes turned the tide for Kansas with deadly shooting early in the last half as Kansas spurted ahead 48-40.

Colorado was in front 48-36 early in the last half when Missouri clamped on its press, outscored the Buffs 14-2 in a nine-minute span and tied the game.

Buff Halftime Lead Falls Before Tigers' Onslaught

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Tigers demoralized Colorado with a tough pressing pressing defense in the second half, overcame a 12-point deficit and beat the Buffaloes 63-58 in their Big Eight basketball opener Monday night.

Colorado controlled the game through the first half and ran its 37-28 halftime margin up to 48-36 with 5½ minutes gone in the second period. Then Missouri went charging all over the court after the ball, and stopped the Buffaloes cold. At the 8:42 mark the score was tied 50-all.

After several lead changeovers and two ties, Missouri took the lead for good on Don Early's layup at 57-56 with 4:42 to go.

Gary Garner, a flu victim whose availability had been questionable up to game time, shook off his illness and led the Tigers with 22 points, getting 16 of them in the second half. Ned Monsees hit 17, after missing his first six shots, and grabbed 13 rebounds.

Chuck Gardner tallied 20 points and took 16 rebounds for Colorado.

After Early put Missouri on top, the Tigers went into a stall the last three minutes and fattened their lead on buckets by Garner, Lynn Baker, Monsees and George Flamank.

Colorado's season record is 5-7 and Missouri's is 6-5.

Dakotans Repel AFA On Defense

GRAND FORKS, N. D. (AP) — University of North Dakota clipped the invading Air Force Academy 61-54 in non-conference basketball Monday night for the fourth straight win for the Sioux.

The Sioux, strong favorites to cop the North Central Conference championship, and Air Force were tied 34-all at halftime but Jim Hester's lay-up at the start of the second half gave the Sioux a permanent lead. The biggest lead for the winners was at 59-50 with 4:43 to play.

North Dakota shot 39.1 per cent on 25 of 64 field goal attempts. The Falcons hit 21 of 68 for 30.9 per cent in the defensive battle before 6,200.

The taller Sioux won the rebound battle 48-30, with 6-8 sophomore forward Phil Jackson pulling down 16.

Paul Pederson paced the Sioux scoring with 16 counters. Scott Etnyre popped in 18 and Fred Budinger 16 for the Falcons.

Tigers Host Colorado State Bears In City Auditorium Tonight

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College's basketball team jumps into the 1965 portion of its schedule tonight at the City Auditorium with hopes that it will prove more productive than was the 1964 segment.

Plans for any immediate reversal of form may be overly-ambitious, however, for the Tigers opponent this evening is Colorado State College of Greeley, a team that is already responsible for CC's worst defeat of the season. Tipoff time tonight is scheduled for 8.

According to the form sheet, the Tigers' prospects for recording their second triumph of the campaign are rather bleak. CSC annihilated the Colorado Springs team by 54 points, 111-57, in early December at its Greeley base.

Since that time events may have served to shrink the breach between the two clubs. CSC lost three squad members due to scholastic ineligibility and in the past few weeks the Bears' rather prolific scoring pace has braked just a bit. On a recent trip to the West Coast CSC dropped three of four starts, losing to Pomona College, Los Angeles State, and Pepperdine while defeating Whittier College. Overall the Greeley team stands at 5-3.

CC's record is decidedly less impressive. The Tigers snapped a 10 game losing streak early in December with a 69-58 victory over St. Mary's of the Plains but since have launched another string of losses which has now extended to six. The local school lost five consecutive starts in a pair of tournaments over the holidays and is now 1-8 for the campaign.

Coach Red Eastlack's starting lineup will include only one senior tonight. Dave Herrington, the leading scorer with an 11.4 average, will pair at guards with sophomore Steve Schilder. Another soph, 6-5 Gary Bouton, will open at center with juniors Phil LeCuyer (6-3) and Pete Susemihl (6-1) as forwards. Susemihl had his finest night of the campaign against Grinnell College in the third place game of the recent tournament hosted by CC, hitting 15 points and turning in excellent work on the backboards.

As usual the Tigers will give away considerable height to the visitors. Biggest of the Bears is 6-6 center Ed Kippes but forwards Ed Brisco and Chuck DeMorst are both 6-4 and guard Jim Massick 6-3. Joe Folds, the other guard, is just 5-10 but he is the team's leading scorer with a 16.1 average. Kippes is scoring at a 15.3 clip and DeMorst at 12.5.

Tonight's game will be the final for the Tigers for two weeks. They break until Jan. 19 when they will host longtime rival Colorado Mines in the first of two games between those clubs this winter.

BOWLING

PBA Tourney

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado Springs keglers will have an opportunity to see the nation's top professional bowlers in action when the Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) tournament moves into Classic Lanes, Feb. 23-27.

The PBA tourney in Colorado was formerly held in Denver for the last two years but promoter Ralph Archer selected Colorado Springs for the site of this year's tournament.

Approximately 90 national professional bowlers, along with 10 state amateur keglers will compete for $25,000 in prize money in the five-day tourney at Classic Lanes.

Archer selected Colorado Springs for this year's tournament because he felt the area would give better community support than elsewhere.

Regardless of the reasons, the tournament will be held here and without doubt this is the biggest event in the history of Colorado Springs bowling.

The finals of the tournament on Feb. 27 will be aired over nation-wide television over ABC-TV with sportscaster Chris Schenkel giving the play-by-play action.

WIBC NOTES—More than 2,600,000 women now bowl regularly in more than 114,000 sanctioned leagues according to the 1963-64 membership figures of the Woman's International Bowling Congress (WIBC).

Only 91 perfect games have been scored by women in the 48-year history of WIBC. And only two women have bowled more than one WIBC—sanctioned "300" game. They are Sylvia Wene of Philadelphia (she has three "300" games) and Norma Lake of Dallas, who has two perfect games.

Winless Gladiators Score First Goal of New Career

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

To further malign a well-worn phrase, the first 146 minutes and 30 seconds are the hardest.

After four games of fruitless searching, Widefield's hockey team found the goal at the Broadmoor World Arena and scored Monday night.

The fact that the Gladiators lost, 8-1, to Palmer was all but a foregone fact. That the Glads put the puck where they wanted was the surprise.

Widefield fielded its first high school team this winter and fans didn't expect miracles. But Byron Brian and Roger Sims teamed in the first period to give Glad (and a pun would not be out of place) fans their first chance at true rejoicing.

After Palmer went ahead, 1-0, Sims dropped a pass back to Brian stationed close to the opposite side of the cage. Goalie John Johanson, pulled out of position on the play, had no chance to get the puck on the far side.

The goal brought Widefield's cheering section to its collective feet and seemed to implant new impetus in the Glads' hearts.

Widefield began checking furiously, knocking Terrors off their skates and getting knocked down in turn. But Palmer's new-forged line of Ted Andrews, Greg Good and Greg Nelson was bent on deciding the outcome early and sacked six scores the first 12 minutes.

Nelson, wearing a goalie's mask to protect a broken nose, served up three goals as the converted defenseman pushed the Terrors to their third win of the year. Good, a center switched to wing, and starting his first game whipped in two goals and added three assists. Good now has ten points for the year, tying him for third place in the City Hockey League with Cheyenne's Jeff Thatcher.

Other goals were scored by Dave Foster on an assist from Stan Traxler, by Stan Johanson and by Traxler.

The second period turned into a head-knocking contest after Widefield goaltender Steve King had been decked three times in the first stanza. But both teams returned the third period for a higher brand of hockey.

Cheyenne, which stands alone and undefeated in first place, takes on Wasson, in second place, Wednesday night. The Indians probably will be without their top-scoring wings, Don and Doug Heyliger. Don has been hampered with an injured leg since before Christmas. Coach Bill MacDonald said Monday night he probably would suit up. Doug was reported injured in an automobile accident Sunday. MacDonald was uncertain how soon he would be able to return to action.

The twin wings share the league scoring lead with six goals and five assists.

Volkov Top Scorer In Tourney

Russians Leonid Volkov, closely followed by a pair of teammates from the Soviet hockey team which won the recent International Tournament at the Broadmoor World Arena, was the top scorer of the week-long ice extravaganza. Volkov wound up with five goals and six points, with Veniamin Alexandrov and linemate Alexander Almetov each getting three goals and five points in the four games played by the USSR.

The only player from another team breaking through the first five scorers was Canada's Gary Dineen, who missed seeing action in the final game of the series against Czechoslovakia. Dineen had five points and a pair of goals. The top Czech scorer was Jaroslav Holik with four points.

Among the line combinations, far and away the best trio was Alexandrov, Almetov and Konstantin Loktev of the Russians. In four games, this threesome had seven goals and 13 points.

Of the goalies in action more than once, Czechoslovakia's Vladimir Nadrchal had the lowest goals-allowed average with but two per game. Canada's Ken Broderick was the busiest with 106 saves in four games.

Salida, Leadville Ruled Favorites in PPL Opener

Salida's defending state champions, far down the ladder, and undefeated Leadville take the favorites' roles as the Pikes Peak League moves into its single-round action Friday.

The PPL format is changed for this year, due to state-wide realignment. Only the tournament champion will advance to the state tournament. Thus the first round play will serve only to give an indication of how the teams will fare in the tourney.

Salida, following its usual line gfi losing pre-season games against top competition, wings into play against Buena Vista, one of four teams which is not under the .500 mark. The Spartans compiled a 1-5 pre-league mark, playing powers such as Alamosa and Pueblo Central. Salida beat Del Norte in its opening game.

Leadville, which finished last in the previous year's competition without a victory, has put together four victories without a loss in the current season. The Panthers are the only team to hit the 100-point mark, in a 100-53 win over Granby.

The Panthers have the best offensive scoring mark among the eight PPL entries with a 77.8 average, 20 points better than any other team.

The league compiled only a 20-26 record during pre-league play. But six of the games were between league members, in tournament or non-league outings. Manitou Springs and Florence ignited a close rivalry in the St. Mary's Tournament as the Mustangs pulled out a 53-51 victory. Then Fountain returned the favor, edging Manitou, 53-52 in overtime, in a single game. The two teams meet Friday for the rubber set.

Florence and Fowler each have wrapped up a pair of victories. The Huskies, sporting a current 4-1 record, have stopped Salida and Buena Vista. Fowler, with the best defensive average offsetting the league's lowest offensive mark, has taken out Crowley County twice.

UCLA Rules as Top College Team

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

UCLA's red-hot Bruins, the 1964 NCAA champions, have replaced Michigan as the nation's No. 1 college basketball team and figure to enjoy their status a bit longer than Indiana did.

The Hoosiers, who surged into second place on the poll, suffered their first setback of the season Monday night, losing their Big Ten opener to Illinois 86-81. UCLA doesn't play until Friday so the Bruins are safe until then.

The defending champions, upset in their season opener by the same Illini which scalped Indiana, knocked off Arizona, Minnesota and Utah last week to extend their winning streak to nine straight.

UCLA received 26 first place votes from the panel of 41 experts and advanced from fourth place to the top with a total of 379 points. Indiana, until Monday one of the two remaining major undefeated teams, attracted 12 first place votes and piled up 315 points sweeping past Michigan.

The Wolverines, upset by St. John's of New York in the finals of the Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden, dropped to third and did not receive a single first place vote.

Other first place votes went to St. Joseph's, which got one, and Providence, which received two. St. Joseph's winner of the Quaker City Tournament but upset by Providence later in the week, climbed from 10th to fourth. The Philadelphia five, owner of a 10-1 record, trailed Michigan in points, 177 to 229.

Providence jumped into ninth place on the strength of a 65-61 triumph over St. Joseph's boosting its record to 8-0. The Friars made it nine straight with a 72-65 victory over Fairfield Monday. Providence got 111 points, nine more than 10th place Davidson.

Wichita, which bowed to St. Joseph's in the finals of the Quaker City Tournament in Philadelphia, slipped from second to fifth, edging out sixth-place Duke, 162 points to 148. Duke, eighth a week ago, raised its record to 7-1 with victories over Ohio State and Wake Forest.

St. John's, ousted from the top ten a week ago, sprang back into seventh place with 140 points.

Aces, Monarchs In YAL Wins

The lightweight Aces topped the Monarchs, 3-1, and the heavyweight Chiefs whipped the Gladiators, 13-0, Monday night in Young America Hockey League play at the Broadmoor World Arena.

Tigers Host Colorado State Bears In City Auditorium Tonight

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College's basketball team jumps into the 1965 portion of its schedule tonight at the City Auditorium with hopes that it will prove more productive than was the 1964 segment.

Plans for any immediate reversal of form may be overly-ambitious, however, for the Tigers opponent this evening is Colorado State College of Greeley, a team that is already responsible for CC's worst defeat of the season. Tipoff time tonight is scheduled for 8.

According to the form sheet, the Tigers' prospects for recording their second triumph of the campaign are rather bleak. CSC annihilated the Colorado Springs team by 54 points, 111-57, in early December at its Greeley base.

Since that time events may have served to shrink the breach between the two clubs. CSC lost three squad members due to scholastic ineligibility and in the past few weeks the Bears' rather prolific scoring pace has braked just a bit. On a recent trip to the West Coast CSC dropped three of four starts, losing to Pomona College, Los Angeles State, and Pepperdine while defeating Whittier College. Overall the Greeley team stands at 5-3.

CC's record is decidedly less impressive. The Tigers snapped a 10 game losing streak early in December with a 69-58 victory over St. Mary's of the Plains but since have launched another string of losses which has now extended to six. The local school lost five consecutive starts in a pair of tournaments over the holidays and is now 1-8 for the campaign.

Coach Red Eastlack's starting lineup will include only one senior tonight. Dave Herrington, the leading scorer with an 11.4 average, will pair at guards with sophomore Steve Schilder. Another soph, 6-5 Gary Bouton, will open at center with juniors Phil LeCuyer (6-3) and Pete Susemihl (6-1) as forwards. Susemihl had his finest night of the campaign against Grinnell College in the third place game of the recent tournament hosted by CC, hitting 15 points and turning in excellent work on the backboards.

As usual the Tigers will give away considerable height to the visitors. Biggest of the Bears is 6-6 center Ed Kippes but forwards Ed Brisco and Chuck DeMorst are both 6-4 and guard Jim Massick 6-3. Joe Folds, the other guard, is just 5-10 but he is the team's leading scorer with a 16.1 average. Kippes is scoring at a 15.3 clip and DeMorst at 12.5.

Tonight's game will be the final for the Tigers for two weeks. They break until Jan. 19 when they will host longtime rival Colorado Mines in the first of two games between those clubs this winter.

TIGER VETERAN—Pete Susemihl, veteran Colorado College forward from Grand Junction, will be in the lineup tonight when the Tigers host Colorado State College at the City Auditorium. Susemihl hit 15 points in the Tigers' last start against Grinell College and was the top rebounder in his best performance of the season. CC will be seeing its second win against eight loses against the powerful Bears.

BOWLING

PBA Tourney

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado Springs keglers will have an apportunity to see the nation's top professional bowlers in action when the Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) tournament moves into Classic Lanes, Feb. 23-27.

The PBA tourney in Colorado was formerly held in Denver for the last two years but promoter Ralph Archer selected Colorado Springs for the site of this year's tournament.

Approximately 90 national professional bowlers, along with 10 state amateur keglers will compete for $25,000 in prize money in the five-day tourney at Classic Lanes.

Archer selected Colorado Springs for this year's tournament because he felt the area would give better community support than elsewhere.

Regardless of the reasons, the tournament will be held here and without doubt this is the biggest event in the history of Colorado Springs bowling.

The finals of the tournament on Feb. 27 will be aired over nation-wide television over ABC-TV with sportscaster Chris Schenkel giving the play-by-play action.

WIBC NOTES—More than 2,600,000 women now bowl regularly in more than 114,000 sanctioned leagues according to the 1963-64 membership figures of the Woman's International Bowling Congress (WIBC).

Only 91 perfect games have been scored by women in the 48-year history of WIBC. And only two women have bowled more than one WIBC—sanctioned "300" game. They are Sylvia Wene of Philadelphia (she has three "300" games) and Norma Lake of Dallas, who has two perfect games.

Winless Gladiators Score First Goal of New Career

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

To further malign a well-worn phrase, the first 146 minutes and 30 seconds are the hardest.

After four games of fruitless searching, Widefield's hockey team found the goal at the Broadmoor World Arena and scored Monday night.

The fact that the Gladiators lost, 8-1, to Palmer was all but a foregone fact. That the Glads put the puck where they wanted was the surprise.

Widefield fielded its first high school team this winter and fans didn't expect miracles. But Byron Brian and Roger Sims teamed in the first period to give Glad (and a pun would not be out of place) fans their first chance at true rejoicing.

After Palmer went ahead, 1-0, Sims dropped a pass back to Brian stationed close to the opposite side of the cage. Goalie John Johanson, pulled out of position on the play, had no chance to get the puck on the far side.

The goal brought Widefield's cheering section to its collective feet and seemed to implant new impetus in the Glads' hearts.

Widefield began checking furiously, knocking Terrors off their skates and getting knocked down in turn. But Palmer's new-forged line of Ted Andrews, Greg Good and Greg Nelson was bent on deciding the outcome early and sacked six scores the first 12 minutes.

Nelson, wearing a goalie's mask to protect a broken nose, served up three goals as the converted defenseman pushed the Terrors to their third win of the year. Good, a center switched to wing, and starting his first game whipped in two goals and added three assists. Good now has ten points for the year, tying him for third place in the City Hockey League with Cheyenne's Jeff Thatcher.

Other goals were scored by Dave Foster on an assist from Stan Traxler, by Stan Johanson and by Traxler.

The second period turned into a head-knocking contest after Widefield goaltender Steve King had been decked three times in the first stanza. But both teams returned the third period for a higher brand of hockey.

Cheyenne, which stands alone and undefeated in first place, takes on Wasson, in second place, Wednesday night. The Indians probably will be without their top-scoring wings, Don and Doug Heyliger. Don has been hampered with an injured leg since before Christmas. Coach Bill MacDonald said Monday night he probably would suit up. Doug was reported injured in an automobile accident Sunday. MacDonald was uncertain how soon he would be able to return to action.

The twin wings share the league scoring lead with six goals and five assists.

Volkov Top Scorer In Tourney

Russians Leonid Volkov, closely followed by a pair of teammates from the Soviet hockey team which won the recent International Tournament at the Broadmoor World Arena, was the top scorer of the week-long ice extravaganza. Volkov wound up with five goals and six points, with Veniamin Alexandrov and linemate Alexander Almetov each getting three goals and five points in the four games played by the USSR.

The only player from another team breaking through the first five scorers was Canada's Gary Dineen, who missed seeing action in the final game of the series against Czechoslovakia. Dineen had five points and a pair of goals. The top Czech scorer was Jaroslav Holik with four points.

Among the line combinations, far and away the best trio was Alexandrov, Almetov and Konstantin Loktev of the Russians. In four games, this threesome had seven goals and 13 points.

Of the goalies in action more than once, Czechoslovakia's Vladimir Nadrchal had the lowest goals-allowed average with but two per game. Canada's Ken Broderick was the busiest with 106 saves in four games.

Salida, Leadville Ruled Favorites in PPL Opener

Salida's defending state champions, far down the ladder, and undefeated Leadville take the favorites' roles as the Pikes Peak League moves into its single-round action Friday.

The PPL format is changed for this year, due to state-wide realignment. Only the tournament champion will advance to the state tournament. Thus the first round play will serve only to give an indication of how the teams will fare in the tourney.

Salida, following its usual line gfi losing pre-season games against top competition, wings into play against Buena Vista, one of four teams which is not under the .500 mark. The Spartans compiled a 1-5 pre-league mark, playing powers such as Alamosa and Pueblo Central. Salida beat Del Norte in its opening game.

Leadville, which finished last in the previous year's competition without a victory, has put together four victories without a loss in the current season. The Panthers are the only team to hit the 100-point mark, in a 100-53 win over Granby.

The Panthers have the best offensive scoring mark among the eight PPL entries with a 77.8 average, 20 points better than any other team.

The league compiled only a 20-26 record during pre-league play. But six of the games were between league members, in tournament or non-league outings. Manitou Springs and Florence ignited a close rivalry in the St. Mary's Tournament as the Mustangs pulled out a 53-51 victory. Then Fountain returned the favor, edging Manitou, 53-52 in overtime, in a single game. The two teams meet Friday for the rubber set.

Florence and Fowler each have wrapped up a pair of victories. The Huskies, sporting a current 4-1 record, have stopped Salida and Buena Vista. Fowler, with the best defensive average offsetting the league's lowest offensive mark, has taken out Crowley County twice.

Fowler sports a classy 43.7 defensive average, a balance to its 49.1 scoring record.

UCLA Rules as Top College Team

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

UCLA's red-hot Bruins, the 1964 NCAA champions, have replaced Michigan as the nation's No. 1 college basketball team and figure to enjoy their status a bit longer than Indiana did.

The Hoosiers, who surged into second place on the poll, suffered their first setback of the season Monday night, losing their Big Ten opener to Illinois 86-81. UCLA doesn't play until Friday so the Bruins are safe until then.

The defending champions, upset in their season opener by the same Illini which scalped Indiana, knocked off Arizona, Minnesota and Utah last week to extend their winning streak to nine straight.

UCLA received 26 first place votes from the panel of 41 experts and advanced from fourth place to the top with a total of 379 points. Indiana, until Monday one of the two remaining major undefeated teams, attracted 12 first place votes and piled up 315 points sweeping past Michigan.

The Wolverines, upset by St. John's of New York in the finals of the Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden, dropped to third and did not receive a single first place vote.

Other first place votes went to St. Joseph's, which got one, and Providence, which received two. St. Joseph's winner of the Quaker City Tournament but upset by Providence later in the week, climbed from 10th to fourth. The Philadelphia five, owner of a 10-1 record, trailed Michigan in points, 177 to 229.

Providence jumped into ninth place on the strength of a 65-61 triumph over St. Joseph's boosting its record to 8-0. The Friars made it nine straight with a 72-65 victory over Fairfield Monday. Providence got 111 points, nine more than 10th place Davidson.

Wichita, which bowed to St. Joseph's in the finals of the Quaker City Tournament in Philadelphia, slipped from second to fifth, edging out sixth-place Duke, 162 points to 148. Duke, eighth a week ago, raised its record to 7-1 with victories over Ohio State and Wake Forest.

St. John's, ousted from the top ten a week ago, sprang back into seventh place with 140 points.

Other teams receiving points — Tennessee, Oregon State, Villanova, Kansas State, Cincinnati, (Miami (Fla.), Oklahoma City and Florida.

Aces, Monarchs In YAL Wins

The lightweight Aces topped the Monarchs, 3-1, and the heavyweight Chiefs whipped the Gladiators, 13-0, Monday night in Young America Hockey League play at the Broadmoor World Arena.

Halleck's Bell Started Tolling Two Years Ago

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Charlie Halleck, the ousted leader of House Republicans, the bell started tolling two years ago.

That was the day militant younger Republicans staged a sudden coup and put Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan in as chairman of the Republican Conference.

Ford deposed an old-line Halleck lieutenant, Rep. Charles B. Hoeven of Iowa, in the job of presiding over partywide caucuses.

"This is just the first step," said Hoeven at the time. "The next to go will be Halleck."

What Hoeven foresaw was that the discontent that brought Ford, 51, to the fore was actually aimed at a clean sweep of the old House GOP leadership. Halleck, 64, saw it, too. He tried to head off the expected blow.

Ironically, Halleck's efforts to placate the younger members cost him support among the old-liners and the first direct move against his leadership actually came from the latter source.

A group of 50 to 70 conservatives, angered at Halleck's commitment to President John F. Kennedy to help put the civil rights bill through the House, held two meetings last spring that resulted in an ultimatum to the harried leader: quit playing around with the moderates or face a leadership challenge.

Halleck finished the year with both wings of the party unhappy with him and it took only the election debacle that cost the Republicans 38 House seats to touch off his downfall.

Within a week of the election Reps. Charles E. Goodell of New York and Robert P. Griffin of Michigan has started sounding out members on their attitude toward a leadership change.

Griffin, 41, and Goodell, 38, sparked the earlier uprising that had moved Ford into Hoeven's spot. Their aim then was the same as now: to give the younger members more voice in setting GOP policy in the House, and to work out constructive alternatives to Democratic programs.

To get Ford to run the first time they had to line up solid, broad-based support and show him he had a chance. They did the same thing this time, working for weeks to get firm commitments before they finally got Ford's agreement to run.

Halleck had several handicaps against him. He was no match in physical appearance for the handsome, vigorous Ford. There was a large residue of resentment against him among the old-timers who supported Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts when Halleck toppled him six years ago. His attempt to deal with both wings of his party had robbed him of any solid base of support.

Actually, the 73-67 vote by which Ford defeated Halleck Monday indicates a sharper division than there was. A lot of members voted for Halleck, not because they wanted him to remain as leader, but because they thought ousting him now would make it look like he was to blame for the election defeat.

They would have preferred to oust him a little later.

T. S. Eliot, Famous Poet, Dies at Age 76

Eliot, 76, a native of the United States and a British subject since 1927, died at his home in London Monday night. The cause of death was not announced.

A voice of the "Lost Generation" between the world wars, Eliot revolutionized poetry and also was a noted critic and successful playwright. He won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1948.

The same year he was awarded the Order of Merit, one of Britain's highest honors. Last year he received the U.S. Medal of Freedom, highest civil honor the president can bestow.

Eliot's best known poem was "The Waste Land," published in 1922. Other major poems included "The Love Song of J. Albert Prufrock" (1917), "The Hollow Men" (1925), "Ask Wednesday" (1930) and "The Cocktail Party," in 1950.

"The Waste Land" depicted an age of uncertainty, despair, squalor and decay through which a wanderer struggled in the hope of finding an abiding faith but met only disillusionment.

Eliot later was converted to Anglo-Catholicism and came to believe there was a way out of the waste land. In "Murder in the Cathedral" and "The Cocktail Party" he developed the thesis that Western man must choose between a pagan society and a way of life guided by Christian principles.

The son of a St. Louis brick manufacturer, Eliot was educated at Harvard and the Sorbonne in Paris. After 1914 he made his home in London. He taught for a time at a boys' school, worked for seven years in a bank, and then settled down at Faber & Faber, one of Britain's leading publishing houses, as a full-time director. He did his writing after hours.

In 1915, a year after his arrival in England, he married Vivienne Haight, a dancer and daughter of a British painter. She died in 1947. They had no children.

Eliot suffered a heart attack aboard the liner Queen Mary in June 1956. The following January, when he was 68, he married his 30-year-old secretary, Valerie Fletcher. She survives him.

A tall, slightly stooped man with a shy smile, Eliot was once described by an acquaintance as "an American who is more English than the English." He said he became a British subject because he had really settled down in Britain and didn't want to be a permanent visitor.

"If an Englishman goes to live in America and wants to remain there," he said, "It's expected of him that he become an American citizen. I just reversed the pattern."

Bankrupt Estates Suit Dismissed Here Monday

A suit involving the bankrupt estates of George Apostolas and Helen Yannias was dismissed in Distdict Court Monday by Judge William M. Calvert.

It had been filed by William Lamont Carew, as trustee in bankruptcy for Apostolas' estate, and Robert M. McKechnie, trustee for the Yannias estate.

The plaintiffs alleged that Apostolas and Mrs. Yannias inherited vested interests in the Apostolas Building on Tejon St. and Colorado Ave. and the family residence at 1034 E. Platte Ave.

It was further alleged that the right, title and interest in the real estate belonged to them to be sold and pay their creditors.

Apostolas' petition in bankruptcy showed he owned more than $160,000 and Mrs. Yannias had debts in excess of $99,000.

In ordering the complaint to be dismissed Judge Calvert ruled that neither Apostolas or Mrs. Yannias had an interest in the real estate at the time their bankruptcy petitions were filed.

Mrs. Marjorie Swift Died in Denver

Mrs. Marjoei P. Swift, wife of Harold D. Swift, 517 Iris St., Security, died Sunday in Denver. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1959.

Mrs. Swift was born in Electra, Tex., April 23, 1920. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, David, who is in the Air Force and Richard, Colorado Springs; a daughter, Pamela, Colorado Springs; three sisters, Dorothy Johnson, Riverside, Calif.; Roberta Baker, Tucson, Ariz., and Aleen Hawkins, Taft, Calif.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Law Drawing Room. Bishop Nathan K. Done will officiate. Burial will be in the Ft. Logan National Cemtery.

Plea Changed To Guilty In Larceny Case

Michael Dean Brenneman, 21, 601 Manitou Ave., changed his plea this morning to guilty of grand larceny and District Judge David W. Enoch set Jan. 29 for pre-sentence investigaion.

Another defendant, Larry Keith Wolfe also changed his plea to guilty after Deputy District Attorney Dick Webster reduced the charge from larceny of a motor vehicle to joyriding.

Wolfe, 20, Ft. Carson, pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity Aug. 20. He managed to escape from District Court but was captured approximately two weeks later.

A subsequent examination by Dr. Richard Conde found him to be legally sane. He is charged with taking a $900 car belonging to George A. Hoffman, Aug. 2.

Sentencing was set for Jan. 29.

Jury Selection Starts In Forgery Case

Jury selection for the trial of William E. Magno, charged with forgery, started in District Court this morning with Judge G. Russell Miller on the bench.

Magno, 23, of Denver, is alleged to have forged a $100 Travelers Express Co. Inc. money order May 9 with intent to defraud Empire Super Markets.

Barn Windows Broken, Wagon Seats Taken

W. M. Metzler, 625 W. Cheyenne Rd., reported to the sheriff's department Monday that several antique wagon seats and horse collars has been stolen from a barn he has adjoining Palmer Park and Templeton Gap Road.

He also said a number of win- smashed.

Gas Siphoners Leave Clue Near Truck

Between 30 and 35 gallons of gas were siphoned out of a truck sometime during the long New Year's weekend, police reported. The gas was valued at $9, according to police.

Melvin G. Goin, 2616 S. Boulevard, told police the truck was parked in the lot of the Boddington Lumber Co., 628 N. Vermijo St., at 4 p.m. Dec. 31. Goin said the gas tank on the truck, which hold a total of 77 gallons, were full when he parked the truck.

When he came to work Monday, both tanks were approximately half full, and police discovered a red plastic top on the ground beside the truck which they believed was a cover for a plastic gas can.

Steak House Opens in Manitou Springs

G&K Steak House was recently opened in Manitou Springs at 801 Manitou Avenue, across from the city clock.

According to the new owners, Gene and Doreen Grommet, the initials G&K serve as the foundation for their business. They stand for "good and kind." Say the Grommets, "We like people. We wouldn't be in this business if we didn't."

Specializing in broiled and fried steaks, G&K serves only top quality meats cooked to order. Steak may be ordered by both cut and weight, from eight to 14 ounces and priced accordingly. Besides its specialty, G&K serves from a complete menu and features a luncheon special daily.

After just a few weeks of business, G&K has already become a congregating place for Manitou businessmen. In fact, a large table has been set aside for groups of businessmen, and is oftentimes used for luncheon gatherings of the Manitou City Council.

Before opening for business, the Grommets remodelled the restaurant from top to bottom. This included painting, a new floor, ceiling and roof.

Gene Grommet, who serves as both owner and head cook in the new restaurant, has previously managed a guest ranch in Florissant for a year and served as head cook at a top night club in E. St. Louis, Ill. He served as a member of the U.S. Army for seven and a half years.

The G&K Steak House has a seating capacity of 56 and serves meals from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., six days a week. It is closed on Tuesdays.

Grommet plans to hold the Grand Opening of his new eatery sometime in January, complete with prizes for a few lucky customers.

The more quality - conscious customers may choose the exact steak they wish to order. Grommet says that at G&K his main aim is to "please the customer. We want to provide good food and fast service at reasonable prices."

The Grommets live at 911 Prospect Ave. in Manitou. At the start of the new year Gene was installed as a member of the Manitou Springs Kiwanis Club, making him the first member in the nation in Kiwanis International's Golden Anniversary year.

8,000 Welfare Workers Strike In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) —Welfare services for a half-million needy in the nation's largest city were put on an emergency-only basis today because of the continuing strike of thousands of welfare workers in defiance of a court order and moves to dismiss them.

The city and leaders of two unions representing 11,600 social workers negotiated for 14 hours until early today without any apparent success in resolving the dispute over pay and working conditions.

State Supreme Court Justice Irvin H. Saypol kept his court in session until almost 1:30 a.m. in hopes there would be progress affecting his pending decision on whether to issue an injunction prohibiting the strike.

When no progress was forthcoming, he announced he would defer the decision until late today. A previously issued restraining order remained in effect but the white collar strikers ignored it.

After about 8,000 social workers walked out Monday, the Welfare Department moved to "technically fire" them under provisions of a state law prohibiting strikes by public employes. An act of sabotage at a welfare center in the Bronx also heightened the tension.

DOING THE "TURNPIKE TWIST"—The "Turnpike Twist" is a new dance that all new model Plymouths must master before their coming-out parties. Test engineers at the Chrysler Corporation Proving Grounds say that the road surface has precisely designed bumps and grinds which introduce un-ladylike vibrations into the body of any car unless its suspension system has the mechanical muscles to absorb them. The road is so constructed that either left or right side of the car may be tested independently for smoothness.

Man Fined for Breach of Peace

Charles Standifer, 25, Ft. Carson, was found guilty Monday in Municipal Court on a charge of breach of the peace, lodged against him by Milton Nash, owner of Milts Bar.

Judge Allan Asher imposed a fine of $25 against Standifer.

Charles Williams, 23, also of Carson, was found guilty of riotous conduct and injury to private property. He was fined $25 and given a 15-day jail sentence.

A third Carson soldier, James King, 24, was found guilty of drunkenness, but his $50 fine was suspended by the judge.

In a companion case, Judge Asher found Ronald Tucker, 20, also of Carson, not guilty of riotous conduct and Lody Archuletta, 32, 419 E. Colorado Ave., guilty, imposing a $50 fine.

General Pump Co. Notes 10th Birthday

"Celebrating 10 wonderful years in a wonderful community" is the way Harold F. Sleichter, manager of General Pump Co., expressed his feelings about the firm's 10th birthday now being celebrated with special events and attractive merchandise offers to customers during the month of January.

General Pump Co. was established in Colorado Springs in 1955 by William F. Hammerling with Sleichter as manager. The firm specializes in water systems, irrigation pumps, plumbing supplies, pipe and related items of all kinds.

In addition to installing and servicing their own brands of pumps and water systems, General Pump Co. services all makes of equipment for city, farm and ranch use.

Ray Evans, water systems specialist, has been with General Pump Company's service department since its beginning. During the past year, Orville Lutes, also an expert with many years of experience with water systems, joined the company's service department.

Expanded facilities including new type winch trucks have recently been put into operation to make General Pump Company's service department one of the most complete in the region.

Furr's to Enter Checker of the Year Candidate

Furr's Super Markets wil have a candidate for the 1965 crown of Checker of the Year in the 10th annual competition sponsored by Super Market Institute and the National Cash Register Company, Robert Boverie, director of the company's campaign, has announced. The firm operated 71 stores in Texas, New Mexico and Colorado.

More than 30,000 checkers employed in some 3,000 super markets throughout the United States and Canada are expected to take part in the Checker of the Year Awards event, based on customer courtesy, accuracy at the cash register, and care in handling and bagging of food purchases.

Ten regional winners will be brought to the 28th Annual Convention of Super Market Institute in Chicago May 9-12 for final performance tests.

The grand prize winner will receive a gold "Tilly" statuette, a mink store or vicuna coat, a two-week vacation in Hawaii as a guest of the Dole Corporation and other prizes. Two runners-up will win vacations in the Hollywood Beach Hotel, Hollywood, Florida.

Statistics Bare Facts on Grocery Cost

The age-old argument about whether Mrs. Homemaker is spending too much of Mr. Breadwinner's hard - earned cash on groceries can now be laid to rest. Statistics have come to the rescue.

According to the January issue of Finance Facts, a monthly newsletter on consumer financial behavior published by the National Consumer Finance Association, the average weekly cost of food, per person, ranges between $6.00 for a low cost plan to $9.10 for a liberal plan. Food purchased under a moderate-cost plan will average $7.90 per person per week.

Of the three food plans, devised by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the moderate cost plan is the one most likely to be used by the average American family. The low cost plan provides for an acceptable diet and is the plan most often used by social welfare and public health agencies in calculating allotments for family food budgets.

The liberal plan provides the greatest food varieties and for a greater amount of meats, fruits and vegetables.

However, Finance Facts points out that the ages of members of a family will make a difference in the food budget. For example, the average cost of food for a family of two in the 20-35 age bracket will vary from a low of $14.60 a week to a liberal expenditure of $22.70 a week. If, on the other hand, the ages of the two people in the family are in the 55-75 age group, the weekly cost of food will range from a low of $12.20 to a liberal expenditure of $18.70.

Families of four with preschool children may spend $28.40 each week under a moderate food plan while a family of four with school-aged children may spend $33.00 under the same food plan.

With these government statistics, all family food budget arguments should be easily settled.

Or will they?

Kaman Corp. Gets Unidrone U. S. Contract

Kaman Electronic Systems Division, Bloomfield, Conn., announced that it had received a contract from the U. S. Army Tank Automotive Center to modify the Kaman Unidrone for installation in an M-48 Army tank.

This is the fourth different vehicle in which Kaman's universally applicable drone remote control system has been installed. Previous installations have been made in three different helicopter models.

There has always been considerable potential for drones, such as the surveillance drone systems which have been in the headlines in recent reconnaissance missions in Southeast Asia.

The Kaman Unidrone, which is inexpensive, reliable, and readily available, is the first drone system designed for universal installation in any type of moving vehicle, no matter what its field or dimension of movement — land, sea, or air. Size of vehicles which have been successfully controlled by the Unidrone varies from a small two-place helicopter to a massive U. S. Army tank.

Kaman Electronic Systems Division is undertaking a market survey for other applications for the Unidrone, particularly to uncover experimental or developmental programs in which there exists an urgent one-time requirement for a drone system where cost is a factor and it is impossible to justify the time and expense of a specially designed remote control system.

The possible application of the Unidrone system to tactical surveillance missions is also under investigation.

T. S. Eliot, Famous Poet, Dies at Age 76

Eliot, 76, a native of the United States and a British subject since 1927, died at his home in London Monday night. The cause of death was not announced.

A voice of the "Lost Generation" between the world wars, Eliot revolutionized poetry and also was a noted critic and successful playwright. He won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1948.

The same year he was awarded the Order of Merit, one of Britain's highest honors. Last year he received the U.S. Medal of Freedom, highest civil honor the president can bestow.

Eliot's best known poem was "The Waste Land," published in 1922. Other major poems included "The Love Song of J. Albert Prufrock" (1917), "The Hollow Men" (1925), "Ask Wednesday" (1930) and "The Cocktail Party," in 1950.

"The Waste Land" depicted an age of uncertainty, despair, squalor and decay through which a wanderer struggled in the hope of finding an abiding faith but met only disillusionment.

Eliot later was converted to Anglo-Catholicism and came to believe there was a way out of the waste land. In "Murder in the Cathedral" and "The Cocktail Party" he developed the thesis that Western man must choose between a pagan society and a way of life guided by Christian principles.

The son of a St. Louis brick manufacturer, Eliot was educated at Harvard and the Sorbonne in Paris. After 1914 he made his home in London. He taught for a time at a boys' school, worked for seven years in a bank, and then settled down at Faber & Faber, one of Britain's leading publishing houses, as a full-time director. He did his writing after hours.

In 1915, a year after his arrival in England, he married Vivienne Haight, a dancer and daughter of a British painter. She died in 1947. They had no children.

Eliot suffered a heart attack aboard the liner Queen Mary in June 1956. The following January, when he was 68, he married his 30-year-old secretary, Valerie Fletcher. She survives him.

A tall, slightly stooped man with a shy smile, Eliot was once described by an acquaintance as "an American who is more English than the English." He said he became a British subject because he had really settled down in Britain and didn't want to be a permanent visitor.

"If an Englishman goes to live in America and wants to remain there," he said, "It's expected of him that he become an American citizen. I just reversed the pattern."

Bankrupt Estates Suit Dismissed Here Monday

A suit involving the bankrupt estates of George Apostolas and Helen Yannias was dismissed in Distdict Court Monday by Judge William M. Calvert.

It had been filed by William Lamont Carew, as trustee in bankruptcy for Apostolas' estate, and Robert M. McKechnie, trustee for the Yannias estate.

The plaintiffs alleged that Apostolas and Mrs. Yannias inherited vested interests in the Apostolas Building on Tejon St. and Colorado Ave. and the family residence at 1034 E. Platte Ave.

It was further alleged that the right, title and interest in the real estate belonged to them to be sold and pay their creditors.

Apostolas' petition in bankruptcy showed he owned more than $160,000 and Mrs. Yannias had debts in excess of $99,000.

In ordering the complaint to be dismissed Judge Calvert ruled that neither Apostolas or Mrs. Yannias had an interest in the real estate at the time their bankruptcy petitions were filed.

Mrs. Marjorie Swift Died in Denver

Mrs. Marjoei P. Swift, wife of Harold D. Swift, 517 Iris St., Security, died Sunday in Denver. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1959.

Mrs. Swift was born in Electra, Tex., April 23, 1920. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, David, who is in the Air Force and Richard, Colorado Springs; a daughter, Pamela, Colorado Springs; three sisters, Dorothy Johnson, Riverside, Calif.; Roberta Baker, Tucson, Ariz., and Aleen Hawkins, Taft, Calif.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Law Drawing Room. Bishop Nathan K. Done will officiate. Burial will be in the Ft. Logan National Cemtery.

Plea Changed To Guilty In Larceny Case

Michael Dean Brenneman, 21, 601 Manitou Ave., changed his plea this morning to guilty of grand larceny and District Judge David W. Enoch set Jan. 29 for pre-sentence investigaion.

Another defendant, Larry Keith Wolfe also changed his plea to guilty after Deputy District Attorney Dick Webster reduced the charge from larceny of a motor vehicle to joyriding.

Wolfe, 20, Ft. Carson, pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity Aug. 20. He managed to escape from District Court but was captured approximately two weeks later.

A subsequent examination by Dr. Richard Conde found him to be legally sane. He is charged with taking a $900 car belonging to George A. Hoffman, Aug. 2.

Sentencing was set for Jan. 29.

Jury Selection Starts In Forgery Case

Jury selection for the trial of William E. Magno, charged with forgery, started in District Court this morning with Judge G. Russell Miller on the bench.

Magno, 23, of Denver, is alleged to have forged a $100 Travelers Express Co. Inc. money order May 9 with intent to defraud Empire Super Markets.

Barn Windows Broken, Wagon Seats Taken

W. M. Metzler, 625 W. Cheyenne Rd., reported to the sheriff's department Monday that several antique wagon seats and horse collars has been stolen from a barn he has adjoining Palmer Park and Templeton Gap Road.

He also said a number of winsmashed.

Gas Siphoners Leave Clue Near Truck

Between 30 and 35 gallons of gas were siphoned out of a truck sometime during the long New Year's weekend, police reported. The gas was valued at $9, according to police.

Melvin G. Goin, 2616 S. Boulevard, told police the truck was parked in the lot of the Boddington Lumber Co., 628 N. Vermijo St., at 4 p.m. Dec. 31. Goin said the gas tank on the truck, which hold a total of 77 gallons, were full when he parked the truck.

When he came to work Monday, both tanks were approximately half full, and police discovered a red plastic top on the ground beside the truck which they believed was a cover for a plastic gas can.

Steak House Opens in Manitou Springs

G&K Steak House was recently opened in Manitou Springs at 801 Manitou Avenue, across from the city clock.

According to the new owners, Gene and Doreen Grommet, the initials G&K serve as the foundation for their business. They stand for "good and kind." Say the Grommets, "We like people. We wouldn't be in this business if we didn't."

Specializing in broiled and fried steaks, G&K serves only top quality meats cooked to order. Steak may be ordered by both cut and weight, from eight to 14 ounces and priced accordingly. Besides its specialty, G&K serves from a complete menu and features a luncheon special daily.

After just a few weeks of business, G&K has already become a congregating place for Manitou businessmen. In fact, a large table has been set aside for groups of businessmen, and is oftentimes used for luncheon gatherings of the Manitou City Council.

Gene Grommet, who serves as both owner and head cook in the new restaurant, has previously managed a guest ranch in Florissant for a year and served as head cook at a top night club in E. St. Louis, Ill. He served as a member of the U.S. Army for seven and a half years.

The G&K Steak House has a seating capacity of 56 and serves meals from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., six days a week. It is closed on Tuesdays.

Grommet plans to hold the Grand Opening of his new eatery sometime in January, complete with prizes for a few lucky customers.

The more quality - conscious customers may choose the exact steak they wish to order. Grommet says that at G&K his main aim is to "please the customer. We want to provide good food and fast service at reasonable prices."

The Grommets live at 911 Prospect Ave. in Manitou. At the start of the new year Gene was installed as a member of the Manitou Springs Kiwanis Club, making him the first member in the nation in Kiwanis International's Golden Anniversary year.

8,000 Welfare Workers Strike In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) —Welfare services for a half-million needy in the nation's largest city were put on an emergency-only basis today because of the continuing strike of thousands of welfare workers in defiance of a court order and moves to dismiss them.

The city and leaders of two unions representing 11,600 social workers negotiated for 14 hours until early today without any apparent success in resolving the dispute over pay and working conditions.

State Supreme Court Justice Irvin H. Saypol kept his court in session until almost 1:30 a.m. in hopes there would be progress affecting his pending decision on whether to issue an injunction prohibiting the strike.

When no progress was forthcoming, he announced he would defer the decision until late today. A previously issued restraining order remained in effect but the white collar strikers ignored it.

After about 8,000 social workers walked out Monday, the Welfare Department moved to "technically fire" them under provisions of a state law prohibiting strikes by public employes. An act of sabotage at a welfare center in the Bronx also heightened the tension.

DOING THE "TURNPIKE TWIST"—The "Turnpike Twist" is a new dance that all new model Plymouths must master before their coming-out parties. Test engineers at the Chrysler Corporation Proving Grounds say that the road surface has precisely designed bumps and grinds which introduce un-ladylike vibrations into the body of any car unless its suspension system has the mechanical muscles to absorb them. The road is so constructed that either left or right side of the car may be tested independently for smoothness.

Man Fined for Breach of Peace

Charles Standifer, 25, Ft. Carson, was found guilty Monday in Municipal Court on a charge of breach of the peace, lodged against him by Milton Nash, owner of Milts Bar.

Judge Allan Asher imposed a fine of $25 against Standifer.

Charles Williams, 23, also of Carson, was found guilty of riotous conduct and injury to private property. He was fined $25 and given a 15-day jail sentence.

A third Carson soldier, James King, 24, was found guilty of drunkenness, but his $50 fine was suspended by the judge.

In a companion case, Judge Asher found Ronald Tucker, 20, also of Carson, not guilty of riotous conduct and Lody Archuletta, 32, 419 E. Colorado Ave., guilty, imposing a $50 fine.

General Pump Co. Notes 10th Birthday

"Celebrating 10 wonderful years in a wonderful community" is the way Harold F. Sleichter, manager of General Pump Co., expressed his feelings about the firm's 10th birthday now being celebrated with special events and attractive merchandise offers to customers during the month of January.

General Pump Co. was established in Colorado Springs in 1955 by William F. Hammerling with Sleichter as manager. The firm specializes in water systems, irrigation pumps, plumbing supplies, pipe and related items of all kinds.

In addition to installing and servicing their own brands of pumps and water systems, General Pump Co. services all makes of equipment for city, farm and ranch use.

Ray Evans, water systems specialist, has been with General Pump Company's service department since its beginning. During the past year, Orville Lutes, also an expert with many years of experience with water systems, joined the company's service department.

Expanded facilities including new type winch trucks have recently been put into operation to make General Pump Company's service department one of the most complete in the region.

Furr's to Enter Checker of the Year Candidate

Furr's Super Markets will have a candidate for the 1965 crown of Checker of the Year in the 10th annual competition sponsored by Super Market Institute and the National Cash Register Company, Robert Boverie, director of the company's campaign, has announced. The firm operated 71 stores in Texas, New Mexico and Colorado.

More than 30,000 checkers employed in some 3,000 super markets throughout the United States and Canada are expected to take part in the Checker of the Year Awards event, based on customer courtesy, accuracy at the cash register, and care in handling and bagging of food purchases.

Ten regional winners will be brought to the 28th Annual Convention of Super Market Institute in Chicago May 9-12 for final performance tests.

The grand prize winner will receive a gold "Tilly" statuette, a mink store or vicuna coat, a two-week vacation in Hawaii as a guest of the Dole Corporation and other prizes. Two runners-up will win vacations in the Hollywood Beach Hotel, Hollywood, Florida.

Statistics Bare Facts on Grocery Cost

The age-old argument about whether Mrs. Homemaker is spending too much of Mr. Breadwinner's hard - earned cash on groceries can now be laid to rest. Statistics have come to the rescue.

According to the January issue of Finance Facts, a monthly newsletter on consumer financial behavior published by the National Consumer Finance Association, the average weekly cost of food, per person, ranges between $6.00 for a low cost plan to $9.10 for a liberal plan. Food purchased under a moderate-cost plan will average $7.90 per person per week.

Of the three food plans, devised by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the moderate cost plan is the one most likely to be used by the average American family. The low cost plan provides for an acceptable diet and is the plan most often used by social welfare and public health agencies in calculating allotments for family food budgets.

The liberal plan provides the greatest food varieties and for a greater amount of meats, fruits and vegetables.

However, Finance Facts points out that the ages of members of a family will make a difference in the food budget. For example, the average cost of food for a family of two in the 20-35 age bracket will vary from a low of $14.60 a week to a liberal expenditure of $22.70 a week. If, on the other hand, the ages of the two people in the family are in the 55-75 age group, the weekly cost of food will range from a low of $12.20 to a liberal expenditure of $18.70.

Families of four with preschool children may spend $28.40 each week under a moderate food plan while a family of four with school-aged children may spend $33.00 under the same food plan.

With these government statistics, all family food budget arguments should be easily settled.

Or will they?

Kaman Corp. Gets Unidrone U. S. Contract

Kaman Electronic Systems Division, Bloomfield, Conn., announced that it had received a contract from the U. S. Army Tank Automotive Center to modify the Kaman Unidrone for installation in an M-48 Army tank.

This is the fourth different vehicle in which Kaman's universally applicable drone remote control system has been installed. Previous installations have been made in three different helicopter models.

There has always been considerable potential for drones, such as the surveillance drone systems which have been in the headlines in recent reconnaissance missions in Southeast Asia.

The Kaman Unidrone, which is inexpensive, reliable, and readily available, is the first drone system designed for universal installation in any type of moving vehicle, no matter what its field or dimension of movement — land, sea, or air. Size of vehicles which have been successfully controlled by the Unidrone varies from a small two-place helicopter to a massive U. S. Army tank.

Kaman Electronic Systems Division is undertaking a market survey for other applications for the Unidrone, particularly to uncover experimental or developmental programs in which there exists an urgent one-time requirement for a drone system where cost is a factor and it is impossible to justify the time and expense of a specially designed remote control system.

The possible application of the Unidrone system to tactical surveillance missions is also under investigation.

Students Face Trial Over Campus Sit-in

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The first groups of protesting University of California students — temporarily placated in their controversy over student political freedom — faced trial today on charges stemming from a sit-in staged to gain more on-campus freedom.

Campus leaders said Monday they were "cautiously optimistic" about settlement of the battle which has spanned four restless months, resulted in arrests of 784 demonstrators and now is highlighted by the naming of a new chancellor for the Berkeley campus.

Most of those arrested Dec. 3 in a Free Speech Movement sit-in at Sproul Hall were due in Berkeley municipal court today to enter pleas on charges of resisting arrest, refusing to disperse and disturbing the peace.

Of those charged 590 were Berkely campus students, 50 teaching assistants and 130 non-students. The remaining were juveniles, not charged as adults.

The court was to process the defendants in groups of 50. It is expected to take two or three days for the pleas to be entered.

Students say the basic issue is over their demand for a "free University of California" run by a faculty student government.

This cause — outlined in a 10-page pamphlet distributed Monday at a noon rally — was echoed later in the day at Stanford University by the Stanford Graduate Coordinating Committee of about 100 members.

The committee issued a statement declaring that "the faculty and students, mutually involved in a community of scholarship, comprise the essential and defining life of the university."

Administrators, including presidents and trustees, play "a necessary but secondary role," the Stanford committee said.

The pamphlet said the "free University of California" would consist of seminars on campus at which outside speakers would discuss "the educational revolution and many other topics which are not considered in the university."

Mario Savio, 22, the philosophy student who led the free speech movement demonstrations, had often referred to the university as "the machine" and demanded that control over students should be in student-faculty hands.

The faculty's Academic Senate on Dec. 8 overwhelmingly approved a plan giving students more political freedom and proposing that the faculty handle disciplinary matters.

More Voting Protection To Be Asked

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is reported planning to ask Congress for additional legislation to protect Negro voting rights, contrary to previous expectations that no new civil rights measures would be requested.

A hint of this cropped up in Johnson's State of the Union address to a joint session of Congress Monday night when he spoke of enlarged opportunities for Negroes "through enforcement of the civil rights law and elimination of barriers to the and opportunity to vote."

At another point he said, "I propose we eliminate every remaining obstacle to the right and opportunity to vote.'

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., was asked by a reporter if he interpreted this to mean that Johnson has plans to submit a new voting rights bill to Congerss. "I know he has," Russell replied.

When pressed for details of what the President will propose, Russell declined to say. "You'll have to ask him," he said.

Russell, long a close friend of Johnson, is the longtime leader of Southern senators who have battled against the passage of civil rights bills.

The comprehensive measure passed last year, after a 15-week Senate struggle, included a section designed to tighten up the procedures provided in the 1957 and 1960 Civil Rights Acts to prevent discriminatory denial of voting rights in federal elections.

It requires that, in the registration of voters, states apply uniform standards, ignore immaterial errors, conduct literacy tests in writing and furnish copies of the test to an applicant upon request.

In addition courts would be required to expedite the handling of voting rights suits authorized by previous legislation, and both the attorney general and the defendant could obtain a three-judge court in cases alleging a pattern or practice of discrimination.

TEARS OF QUINT—Tears, and a serious question, were the expression of Cathy Fischer, one of the Aberdeen, S.D., quintuplets, at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer. The quints were born Sept. 14, 1963.

LOW BRIDGE FOR FIREMEN

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Fireman Roger Dolloff was riding as tillerman—rear driver—on a hook and ladder rig here when it approached an overpass.

He noticed a sign listing the overhead clearance of the pass at 10 feet 4 inches.

Deaths

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Julius Tannen, 84, a stand-up comedian in the days of vaudeville, died Sunday. Tannen was in show business 35 years and had appeared in Earl Carroll's Vanities and George White's Scandals.

NORWICH, Vt. (AP) — Erwin Haskell Schell, 75, professor emeritus of industrial management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died Sunday after a long illness. Schell, who had taught at M.I.T. for 38 years, was born in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Mexico's current rate of population growth, 3.1 per cent a year, is one of the highest in the world, Population Reference Bureau, Inc., reports.

'Masked Man' Tells He Was Not Robber

LAKE CITY, Pa. (AP) — A man put on a ski mask to keep warm while waiting in his car Monday for his sister, who was in a bank in this Erie County town. Things got a little hotter than he expected.

A woman saw the man — the mask had holes in it for seeing and breathing — and told police she thought he was going to rob the bank.

When the police got there the man was gone, but he heard on the radio a search was being conducted for a masked man seen at the bank. He then returned to the bank and explained what had happened. His identity was not released.

Students Face Trial Over Campus Sit-in

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The first groups of protesting University of California students — temporarily placated in their controversy over student political freedom — faced trial today on charges stemming from a sit-in staged to gain more on-campus freedom.

Campus leaders said Monday they were "cautiously optimistic" about settlement of the battle which has spanned four restless months, resulted in arrests of 784 demonstrators and now is highlighted by the naming of a new chancellor for the Berkeley campus.

Most of those arrested Dec. 3 in a Free Speech Movement sit-in at Sproul Hall were due in Berkeley municipal court today to enter pleas on charges of resisting arrest, refusing to disperse and disturbing the peace.

Of those charged 590 were Berkely campus students, 50 teaching assistants and 130 nonstudents. The remaining were juveniles, not charged as adults.

The court was to process the defendants in groups of 50. It is expected to take two or three days for the pleas to be entered.

Students say the basic issue is over their demand for a "free University of California" run by a faculty student government.

This cause — outlined in a 10-page pamphlet distributed Monday at a noon rally — was echoed later in the day at Stanford University by the Stanford Graduate Coordinating Committee of about 100 members.

The committee issued a statement declaring that "the faculty and students, mutually involved in a community of scholarship, comprise the essential and defining life of the university."

Administrators, including presidents and trustees, play "a necessary but secondary role," the Stanford committee said.

The pamphlet said the "free University of California" would consist of seminars on campus at which outside speakers would discuss "the educational revolution and many other topics which are not considered in the university."

Mario Savio, 22, the philosophy student who led the free speech movement demonstrations, had often referred to the university as "the machine" and demanded that control over students should be in student-faculty hands.

The faculty's Academic Senate on Dec. 8 overwhelmingly approved a plan giving students more political freedom and proposing that the faculty handle disciplinary matters.

More Voting Protection To Be Asked

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is reported planning to ask Congress for additional legislation to protect Negro voting rights, contrary to previous expectations that no new civil rights measures would be requested.

A hint of this cropped up in Johnson's State of the Union address to a joint session of Congress Monday night when he spoke of enlarged opportunities for Negroes "through enforcement of the civil rights law and elimination of barriers to the and opportunity to vote."

At another point he said, "I propose we eliminate every remaining obstacle to the right and opportunity to vote.'

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., was asked by a reporter if he interpreted this to mean that Johnson has plans to submit a new voting rights bill to Congerss. "I know he has," Russell replied.

When pressed for details of what the President will propose, Russell declined to say. "You'll have to ask him," he said.

Russell, long a close friend of Johnson, is the longtime leader of Southern senators who have battled against the passage of civil rights bills.

The comprehensive measure passed last year, after a 15-week Senate struggle, included a section designed to tighten up the procedures provided in the 1957 and 1960 Civil Rights Acts to prevent discriminatory denial of voting rights in federal elections.

It requires that, in the registration of voters, states apply uniform standards, ignore immaterial errors, conduct literacy tests in writing and furnish copies of the test to an applicant upon request.

In addition courts would be required to expedite the handling of voting rights suits authorized by previous legislation, and both the attorney general and the defendant could obtain a three-judge court in cases alleging a pattern or practice of discrimination.

TEARS OF QUINT—Tears, and a serious question, were the expression of Cathy Fischer, one of the Aberdeen, S.D., quintuplets, at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer. The quints were born Sept. 14, 1963.

LOW BRIDGE FOR FIREMEN

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Fireman Roger Dolloff was riding as tillerman—rear driver—on a hook and ladder rig here when it approached an overpass.

He noticed a sign listing the overhead clearance of the pass at 10 feet 4 inches.

Deaths

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Julius Tannen, 84, a stand-up comedian in the days of vaudeville, died Sunday. Tannen was in show business 35 years and had appeared in Earl Carroll's Vanities and George White's Scandals.

NORWICH, Vt. (AP) — Erwin Haskell Schell, 75, professor emeritus of industrial management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died Sunday after a long illness. Schell, who had taught at M.I.T. for 38 years, was born in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Mexico's current rate of population growth, 3.1 per cent a year, is one of the highest in the world, Population Reference Bureau, Inc., reports.

'Masked Man' Tells He Was Not Robber

LAKE CITY, Pa. (AP) — A man put on a ski mask to keep warm while waiting in his car Monday for his sister, who was in a bank in this Erie County town. Things got a little hotter than he expected.

A woman saw the man — the mask had holes in it for seeing and breathing — and told police she thought he was going to rob the bank.

When the police got there the man was gone, but he heard on the radio a search was being conducted for a masked man seen at the bank. He then returned to the bank and explained what had happened. His identity was not released.

OVERSEAS

Openings Now Available In Capitol Life's Trans-Europe Agency

Personal interviews are now being held for experienced life insurance salesmen to join Capitol Life's Trans-Europe Agency in Germany. Interviews will be conducted by Mr. Charles R. Newby, Assistant Director of Overseas Operations. Mr. Newby has just returned to Denver after five years' experience in the European military market.

Openings are limited . . . opportunity is not. Incomes of $20,000 to $35,000 definitely are obtainable. Present agency production averages over one million per man each year. Four men from the Denver area are presently with Trans-Europe Agency.

The men we choose will be selling to a proven market . . . military and civilian Americans and their dependents. They will be career life insurance men, with a minimum of one year's active life insurance selling experience, and will want success.

OVERSEAS
Openings Now Available
In Capitol Life's Trans-Europe Agency

Personal interviews are now being held for experienced life insurance salesmen to join Capitol Life's Trans-Europe Agency in Germany. Interviews will be conducted by Mr. Charles R. Newby, Assistant Director of Overseas Operations. Mr. Newby has just returned to Denver after five years' experience in the European military market.

Openings are limited . . . opportunity is not. Incomes of $20,000 to $35,000 definitely are obtainable. Present agency production averages over one million per man each year. Four men from the Denver area are presently with Trans-Europe Agency.

The men we choose will be selling to a proven market . . . military and civilian Americans and their dependents. They will be career life insurance men, with a minimum of one year's active life insurance selling experience, and will want success.

43—Income Property

INCOME PROPERTY

A very exceptional opportunity for an employed or retired person to secure a large income from property which has enjoyed full occupancy for past 21 years, because it is ideally located and contains a large number of small highly improved units, each complete with kitchen and bath. These units are of the popular demand type and are moderately priced which is possible because of the large number of units in the property. Our experience proves that there is a constant unsatisfied demand for this type of apartment. Will pay a high percentage on investment. [illegible]

STEEL DOORS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Insulated steel residential doors increase the effectiveness of home year-round climate control systems, say United States Steel engineers. Laboratory tests at temperatures of plus 75 on one side, minus 20 on the other prove steel doors cut temperature transmission and will not frost or sweat, the engineers say.

World Filled With Trouble Spots at Year's Beginning

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a nuclear war is not on the horizon in 1965, a world filled with trouble spots and problem areas confronts President Johnson at the start of his first elected term.

Dangers abroad affecting U.S. national interests and demanding White House attention fall into two categories — the pressing immediate crises labeled extremely dangerous and secondly, the slower-fused but potentially explosive questions "which need and will get our

Secretary of State Dean Rusk in a year-end appraisal called South Viet Nam and the Congo the two most immediate and most dangerous situations "which ened and will get our continuing attention." There were at least 10 more of varying magnitude and urgency.

Among the more pressing problems before Johnson were these:

SOUTH VIET NAM: The bloody jungle guerrilla war with the Communist Viet Cong could expand into a much larger conflict involving North Viet Nam and Communist China in direct confrontation with U.S. power. Or it could bring a collapse of the fragile South Viet Nam government that could lead to a U.S. defeat and withdrawal with disastrous consequences in Southeast Asia, the Far East and around the world.

At the year end, the United States was seeking unity of leadership that would make possible a Saigon government which could function without the threat of a military veto. There were some signs the civilian-military political crisis was easing. But experts felt the war was slowly being lost.

CONGO: The situation was threatening due to outside intervention. A direct East-West clash could result plunging much of Africa into the cold war. The United States did not consider its assistance to the Congo government over a five-year period as intervention, but took quite another view of the furnishing of arms illegally to the rebels by Communist China, the United Arab Republic and Algeria.

This brought new strains in relations with the U.A.R. and Algeria and heightened tension with Peking. The United States sought to persuade Premier Moise Tshombe to accept a cease-fire with the rebels. But it was rejected by Leopoldville. The United States also advised the Congo government to broaden its base by admitting non-rebel opposition elements including former Premier Cyrille Adoula. The image of Tshombe was bad among many other African leaders. The chances for a solution appeared bleak.

CYPRUS: Although there was a lull in fighting, the unresolved issue of the Turkish minority produced grave concern because it had sharply divided Greece and Turkey and thus weakened the NATO alliance. There were hopes a form of peaceful coexistence could be worked out among the rival island factions. But there were no guarantees that the shooting would not erupt again. The U.N. peace-keeping force on the Mediterranean island was due to be withdrawn in March.

COMMUNIST CHINA: Peking received a psychological boost from its first nuclear explosion last Oct. 17. A reasonably rapid test program in 1965 could give the Chinese Communists a sustained lift. No big changes were foreseen in Peking's contacts with the Soviet Union over the next year or two. They were expected to remain strained.

Peking was encouraged by the success of its diplomatic campaign in Africa but this could bring difficulties when Africans ask what the Red Chinese are going to do for them in the form of aid.

ATLANTIC ALLIANCE: The machinery of NATO was in need of close attention over organizational problems. In recognition of new British proposals, the multilateral force received a new name, Atlantic Nuclear Force ANF. The ANF would include the V bombers and Polaris submarines as well as the American-favored surface fleet of about 25 vessels manned by American, British and German and other personnel. Some form of mixed-man surface fleet was expected to emerge during the year, despite controversy within NATO over the proposal.

GERMAN REUNIFICATION: Rusk listed the need as most urgent to find a permanent, peaceful and satisfactory settlement of the German question. It could open the door to far-reaching disarmament measures and relieve burdens now placed on both East and West Europe and the United States. But progress in this direction would be slow. There were no indications of Soviet readiness to consider a reunified Germany, nor were the French warm to the idea.

SOVIET UNION: The most powerful U.S. foe appeared to be speaking the same language of peaceful coexistence that it had under Soviet Premier Khrushchev. But the new Kremlin leaders seemed to be increasingly preoccupied with domestic issues. The United States did not anticipate Soviet initiatives which would either relax the cold war or heat it up.

LATIN AMERICA: Cuba tended to lessen as a hemisphere problem as it felt an economic pinch. The potential trouble spots remained, however, with Colombia and Venezuela both facing internal political problems. There were still dictatorships in Ecuador and Bolivia. While Panama was presently quiet, canal negotiations and the Jan. 9 anniversary of last year's riot could bring renewed tension. Haiti and the Dominican Republic were other areas of potential difficulty.

INDONESIA-MALAYSIA: Ailing President Sukarno of Indonesia reaffirmed his threat to crush Malaysia which he regarded as a symbol of British neocolonialism. The United States hoped to avoid a break in relations with Indonesia if possible but ties were severely strained by Communist-inspired attacks on U.S. Information Service Agency libraries.

Favored Pro Golfers Bumped From Tourney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Several favored professional golfers were bumped out of contention for the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament, while a relatively unknown Idaho pro took the top score in qualifying.

Gary Floan, 25, of Lewiston, Idaho, shot a three-under-par 68 Monday on the Hillcrest course for the best qualifying round. Close behind at 69 were veterans Howie Johnson and Chris Blocker. They also played the Hillcrest course.

Dutch Harrison, a tournament veteran, failed to qualify for one of the 28 spots open. Others eliminated with Harrison were Stan Leonard, Walker Inman, Dale Douglass, Gene Andrews and Elly Vines.

Pros qualifying were Robert (Skee) Riegel, Claude King Steve Opperman, Willie Jefferson, Richard Martinez, Larry Mowry, Gary Floan, Chris Bocker, Howie Johnson, George Archer, Chuck Piecha, Dick Stranahan, Fred Carter, Dave Cogdell, Bill Krause, Fred Hawkins, Henry Barabin, Mac Hunter and Bud Holscher.

Opening lead: King of ◊

When we provide the student with a measuring rod to determine the likelihood of a game contract, our work is not nearly done. If we reach the conclusion that a game is available it becomes essential to pick thet best "spot." Many a hand worth the necessary points to produce game goes down the drain because the wrong avenue of approach was chosen.

Observe today's hand which produced a substantial swing in a World's Championship contest between the United States and France in one of the early matches between these teams.

When the Americans were seated North and South, the bidding proceeded as indicated in the diagram. North opened with one heart and South responded with one spade. Over the two club rebid, South jumped directly to three notrump. Holding 14 high card points, he had ample with which to insist on a game contract facing an opening bid.

West opened the king of diamonds on which East signaled vigorously with the eight. West continued with the five and his partner put up the queen, which held the trick. East was careful to cash the ace of spades before returning another diamond. The defense took, in all, four diamonds and one spade to register a 100 point profit on the deal.

At the other table, the French player in the South seat adopted a more delicate approach during the auction. The first three calls were exactly the same however, South was a bit reluctant to make a jump rebid in no trump with only a tenuous stopper in diamonds. He chose to temporize by bidding two diamonds — a one round force.

Although the diamond suit is not technically biddable inasmuch as it is headed merely by the jack, South wished to obtain further information concerning his partner's holding. If, for example, North was able to bid notrump himself, South would feel more comfortable about accepting that contract.

Over two diamonds, North showed a preference for his partner's first bid by returning to two spades. This call appeals to us. It should not be regarded as an aggressive step inasmuch as North's behavior up to this point has been rather mild. South dallied no further and proceeded directly to game in spades. The defense was routinely restricted to two tricks —one diamond and one spade.

The vulnerable game was worth 650 points to the French (150 for the trick score plus a 500 point bonus), and the 100 point set recorded at the other table swelled their profit on the deal to 750 points.

Plan for Some Tax Cuts Is Being Revived

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has revived in cautiously moderated form a proposal for temporary income tax cuts as an emergency boost for the economy in case of recession.

Johnson said in his State of the Union message Monday night Congress can contribute to the kind of confidence that keeps business good "by ensuring that its procedures permit rapid action on temporary income tax cuts.

While he did not elaborate, he seemed to be thinking in terms of action entirely by the lawmaking branch. Earlier proposals that Congress delegate temporary tax-cutting power to the president have been received frostily by the legislators.

Except for this reference, Johnson covered already familiar ground when he talked about taxes. He repeated his advocacy of an excise tax cut by which "more money will be left in the hands of the consumer.

The Treasury and Johnson already have said the federal excise — or sales — tax structure should be reviewed and substantial reductions made.

White House aides indicated the excise tax cut would be between $1 billion and $2 billion, compared with the $11.6-billion income tax cut the second stage of which went into effect Jan. 1.

Likely first targets would be the excises collected at the retail level on furs, jewelry, cosmetics and luggage, including handbags. The House Ways and Means Committee has held hearings on excise taxes and seemed disposed to report legislation favorably.

The emergency income tax cut, as proposed by some of President John F. Kennedy's economic advisers, would have involved Congress giving the president power to declare a 5 per cent cut for six months, if specified conditions unfavorable to the economy should develop.

Kennedy did not push the idea hard when massive opposition developed in Congress. Some members protested that such delegation would violate the constitutional principle that Congress controls the purse strings.

The idea also was opposed by some economic specialists on the ground that it would be politically impossible ever to restore an income tax cut once made.

There was some discussion at the time of possible alternatives, under which Congress would retain control but would conduct all the hearings and other preliminaries to legislation and so be in a position to enact a cut quickly if economic conditions required it. This could be the sort of plan Johnson has in mind.

New Rule Sign Posted By Rep. Ford

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan hung an "under new management sign on the House Republican leadership today and said the emphasis now is on initiative, not reaction.

Ford said in an interview he wants the minority party to press its own solutions to national problems.

This is the "policy of alternatives long advocated by the group of younger Republicans who pushed Ford to the leadership in two steps — the chairmanship of the Republican Conference two years ago and the top minority post Monday.

"We're going to do some housekeeping first," Ford said. "We've got some good people working for us and well paid. We should be getting more benefit from them.

"Then, we hope to move forward by better use of task forces and by stimulating minority members of committees.

The task forces were an innovation of the past few years. Groups of Republican congressmen backed up by outside specialists prepared studies and recommendations seeking party positions on major issues.

However, this activity, while not discouraged by Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, whom Ford deposed as leader, did not seem particularly to interest him. For, in his comparatively minor post of conference chairman, could not effectively push it.

By stimulating Republican members of key committees, Ford said, he means "encouraging them to step out and take the initiative, not wait for the majority to act and then react.

His emphasis on party backing for the minority committee members indicated an even stronger drive than Republicans have been making for more committee staff personnel specifically assigned to the minority.

Ford is regarded as no less conservative than Halleck. When he met briefly with newsmen after his election he was invited to label himself. Ford said he had supported former President Dwight D. Eisenhowers views and policies and "I hope we can follow those general guidelines.

STEEL DOORS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Insulated steel residential doors increase the effectiveness of home year-round climate control systems, say United States Steel engineers. Laboratory tests at temperatures of plus 75 on one side, minus 20 on the other prove steel doors cut temperature transmission and will not frost or sweat, the engineers say.

World Filled With Trouble Spots at Year's Beginning

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a nuclear war is not on the horizon in 1965, a world filled with trouble spots and problem areas confronts President Johnson at the start of his first elected term.

Dangers abroad affecting U.S. national interests and demanding White House attention fall into two categories — the pressing immediate crises labeled extremely dangerous and secondly, the slower-fused but potentially explosive questions "which need and will get our

Secretary of State Dean Rusk in a year-end appraisal called South Viet Nam and the Congo the two most immediate and most dangerous situations "which ened and will get our continuing attention." There were at least 10 more of varying magnitude and urgency.

Among the more pressing problems before Johnson were these:

SOUTH VIET NAM: The bloody jungle guerrilla war with the Communist Viet Cong could expand into a much larger conflict involving North Viet Nam and Communist China in direct confrontation with U.S. power. Or it could bring a collapse of the fragile South Viet Nam government that could lead to a U.S. defeat and withdrawal with disastrous consequences in Southeast Asia, the Far East and around the world.

At the year end, the United States was seeking unity of leadership that would make possible a Saigon government which could function without the threat of a military veto. There were some signs the civilian-military political crisis was easing. But experts felt the war was slowly being lost.

CONGO: The situation was threatening due to outside intervention. A direct East-West clash could result plunging much of Africa into the cold war. The United States did not consider its assistance to the Congo government over a five-year period as intervention, but took quite another view of the furnishing of arms illegally to the rebels by Communist China, the United Arab Republic and Algeria.

This brought new strains in relations with the U.A.R. and Algeria and heightened tension with Peking. The United States sought to persuade Premier Moise Tshombe to accept a cease-fire with the rebels. But it was rejected by Leopoldville. The United States also advised the Congo government to broaden its base by admitting nonrebel opposition elements including former Premier Cyrille Adoula. The image of Tshombe was bad among many other African leaders. The chances for a solution appeared bleak.

CYPRUS: Although there was a lull in fighting, the unresolved issue of the Turkish minority produced grave concern because it had sharply divided Greece and Turkey and thus weakened the NATO alliance. There were hopes a form of peaceful coexistence could be worked out among the rival island factions. But there were no guarantees that the shooting would not erupt again. The U.N. peace-keeping force on the Mediterranean island was due to be withdrawn in March.

COMMUNIST CHINA: Peking received a psychological boost from its first nuclear explosion last Oct. 17. A reasonably rapid test program in 1965 could give the Chinese Communists a sustained lift. No big changes were foreseen in Peking's contacts with the Soviet Union over the next year or two. They were expected to remain strained.

Peking was encouraged by the success of its diplomatic campaign in Africa but this could bring difficulties when Africans ask what the Red Chinese are going to do for them in the form of aid.

ATLANTIC ALLIANCE: The machinery of NATO was in need of close attention over organizational problems. In recognition of new British proposals, the multilateral force received a new name, Atlantic Nuclear Force ANF. The ANF would include the V bombers and Polaris submarines as well as the American-favored surface fleet of about 25 vessels manned by American, British and German and other personnel. Some form of mixed-man surface fleet was expected to emerge during the year, despite controversy within NATO over the proposal.

GERMAN REUNIFICATION: Rusk listed the need as most urgent to find a permanent, peaceful and satisfactory settlement of the German question. It could open the door to far-reaching disarmament measures and relieve burdens now placed on both East and West Europe and the United States. But progress in this direction would be slow. There were no indications of Soviet readiness to consider a reunified Germany, nor were the French warm to the idea.

SOVIET UNION: The most powerful U.S. foe appeared to be speaking the same language of peaceful coexistence that it had under Soviet Premier Khrushchev. But the new Kremlin leaders seemed to be increasingly preoccupied with domestic issues. The United States did not anticipate Soviet initiatives which would either relax the cold war or heat it up.

LATIN AMERICA: Cuba tended to lessen as a hemisphere problem as it felt an economic pinch. The potential trouble spots remained, however, with Colombia and Venezuela both facing internal political problems. There were still dictatorships in Ecuador and Bolivia. While Panama was presently quiet, canal negotiations and the Jan. 9 anniversary of last year's riot could bring renewed tension. Haiti and the Dominican Republic were other areas of potential difficulty.

INDONESIA-MALAYSIA: Ailing President Sukarno of Indonesia reaffirmed his threat to crush Malaysia which he regarded as a symbol of British neocolonialism. The United States hoped to avoid a break in relations with Indonesia if possible but ties were severely strained by Communist-inspired attacks on U.S. Information Service Agency libraries.

Favored Pro Golfers Bumped From Tourney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Several favored professional golfers were bumped out of contention for the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament, while a relatively unknown Idaho pro took the top score in qualifying.

Gary Floan, 25, of Lewiston, Idaho, shot a three-under-par 68 Monday on the Hillcrest course for the best qualifying round. Close behind at 69 were veterans Howie Johnson and Chris Blocker. They also played the Hillcrest course.

Dutch Harrison, a tournament veteran, failed to qualify for one of the 28 spots open. Others eliminated with Harrison were Stan Leonard, Walker Inman, Dale Douglass, Gene Andrews and Elly Vines.

Pros qualifying were Robert (Skee) Riegel, Claude King Steve Opperman, Willie Jefferson, Richard Martinez, Larry Mowry, Gary Floan, Chris Bocker, Howie Johnson, George Archer, Chuck Piecha, Dick Stranahan, Fred Carter, Dave Cogdell, Bill Krause, Fred Hawkins, Henry Barabin, Mac Hunter and Bud Holscher.

When we provide the student with a measuring rod to determine the likelihood of a game contract, our work is not nearly done. If we reach the conclusion that a game is available it becomes essential to pick thet best "spot." Many a hand worth the necessary points to produce game goes down the drain because the wrong avenue of approach was chosen.

Observe today's hand which produced a substantial swing in a World's Championship contest between the United States and France in one of the early matches between these teams.

When the Americans were seated North and South, the bidding proceeded as indicated in the diagram. North opened with one heart and South responded with one spade. Over the two club rebid, South jumped directly to three notrump. Holding 14 high card points, he had ample with which to insist on a game contract facing an opening bid.

West opened the king of diamonds on which East signaled vigorously with the eight. West continued with the five and his partner put up the queen, which held the trick. East was careful to cash the ace of spades before returning another diamond. The defense took, in all, four diamonds and one spade to register a 100 point profit on the deal.

At the other table, the French player in the South seat adopted a more delicate approach during the auction. The first three calls were exactly the same however, South was a bit reluctant to make a jump rebid in no trump with only a tenuous stopper in diamonds. He chose to temporize by bidding two diamonds — a one round force.

Although the diamond suit is not technically biddable inasmuch as it is headed merely by the jack, South wished to obtain further information concerning his partner's holding. If, for example, North was able to bid notrump himself, South would feel more comfortable about accepting that contract.

Over two diamonds, North showed a preference for his partner's first bid by returning to two spades. This call appeals to us. It should not be regarded as an aggressive step inasmuch as North's behavior up to this point has been rather mild. South dallied no further and proceeded directly to game in spades. The defense was routinely restricted to two tricks —one diamond and one spade.

The vulnerable game was worth 650 points to the French (150 for the trick score plus a 500 point bonus), and the 100 point set recorded at the other table swelled their profit on the deal to 750 points.

U.N. Rules Did Not Foresee Nations Quitting

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Indonesia's announced decision to quit the United Nations has posed a problem not covered by U.N. rules or precedent. It was a different story with the old League of Nations, which lost 17 members in its brief life.

The League of Nations' Covenant permitted members to withdraw after two years' notice. The U.N. Charter makes no such provision; there is no machinery to deal with such a situation although at least three nations besides Indonesia have threatened to quit in recent years.

U.N. officials say nothing can be done until President Sukarno's government submits its withdrawal notice in writing. Opinions vary on what will happen after that.

A member of the U.N. legal committee expressed the opinion that it would be impossible for any member actually to quit the United Nations.

"The Indonesians can walk out," he said, "but if at any time they decide to walk back, there would be no need to apply for admission. Their seat would still be here."

A high official in the secretariat expressed the opinion that oral notice of withdrawal was enough and that Indonesia ceased to be a member when its chief delegate, L. N. Palar, contacted Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey and Secretary-General U Thant's office.

There is a third theory that Sukarno might insist his country is no longer part of the world organization but maintain an observer here to keep a foot in the door.

Defections from the League of Nations began after it failed to halt a Japanese thrust into Manchuria in 1931 and Italy's invasion of Ethiopia in 1935.

The league had handled more than 40 political disputes with varying success. But it had no military forces at its disposal, the United States refused to join it and its inability to deal with major crises helped bring its downfall.

Three members of the World War II axis — Germany, Japan and Italy — all pulled out of the league bfeore the conflict began.

Germany withdrew in 1933, ostensibly to protest disarmament proposals that would have delayed rearmament of the Third Reich. Japan pulled out the same year when the league refused to recognize the puppet state it set up in Manchuria.

Italy quit in 1937 after its conquest of Ethiopia. A parade of Latin-American nations quit over the league's failure to prevent Italy's Ethiopian conquest.

The league thinned its ranks by one more member in 1939 when it expelled the Soviet Union for its attack on Finland. By January 1940 the world's first massive international peace effort had to all purposes ceased to function in political matters.

With the United States a founding member of the United Nations 1945 San Francisco charter providing for military forces at the disposal of the Security Council, the founders of the United Nations believed its effectiveness was guaranteed. Because of this they apparently thought no provision was necessary to deal with member withdrawals.

Traffic Death Count Reaches New Record

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's traffic deaths during the Christmas and New Year weekends totaled 1,052, including a record toll last weekend.

The 474 fatalities during the New Year weekend compared to the previous high of 375 for a similar three-day holiday in 1959-60 and topped the record of 409 set in a four-day weekend in 1955-56.

There were 578 persons killed in traffic accidents during the three-day Christmas period, the second largest total for that type of holiday.

An Associated Press survey during a 78-hour non-holiday weekend last month showed 396 traffic deaths. Highway fatalities during the first 10 months of 1964 averaged about 110 a day.

U.N. Rules Did Not Foresee Nations Quitting

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Indonesia's announced decision to quit the United Nations has posed a problem not covered by U.N. rules or precedent. It was a different story with the old League of Nations, which lost 17 members in its brief life.

The League of Nations' Covenant permitted members to withdraw after two years' notice. The U.N. Charter makes no such provision; there is no machinery to deal with such a situation although at least three nations besides Indonesia have threatened to quit in recent years.

U.N. officials say nothing can be done until President Sukarno's government submits its withdrawal notice in writing. Opinions vary on what will happen after that.

A member of the U.N. legal committee expressed the opinion that it would be impossible for any member actually to quit the United Nations.

"The Indonesians can walk out," he said, "but if at any time they decide to walk back, there would be no need to apply for admission. Their seat would still be here."

A high official in the secretariat expressed the opinion that oral notice of withdrawal was enough and that Indonesia ceased to be a member when its chief delegate, L. N. Palar, contacted Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey and Secretary-General U Thant's office.

There is a third theory that Sukarno might insist his country is no longer part of the world organization but maintain an observer here to keep a foot in the door.

Defections from the League of Nations began after it failed to halt a Japanese thrust into Manchuria in 1931 and Italy's invasion of Ethiopia in 1935.

The league had handled more than 40 political disputes with varying success. But it had no military forces at its disposal, the United States refused to join it and its inability to deal with major crises helped bring its downfall.

Three members of the World War II axis — Germany, Japan and Italy — all pulled out of the league bfeore the conflict began.

Have you ever noticed how a little boy shows a girl that he likes her? He doesn't offer her flowers, he doesn't phone her hourly, and he certainly doesn't share his candy with her. Oh, no!

A junior-sized Romeo woos his Juliet with aerial tactics. He tosses wads of crumpled paper at her and hopes for a bulls-eye, smack on top of her head. If he really likes her, he might even place gum, partly chewed, on the paper.

Or he tries to get her attention by being a No. 1 nuisance. He swipes her books, tablets, lunch, anything that belongs to her, and then runs pell mell into the boys' lavatory. He frightens her with gifts of spiders, insects and lizards. He yells out insults or silly remarks each time she passes in the school corridors.

But you would have the final, undeniable proof of affection if you asked him, "Do you like Suzie" and he replied, "that creepy girl?"

This is the way a little boy expresses his affection: by teasing, harassing, embarrassing, taunting, annoying, degrading and insulting the girl he likes.

But let's move away from little boys now and take a look at you.

Say you're with the gang and someone begins to praise your steady for some outstanding feat. Would you join in, and with unembarrassed pride, say to him (or her), "Yeah! That was real sharp! I was so proud of you!"?

Or would you block all the praise and congratulations with a remark like, "Oh, any idiot could have done it" and then swing into a detailed narrative of the stupid thing your steady did last week?

How do you react when folks talk about your relatives? When they say, "Gee, your brother is really nice!" do you smile and say, "Thank you. I kinda' like him, too." or does the junior grade remark, "That creep?" slip out.

If someone thought your parents were A-OK, would you agree with him and say, "I'm pretty lucky to have them." Or would you make some trite wisecrack about your mother's driving or your father's misadventures in attempting to repair the plumbing .

What we're getting at today is simple. It's nice when we can express our affection for our loved ones honestly and proudly. It's great when we can encourage and build up the self-confidence of the folks we care about, rather than degrading and making fun of them.

Recently at a discussion on parent-child relations, we asked the audience to write out the questions they wanted covered on the 3x5 cards we had handed out.

When the cards came in, we were pleasantly surprised to discover one card which had scrawled across it, "I like my parents!. . .and don't call me square!"

Well, we don't think it's square to admit that we like someone.

In fact, we're hoping that in '65 it'll be fashionable to honestly and openly say to the folks we care about, "you're nice! I like you!" (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Ele and Walt Dulaney welcome letters from readers. All will be answered, in DATE-LINE or individually. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CAPITOL STUFF

By RICHARD McGOWAN

WASHINGTON — The crystal ball, usually full of surprises, has come up with some pretty bland predictions for the New Year, which will again be dominated with the doings of President Johnson.

There is a take-it-slow air about the nations capital as 1965 gets under way with Johnson firmly in the drivers seat following his massive election victory last November. But there is none of the supercharged enthusiasm that came with the Kennedys.

Even Johnsons long-awaited State of the Union address Monday night lost its appeal since the word was "leaked" that it will be short and lacking in surprises.

While it of course contained some positive recommendations on building the Great Society, the main theme was Lyndon's favorite — "Come, let us reason together."

The next few months will bring the usual lofting of trial balloons, Cabinet changes and congressional hearings as the new Congress warms up.

Johnson will go slow with Congress. With 3-to-1 Democratic majorities in the House and Senate, he faces no overwhelming difficulties. But he repeatedly has let it be known that he does not intend to inundate Congress with rafts of "meaningless" legislation.

He recntly told a press conference at his Texas ranch that only those proposals which he felt were needed — and which Congress was prepared to handle — would be sent to the Hill. This, in Johnsonese, was the President's subtle way of saying that only those proposals that stood a chance of passing would reach Congress.

What is known is that Johnson will attempt a bill to provide medical care for the aged a transportation bill, a $2 billion anti-poverty bill, a $3 billion bill for federal aid to education and a dramatic $2 to $4 billion cut in federal excise taxes. All are starters toward the Great Society.

From all sides, the prediction is that the economy will continue to grow. But while a $34 billion increase in the gross national product is forecast for this year, it will not begin to absorb the 3.5 million currently unemployed Americans.

To offset this, Johnson will attempt to spur the economy to greater heights through a combination of excise tax cut and increased government spending in make-work projects.

VIET NAM STILL JOHNSON'S BIGGEST THORN

On the foreign side, Viet Nam looms as the biggest thorn in the Administration's side for some time to come. But American involvement in the Southeast Asian hotspot is likely to remain essentially the same.

It is in dealing with the new Soviet leaders that a surprise ray of hope has broken through the clouds of doubt and misunderstanding. U.S.-Soviet relations are likely to remain fairly good, at least until the results of the Kremlin shakeup become clearer. There will be no eyeball-to-eyeball confrontations in the near future.

The mood was set in Johnson's New Year's greetings to the new Soviet leaders in which he urged that Moscow and Washington strive to strengthen the foundation of world peace.

"In this task," Johnson told Soviet President Anastas Mikoyan and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, "our two governments bear great responsibilities and it is my earnest wish that in the coming year we can make substantial progress."

Johnson also threw in the age-old proposals about limiting the spread of nuclear weapons "to achieve a verified worldwide comprehensive test ban."

BUSINESS HELP EXPECTED IN SOVIET TIES

In a scanning of U.S.-Soviet relations, one thing has become obvious to observers here. The Johnson Administration is willing to utilize the business community in its quest for peaceful relations with the Russians. Any increase in trade over the next few years would be far outweighed by gains in international relations, the administration believes.

"You are now agents for increased understanding between two great powers -- the U.S.A. and the Soviet Union — at a time when understanding comes painfully slow and by fits and starts."

Colombia's AQIR Force, organized in [illegible], has been independent of the nation's Army and Navy since [illegible]. Last year the force had about 100 planes.

By RICHARD McGOWAN

WASHINGTON — The crystal ball, usually full of surprises, has come up with some pretty bland predictions for the New Year, which will again be dominated with the doings of President Johnson.

There is a take-it-slow air about the nations capital as 1965 gets under way with Johnson firmly in the drivers seat following his massive election victory last November. But there is none of the supercharged enthusiasm that came with the Kennedys.

Even Johnsons long-awaited State of the Union address Monday night lost its appeal since the word was "leaked" that it will be short and lacking in surprises.

While it of course contained some positive recommendations on building the Great Society, the main theme was Lyndon's favorite — "Come, let us reason together."

The next few months will bring the usual lofting of trial balloons, Cabinet changes and congressional hearings as the new Congress warms up.

Johnson will go slow with Congress. With 3-to-1 Democratic majorities in the House and Senate, he faces no overwhelming difficulties. But he repeatedly has let it be known that he does not intend to inundate Congress with rafts of "meaningless" legislation.

He recntly told a press conference at his Texas ranch that only those proposals which he felt were needed — and which Congress was prepared to handle — would be sent to the Hill. This, in Johnsonese, was the President's subtle way of saying that only those proposals that stood a chance of passing would reach Congress.

What is known is that Johnson will attempt a bill to provide medical care for the aged a transportation bill, a $2 billion anti-poverty bill, a $3 billion bill for federal aid to education and a dramatic $2 to $4 billion cut in federal excise taxes. All are starters toward the Great Society.

From all sides, the prediction is that the economy will continue to grow. But while a $34 billion increase in the gross national product is forecast for this year, it will not begin to absorb the 3.5 million currently unemployed Americans.

To offset this, Johnson will attempt to spur the economy to greater heights through a combination of excise tax cut and increased government spending in make-work projects.

VIET NAM STILL JOHNSON'S BIGGEST THORN

On the foreign side, Viet Nam looms as the biggest thorn in the Administration's side for some time to come. But American involvement in the Southeast Asian hotspot is likely to remain essentially the same.

It is in dealing with the new Soviet leaders that a surprise ray of hope has broken through the clouds of doubt and misunderstanding. U.S.-Soviet relations are likely to remain fairly good, at least until the results of the Kremlin shakeup become clearer. There will be no eyeball-to-eyeball confrontations in the near future.

The mood was set in Johnson's New Year's greetings to the new Soviet leaders in which he urged that Moscow and Washington strive to strengthen the foundation of world peace.

"In this task," Johnson told Soviet President Anastas Mikoyan and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, "our two governments bear great responsibilities and it is my earnest wish that in the coming year we can make substantial progress."

Johnson also threw in the age-old proposals about limiting the spread of nuclear weapons "to achieve a verified worldwide comprehensive test ban."

BUSINESS HELP EXPECTED IN SOVIET TIES

In a scanning of U.S.-Soviet relations, one thing has become obvious to observers here. The Johnson Administration is willing to utilize the business community in its quest for peaceful relations with the Russians. Any increase in trade over the next few years would be far outweighed by gains in international relations, the administration believes.

"You are now agents for increased understanding between two great powers — the U.S.A. and the Soviet Union — at a time when understanding comes painfully slow and by fits and starts."

FCC Is Facing Another Year Of Controversy

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Federal Communications Commission tackles all the problems foreseen by its chairman in 1965, another year of controversy is in store for the usually embattled agency.

At the top of the agenda, Chairman E. William Henry said in an interview, are such delicate problems as these:

— Should the government exercise some control over the broadcasting networks?

— Should the FCC push for congressional repeal of Section 315 — the "equal time" legislation that so often spices up political campaigns?

— Should the FCC move to curb what Henry feels is the excessive noise of radio and television commercials?

— Should the FCC regulate the booming community antenna television business, already a formidable competitor for many old-line, on-the-air stations?

Henry said he is preparing a major policy statement on the equal time law.

"Frankly, I'm not too sure what I'm going to say yet," he said when asked if he favors repeal of the law. "But you can be sure the industry is going to urge repeal of it, and I want to take a good hard look at it."

The law requires radio and television stations providing air time to political candidates to provide an equal opportunity for all other candidates for the same office.

Henry said he expects the FCC to propose rules later this month to govern the noise levels of broadcast commercials. This has been a pet peeve of Henry's for some time.

The commission also will explore the possibility of extending its control to the networks, which are not licensees of the commission as their member stations must be.

"One way we might get at this is to limit the amount of prime evening time controlled by the networks," Henry said. "We could do this by saying that no licensee shall affiliate with a network that controls more than a certain percentage of prime time broadcasting."

The purpose of the regulation, he explained, would be to open up competition for such time to independent programming sources and assure them part of the prime time market. The FCC, Henry said, might take a similar approach to bar the networks from taking part in program syndication in the United States.

One of the touchiest problems to face the commission in years, Henry feels, is the question of regulating the burgeoning community antenna — CATV — business.

CATV systems pick up the programs of big-city stations, relay them via microwave signals to a single community antenna near an isolated community, then feed the programs into the homes of fee-paying subscribers by cable.

Under an interim policy that has been in effect while the FCC studies possible legislative proposals to fit CATV into the national television picture, CATV operators are required to protect local television stations by holding back for 15 days, on request, programs used by the local stations.

Jill St. John Says She Was Almost Bombed

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Jill St. John, back from her first Bob Hope Christmas tour, said today that one show in South Viet Nam came within a half-hour of bombardment.

"Two mortars, planted by the Viet Cong, were aimed at the stage. Demolition experts found them only 30 minutes before showtime. Try singing on key after an introduction like that," said the red-haired beauty.

The Hope troupe, under tight security, spent two days in the troubled area. They missed by minutes the Christmas Eve bombing of Saigon officers' quarters with more than 100 casualties, including two Americans killed.

"We were driving in from the airport," said Miss St. John. "As we neared the center of town we saw about 30,000 people.

"We were all ham enough to think we were getting a big reception. Then I realized there were no cameras — no one looking at us.

"When we got to our hotel, all the windows were blown out. The bombing was practically across the street from us.

"I no sooner got unpacked than a demolition team came in and searched through all the closets and bureau drawers for bombs.

"Bob told us the trip would be exciting, but wow!"

Jill said their plane took off from Saigon Airport about five minutes ahead of some more bombs.

Hope's comment: "I don't mind those 21-gun salutes but not when they aim the cannons at the plane."

The actress said "You don't know if your waiter is Viet Cong. It's an enemy which doesn't wear uniforms."

On Christmas Day, most of the troupe wanted to go to Mass at the cathedral. Security said no. Mass was said in the hotel.

The Viet Nam part of the trip was a drastic change from the stop in Thailand.

"We were entertained at the palace by the king and queen. The king, of course, is a noted jazz buff. Les Brown's band played and so did the king's own personal band.

"I was asked to demonstrate the new American dances. I can now say that I introduced the Frug, the Monkey, the Jerk and the Swim to this fairytale land. I don't know whether I contributed to culture or not."
